Tourist Losses Scored

Stinging criticism of the government's handling of the ferry situation came Friday from spokesmen for Greater Victoria's business community and opposition politicians. They warned of severe economic losses unless the strike is settled quickly.

Meanwhile, lineups of motorists trying to get off the Island lengthened to unprecendented proportions at the Coho dock at the Inner Harbor and at the Sidney-Anacortes terminal in Sidney.

All three opposition parties clamored for government action, the Liberals calling for Transport Minister Robert Strachan's scalp, while former premier W. A. C. Bennett urged the resignation of Premier Barrett.

Equal parts hostility and desperation was the mood of members of Victoria's Highway 1A Motel Association who say they are losing one-third of $1 million a day because of the strike.

This is the way the members, representing 45 motels, most of them on Gorge Road, felt after trying unsuccessfully to talk to Barrett and Strachan about the strike.

"They flatly refused to see us," said Charles Danbrook of the Westwind International Motor Inn.

"Is it legal to cut off a part of a public highway?" asked Mrs. Evelyn Matteo of the Charles Dickens Motor Inn, at a press conference following a membership meeting of the association.

ALL DRESSED up in uniform with no place to go are these six Pacific Stage Lines drivers who showed up for work at Victoria bus terminal Friday but found none of their buses to Vancouver running because of B.C. Ferries strike. Service is will resume Sunday via Nanaimo and CP ferry.

Sunday Meeting Slated

Hopes for a quick settlement to the B.C. Ferries strike brightened Friday evening, as union officials for 2,400 workers agreed to sit down for weekend bargaining talks with Transport Minister Robert Strachan.

The meeting is set for Sunday morning, but nobody is saying where.

Strachan told reporters outside his office Friday that the main stumbling block to a settlement — a division between the crews' union and the officers' union — had been cleared away.

"They're back together again," he said. "It's a real gain and will be of great benefit to reaching an agreement."

Reading from a prepared statement, the minister said there had been agreement "in principle" to guidelines under which negotiations could start again.

He appeared much more optimistic than the day before when he confessed that the split between the two union groups placed him in "an impossible situation."

The officers' group, represented by Peter Marshall, was apparently far behind the crews' union, led by business agent Norm Thornber, in the progress of contract talks, and Strachan predicted at least a week's delay before they could sit down together.

But Friday, the stalemate broke when Marshall and Thornber agreed to immediate joint talks.

Neither Marshall nor Thornber would talk to reporters after the 1½-hour meeting in Strachan's office.

However, Marshall told the Colonist later that he is happy to be going back to the bargaining table.

"This thing can only be resolved in negotiations," he said. "So the sooner we get back to the table the better."

While the unlicensed personnel were away from work, the officers, who are represent-

Food Men Pledge Help, Watchdog Raps Ministers

OTTAWA (CP) — An angry Beryl Plumptre, the $40,000 a year chairman of the food prices review board, said Friday she had been given "absolutely no help whatsoever" in rounding up staff for the board's work until the cabinet met early this week.

She was speaking at a news conference following an all-day closed meeting with the heads of with nine food chain executives at which:

● The food chain executives promised to protect consumers against the ill effects of double or triple-pricing of shelved articles. Where more than one price is marked on an item, the customer will be asked to pay the lowest.

● The nine chains — Dominion Stores, Safeway, Food City, Woodwards, International Grocers' Association, Loblaws, Steinberg's, Provigo and A and P — agreed to supply requested financial information to the board on a confidential basis.

● The chains agreed to include more consumer information in their advertising.

● They pledged to try to reduce the number of different package sizes available in an effort to cut product costs.

Railmen Giving No Warning

Tieup Nearly National

MONTREAL (CP) — Non-operating railway unions hit Canada's railways with a barrage of new strike calls Friday, warning at the same time they do not intend to give advance warning of future strikes.

The effect of a rapid-fire succession of strike orders late in the day, together with orders issued earlier, brings the railway shutdowns close to the national strike the unions said at the outset they wanted to avoid.

The only area of the country where no strike was in effect or known to be planned by Friday night was the Atlantic provinces.

In Quebec, 18,000 non-ops were ordered off the job no later than midnight, and by the supper hour they had deserted Canadian National's Central Station here. They were to strike for 48 hours. They had just ended a 48-hour strike at 6 a.m. the same day.

In Ontario, a strike due to end at midnight was extended to 6 a.m. today and a 66-hour strike was called for 6 a.m. local times today in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and that part of northwestern Ontario not already out.

Previously, the Associated Non-Operating Railway Unions, representing the 56,000 workers involved, had said they would attempt to give 12 hours notice of strike action and, generally,

Birth Defect Link: Sprays Suspected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two manufacturing corporations suspended Friday all production and marketing of three spray adhesives which, the U.S. Consumer Products Safety Commission said, may be linked to birth defects.

Commission chairman Richard Simpson said the sprays generally were sold for arts and crafts purposes. He identified them as Foil Art Spray Adhesive and Scotch Brand SprayMent, manufactured by the 3M Co. of St. Paul, Minn., and Krylon Spray Adhesive, manufactured by the Borden Co. of Columbus, Ohio.

Within a few hours after Simpson called for a halt in the sale of the products, spokesmen for both manufacturers said they were initiating voluntary recall programs and halting production.

Two of the three spray adhesives are being marketed in Canada, consumer affairs officials said Friday.

Jim Black, chief of the hazardous products division of the consumers affairs department, said Scotch Brand Spray-Ment and Krylon Spray Adhesive are both available in Canada.

LANDLADY CHARGED

Aged Man Kept on Leash

MIAMI (UPI) — A 55-year-old landlady was held on false imprisonment charges Friday for keeping an aged man in a shed behind her home, collecting his social security cheques and feeding him so poorly he had to forage in garbage cans.

The case came to light Thursday when the 85-year-old man, Victor Hartman, fell into one of the garbage cans along a street and was too weak to get out.

He had a leash-type rope looped around his neck.

Police identified the landlady as Mrs. Bonnie Blanchard. They said Hartman had been boarding with her "for possibly as long as 25 years."

The quarters provided to Hartman for his $186-a-month social security cheque consisted of a 14-by-5-foot pool pumphouse. The Blanchard property is fenced but the elderly man managed to get out from time to time to go in search of food.

Police said they had received reports from neighbors over the past six months complaining about an indecently dressed old man wandering around eating out of garbage cans, but each time they went to look for him, he was gone.

They finally caught up with him Thursday when they received another complaint. They said they found Hartman "lying inside a garbage can in the street, into which he had evidently fallen while attempting to get food and was unable to get out."

Pact Roadblock Lifted

In spite of the lack of Canadian ferries tourists like Judith and Gary Ginder of San Francisco were still arriving Friday without knowledge of possible problems.

"When we were waiting to get on the ferry to come to the Island somebody leaving shouted, 'Don't, it's not worth it,'" said Ginder, "but I didn't know until now what he meant."

They had planned to spend about three days on the Island, but will stay longer if there are still ferry problems.

They said that they had no warning when they bought their tickets to come to Victoria.

"They just took our money, punched our tickets and waved us on," said Ginder.

Some came in spite of the strike, like Allan Kerr of Edmonton, an agricultural engineer due to give a paper at a conference at the Empress Hotel starting Monday.

"I guess we might spend longer than we expected here," said Kerr, "unless the government steps in—this is what would happen in Alberta, the strikers would be forced back to work."

Then there are some tourists who have been stranded here.

These included Axel and Erika Broda, recently from Los Angeles, but making their leisurely way back home to Munich, Germany, by way of Mexico, Alaska, and Canada.

They tried vainly Thursday to get on a ferry.

"We've been here nearly two weeks," said Broda, "so we knew there was talk of a strike but we didn't really believe it would happen."

Victorians outside the tourist industry were welcoming the strike.

"Why," said one gleefully, "I drove down the Causeway today and didn't have to stop for a single tourist. It looks as if we might own our city after all."

And this mood was reflected in comments from various other passersby.

Many Gulf Island residents don't seem to be disturbed in any way by the strike.

"For once, the island belongs to the islanders," said Marc Holmes of Salt Spring Island.

"Things are really nice and peaceful. It's almost as if winter has come upon us a few months early."

Holmes, who is the representative for Salt Spring Island on the Capital Region Board, said he won't have any problem getting to next Wednesday's meeting in Victoria.

"I got a seat reserved on a small plane; so everything is getting along just fine without the ferries," he said.

Mike Stacey, who operates a water taxi service between Salt Spring Island and the mainland, said he will also begin hauling groceries to the island this weekend.

"It's mad; the whole thing is driving us crazy, but we'll manage," Stacey said.

If the strike lasts for some time, he stands to make a little money as a result of the increased business, but he won't profit too much by a short strike, he said.

"There's nobody here who can afford to hire a $30,000 boat for three or four hours by himself. So we have to organize large parties and that's a real headache," Stacey said.

"But you've got to look at the bright side of things. It's not all that bad," he added.

J. W. Hayhurst of Mayne Island said life has become quiet and peaceful.

"All or most of the visitors got off the island and the strike doesn't bother us," he said.

Hayhurst also said no food shortages are expected on the Gulf Islands.

"The fishboats will take care of our requirements. We never ran short of food in the last ferry strike in '68. I don't think we'll have any major problems this time," he said.

ed by Marshall continued to report for work and were sitting out their normal shifts on B.C. Ferries vessels.

Earlier Friday, Thornber said in votes taken at various ferry terminals Friday morning, his members gave overall support of 92 to 93 per cent to stop work.

Swartz Bay workers voted 94 per cent in favor, while Departure Bay was 100 per cent in favor. And on the mainland, a joint meeting of unlicensed staff at Horseshoe Bay and Tswwassen terminals and the Deas dock saw only 23 of more than 700 oppose a work stoppage.

Announcing the strike was on, Thornber said: "There is no turning back at this time. This is a complete cessation of service."

Minutes earlier, noisy, cheering crowds of ferry workers had poured from meetings after casting their near-unanimous strike vote.

Issues include wages, wage adjustments and payment for statutory holiday work.

They argue they work harder and longer on holidays and should be paid for it. But instead they are treated like average civil servants who get holidays when everybody else does.

Thornber reaffirmed that the key to the whole dispute is that the civil service and the government are "very reluctant" to recognize the ferry fleet as a marine operation.

Meanwhile local residents were able to take advantage of uncrowded campsites, motels and resorts and visit local sights without elbowing through crowds of tourists.

Even Goldstream campsite close to Victoria still had room for additional campers Friday afternoon, when usually every one of the 150 spots is full before noon.

And tourists left behind in the rush seemed to be making the best of the situation and looking for more sights to see on the Island.

Queues, Criticism Grow

"What would the government do if a group of us blocked the highway on the Malahat with our cars?" asked Don Wray, manager of the Coachman and Canterbury motels. "It's the same thing. It's blocking off the public highway."

Mrs. Rita Wilson of The Friendship Inn said August is the peak month of the year and Aug. 14 to 24 is the peak time of the peak month.

"We depend solely on the tourists," she said, "and we'll just have to lay off our employees if the strike continues."

"There's a lot of hostility among the motel owners," she said.

"And desperation, too," Wray added. "There are large mortgages to be met."

The association members recounted "a general exodus" from their motels when tourists started to move toward ferries to get back to the mainland.

Some were in a panic to get back to their jobs, they said. Some had only so much money with them and couldn't risk staying longer than they'd planned.

This left some motels with an occupancy rate as low as 20 per cent in a peak period when owners were counting on making money to meet their heavy mortgages, one member said.

It's the time of year when people stay extra days and each day there is a buildup, but this has been wiped out, Wray said.

"That's right," said Mrs. Matteo. "When this happens your pyramid tumbles."

"It's absolutely irresponsible on the part of the government," Mrs. Wilson said. "What happened to this government's labor paradise?"

The association sent the government a telegram Thursday night demanding action but there was no reply.

On Friday an attempt was made to meet Barrett and Strachan.

"The answers we got were that there was no way we could get to see them today," Mrs. Wilson said. "When we asked about tomorrow the girl on the phone said 'Tomorrow's Saturday,' as if we didn't know it."

As many as 500 summer help, many of them students, could be laid off if the strike continues, one of the motel owners estimated.

"If it goes on," said Mrs. Wilson, "Gorge Road is going to look like a cemetery with motel signs as gravestone markers."

In other protests, Gerry Splatt, manager of the Royal London Wax Museum, personally delivered a letter across the street from the museum to the premier's office urging him to "use the mandate given him by the people in the last election" to quickly settle the ferry strike.

He said that a similar letter was being sent by the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

Victoria Ald. Bill Tindall said Vancouver Island's business community has already been hit hard by the ferry strike and the worst is still to come.

"By next week, the island will be empty; there won't be a tourist left," said Tindall, chairman of city council's industry commerce and tourism committee.

"Small businessmen could go out of business because of this strike. People will get laid off. It will be bad all around," Tindall said in an interview.

He said a lot of people have asked him whether the city couldn't do anything to help stranded tourists, but added there wasn't really anything that could be done.

"It's simply beyond our control. The only thing we can do is apologize for the inconvenience caused by the strike to people who were willing to spend their money here," he said.

Ironically some downtown motels started filling up again as the day wore on.

Many of those checking in had left their cars in the line-ups for the Black Ball ferry but there were also quite a few Americans who had just arrived on ferries not affected by strikes.

Liberal leader David Anderson, in an interview from Kelowna, said Strachan should be sacked because he did not show leadership in dealing with the union groups.

"If hey fire a minister for nothing, as they did with Frank Calder, they should certainly fire a minister for incompetence."

Calder, former minister without portfolio, was dropped from the cabinet last month, with Barrett saying the minister had not been "forthright" with him about a private-life incident.

Anderson said if the ferry strike isn't settled by Monday, the unlicensed employees should be ordered back by executive or legislative decree.

Conservative MLA Scott Wallace of Oak Bay described the strike as the worst failing of the NDP government to date, and predicted worse to come.

"Today the ferries, tomorrow the whole civil service," he noted, referring to Bill 182, a piece of legislation due for debate in the fall that would provide collective bargaining for civil servants while giving them the right to strike.

He called for the setting up of an arbitration apparatus that could be used to settle the strike.

Bennett, meanwhile, issued a press release saying that Strachan should stay, but Barrett should resign "because chaos is not just confined to the ferry problem, but everywhere."

Food Retailers

Mrs. Plumptre told the news conference following the meeting with food chain executives she "was refused by every government department" when she asked to borrow professional staff for the board's work.

The department of industry, trade and commerce was the only department that co-operated. Even the department of consumer affairs turned down her requests for staff, she said.

The government told Mrs. Plumptre Monday it was prepared to give more powers if the board felt it needed them.

"But I said I don't want more powers unless I have more staff.

"When I was asked to do this job, I was assured I would be given a good staff," she said.

On the matter of pricing, five of the nine chains—Dominion Stores, Safeway, Food City, Woodwards and International Grocers' Association—offered to go one step further and pledged not to raise prices on shelved goods.

Dominion Stores president Thomas Balton told a news conference that the five felt asking the consumer to pay the lowest of several marked prices did not go far enough in protecting customers.

"We believe that any time a price is put on an article ... that price must not be changed unless it is reduced," he said.

Representatives of the four other chains argued that a pledge to leave shelved goods alone except for price reductions would be unnecessarily complicated, said Mrs. Plumptre.

The results of the closed meetings with the food chain executives—the board's second meeting of any kind since its creation in late May—were published in the review board's first quarterly report, made available immediately after the meeting.

The report also included three recommendations to consumers. One urged consumers not to hoard food as there was no danger of food shortages in Canada, except for those artificially induced by stockpiling.

The board also urged consumers to "shop carefully and compare prices," avoiding convenience foods and buying basic ingredients instead.

Consumers were urged to let the review board know of instances of unreasonable food price increases. Mrs. Plumptre told newsmen that the board has only just acquired a permanent address and that consumers can write the board at Box 1540, Station B, Ottawa.

In its advice to the federal government, the board urged that proposed increases in family allowances be pushed through Parliament as soon as possible.

However, it was not an all-good day for Mrs. Plumptre. In Sydney, N.S., opposition leader Robert Stanfield said "the board serves no useful purpose as it is now constituted, and has no powers and no teeth."

And back in Ottawa, Conservative MP Peter Reilly said he thought Mrs. Plumptre should be fired.

"They've (the food prices board) shown an overwhelming concern for the big boohoos of the food industry and damn little for the people who have to bear the brunt of their avarice."

In his release, Reilly said Mrs. Plumptre "demonstrated she is not fit for the job" by her reported advice to consumers to stop buying food products they thought too expensive.

Rail Strike Almost National

this had been done. The strikes began July 26.

Workers in B.C., Alberta and Yukon-Northwest Territories region walked out at 6 a.m. Friday shortly after 18,000 Quebec non-operating engineers ended a 48-hour strike.

No grain moved into the port of Vancouver during the two previous occasions the west was hit by rotating strikes but there are agreements between the companies and the unions to move grain through picket lines.

However, Marshall Hill, chairman of the union's B.C. joint strike committee, said pickets would not allow any unionists through the lines during this walkout.

He said the tougher stand by B.C. members might create a few problems between provincial and national union leaders "but you've got to stick your foot out once in a while or you'll never learn to walk."

CN and CP spokesmen said they had not planned to move any grain this time.

The rotating rail strike was scheduled to end at 6 a.m. local times today but Hill refused to predict whether it would end quietly and on time.

In Montreal, Richard Smith, chief union negotiator, told reporters the railways have been able to adapt some of their operations around the regional strikes.

Canada Raps France For Greenpeace Tiff

OTTAWA (CP) — The action of the French navy in boarding the Canadian vessel Greenpeace III against the wishes of the crew is a clear violation of international law, a spokesman in the external affairs department said Friday.

He said the condemnation was based on the facts as presented to a Canadian embassy official by the French foreign ministry in Paris.

According to French reports, David McTaggart, skipper of the Greenpeace III protesting the French nuclear testing in the South Pacific, was injured this week when he resisted French sailors trying to impound his vessel.

He apparently is in good condition in a French military hospital at Papeete, Tahiti, with an eye injury.

The spokesman said the external affairs department regards the French move to appropriate "vast areas of the high seas for their own use constitutes a grave peril" for those wishing to use the area during the nuclear testing.

The Vancouver skipper was injured Wednesday when he slipped on the deck of either the Greenpeace or the French naval vessel La Dunkirk Qouise during a scuffle.

The three other crew members of the Greenpeace were taken to a military airbase at Hoa Island, about 50 miles from Papette, while the yacht was towed to Mururoa Lagoon.

Apparently the Canadian yacht was boarded inside the security zone that France has declared around the atoll where the tests are being conducted.

The crew of the Greenpeace are identified as New Zealanders Anne Marie Horn and Marie Lornie and a man believed to be Nigel Ingram of Britain.

They are expected to be held by the French until the test series ends.

Missing Planes Found in North

EDMONTON (CP) — The second of two light aircraft missing in the far north was found Friday and searchers also located two more airplanes that were missing since Wednesday evening.

A Panarctic Oils Ltd. twin-Otter that was missing since early Wednesday on Ellesmere Island was spotted visually after rescue aircraft labored through stormy weather for two days.

The aircraft had been making one-way radio transmissions which indicated it made a safe emergency landing during icing conditions when it ran low on fuel.

A helicopter was being sent to rescue the pilot, co-pilot and passenger.

Earlier, a twin-Otter owned by Kenting-Atlas Aviation was spotted, also on Ellesmere Island about 700 miles from the North Pole, and the pilot and passenger were flown to Eureka weather station.

The third aircraft to go down was a single-engine Otter in the region of Hadley Bay on Victoria Island, about 1,600 miles north of Winnipeg.

A Norseman aircraft set out to look for the Otter that evening and neither were heard from until they were located Friday.

Husband Posted Reward, Charged with Murder

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Wealthy Toronto builder Peter Demeter, 40, who offered a $10,000 reward after he found his wife, Christine, beaten to death July 18, was charged Friday with non-capital murder.

Mississauga police, who arrested Demeter at his $100,000 suburban home, said they are continuing their investigation into the involvement of "another party or parties in the case."

Demeter, who is owner and president of Eden Gardens Custom Builders of Toronto, appeared in provincial court and was remanded without bail to Wednesday.

Christine Demeter, a 33-year-old former European fashion model, was vice-president of her husband's building company.

Her body was found in a pool of blood in the couple's garage when Demeter returned from a shopping trip in nearby Toronto.

He was carrying a locket which he told police was a present for her birthday — to have been celebrated eight days after her death. The couple's daughter Andrea, 3, was found unharmed in the house.

Police said Demeter left the house several hours before the slaying accompanied by Dr. Sybit Brewer of Hartford, Conn., and three teen-age girls from Germany who were staying at the Demeter home.

There was no sign of a break-in, police said, although neighbors had reported a number of break-ins in the area in the last year.

Mississauga police chief Douglas Burrows said no weapon was found. An autopsy showed the woman died of skull fractures from several blows to the head.

Police investigate "thousands of possible links" in cities in Canada, the United States and Europe in connection with the case, said Chief Burrows.

Mrs. Demeter, a native of Innsbruck, Austria, met her husband in Vienna in 1967 and they were married in Toronto that year. In 1968 she resumed her modelling career.

RCMP Admits Some Officers 'Unprofessional'

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Inspector Robert Heywood, head of the North Vancouver RCMP detachment, admitted Friday that some of his officers were guilty of "unprofessional conduct" after breaking up a fight at a dance in July.

Insp. Heywood was referring to the fact that 16 persons arrested were doused with water from a fire hose while lodged in the North Vancouver cells.

Following an investigation into the matter, Insp. Heywood said he has talked to all members of the detachment and is satisfied that such an incident will not occur again.

He said the hose was used because some of the prisoners began urinating in the cell and others were spitting at police guards.

However, he added, the officers were subjected to considerable abuse and he does not consider any further action is necessary.

Allegations that officers used excessive force at the dance were unfounded, he said. Officers met with strong resistance and some had bottles thrown at them.

He said none of the persons arrested were injured except that one had minor facial abrasions and it was not established that these were caused by any of the officers.

Insp. Heywood said he will be submitting his findings to RCMP headquarters in Victoria and it will be up to superiors and the attorney-general to decide whether disciplinary action is justified.

RICHARD BOWER — Publisher and Editor-in-Chief

Mr. Barrett's Dilemma

NEVER IN WARTIME were enemy agents able to sabotage Canada's economy and disrupt its transportation as have the unions involved in the current strikes.

The walk-out of unlicensed workers on the government's ferry fleet, the simultaneous stoppage of Canadian Pacific gulf services as part of the railways' rotating regional stoppages, halting all freight movement beyond the Rockies, may not be related but their conjunction makes the public inconvenience the more painful.

The timing of these labor strategies suggests they are contrived to effect the greatest possible impact through embarrassment and loss for the services and public involved.

The strike of the Seafarers' International Union against Canadian Pacific Coast Steamships in 1958 set the pattern. It was called at the height of British Columbia's centennial celebrations when Princess Margaret, as Her Majesty's representative, was a guest. It was this walkout, and the complications which followed it, that decided the government of the day to create a publicly-owned ferry fleet.

The new service, as then-Premier W. A. C. Bennett said, "would not be subject to the whim of union policy . . ."

In the settlement of the only previous dispute since formation of the publicly-owned fleet, the parties agreed that through a grievance board any future differences would be settled without recourse to strike.

Transport Minister Robert Strachan has been unable to persuade the unions involved to respect that undertaking. The strike is therefore in violation of an agreement entered into with solemn assurances.

That is bad enough. But the effect on British Columbia's future as a tourist attraction, in which Vancouver Island and the islands in adjacent waters play so important a part, is bound to be serious.

Thousands have had to curtail their visits, thousands will have been dissuaded from coming off the mainland, and thousands more are still stranded here, with limited escape facilities only available when the Canadian Pacific ferries are able to operate with the end of the rotating strike. They will not quickly forget this experience, and until it is forgotten the widespread services which thrive on tourism will feel the consequences.

There is the additional problem of essential supplies for the Gulf Islandse and Vancouver Island as well. A prolonged strike — anything more than a few days in duration — will add to the pressure on prices, already distressingly high.

Premier David Barrett has so far held aloof from negotiations in the ferry dispute. "Mr. Strachan is dealing with the ferry problem," he has insisted with frivolous repetition. But Mr. Strachan is doing no such thing. His best efforts — and he will be credited with trying — have been unavailing.

Mr. Barrett, understandably, does not want to damage his own political image as the champion of labor or do anything to erode the power base of his party. But he is the leader of the government. He is the man with ultimate responsibility in this critical situation, not Mr. Strachan.

Mr. Barrett has got to decide whether to submit to blackmail by strike or act in the public interest to resist demands the ferry authority holds unreasonable, and at the same time re-establish what all must agree is an essential service. He is not going to be able to please everybody.

Otto Lang's Poor Guess

AFTER HE ANNOUNCED a new wheat price policy a month ago, the federal minister responsible for the Canadian Wheat Board, Otto Lang, "guessed" in an interview that it would mean that the cost of a loaf of bread would rise by about a cent this fall. To give him his due he also said that the eventual cost increase would depend on many factors including the other ingredients. Even so, for a man in his position he has proved a spectacularly poor guesser. The baking industry's estimate of the minimum increase in store is six cents a loaf in September, or around 20 per cent.

Does this mean that someone is gouging? The federal Food Prices Review Board is making an intensive study of the industry, but its findings are not expected to be available until after next month. But in the meantime, the Bakery Council of Canada has given the bakers' side of the story.

The costs of flour, due to wheat price increases, have continued to escalate since Mr. Lang's announcement, the council says, and between the announcement and Aug. 1 the price of flour increased by $2.80 for 100 pounds. One hundred pounds of flour being needed to make 100 24-ounce loaves of bread, the required increase in the price of a loaf on account of flour alone was thus 2.8 cents at the beginning of this month.

(When Mr. Lang thought bread would go up one cent, John Diefenbaker forecast a rise of three cents, which seems to show who knows his wheat.)

But then, the council notes, there are other costs in producing and marketing bread. It lists these other bakery cost increases: other ingredients up .8 cents, packaging up .1 cent, plant labor up .3 cents, for a total of 1.2 cents a loaf which added to the higher cost of flour brings the rise in the cost of bread at the bakery door to four cents.

To recover a direct cost increase of four cents at the bakery, the council maintains, a wholesale price increase of at least six cents is needed "because of attendant sales commission increases, distribution cost increases (gasoline, trucks, etc.) and other factors over which bakers have little or no control."

In other words, the Prices Review Board may be able to find where some minor savings in the cost of bread could be achieved but also may come to the sad conclusion that without widespread controls of prices and wages, bread costs must rise with everything else.

What of the Future?

Pattern of Diplomacy

By JOSEPH C. HARSCH

The old familiar cold war world is coming down.

The State Department in Washington has issued visas for a delegation of North Korean observers to come to the United Nations in New York. No North Koreans were ever allowed to come to New York before. And formal talks have been opened by Washington with the East Germans over the establishment of embassies in the two countries.

This is the immediate meaning of detente—North Koreans at the UN and an East German embassy in Washington. There will also be an American embassy in East Germany.

But what of long range meaning of detente?

The recognition of East Germany by the United States, by West Germany, and by the rest of Western Europe, is a momentous fact. It is part of the larger fact that the West has given Russia one thing which the Russians have wanted ever since the end of the Second World War. The West has accepted, at long last, the control by men of the Kremlin of everything lying between the Pripet marshes and the river Elbe. Another way of saying it is that the West has finally ratified the Yalta Agreements.

Those Yalta Agreements were the most controversial feature of the Second World War settlement. In effect, they recognized that the Kremlin was in effective control of those parts of Europe from which the German armies had been expelled by Russian troops. It meant that many a great city of classic Europe—Warsaw, Prague, Belgrade, Budapest, and, above all, Berlin—had been severed from its normal relations with the West and been chained to Russia. Winston Churchill's phrasing was that an iron curtain had been rung down "from Stettin to Trieste."

The cold war was about many things, but more than anything else about whether Moscow should indeed continue to be in control of all those great cities of old Europe which lie behind the line which runs "from Stettin to Trieste." The West was most reluctant to accept a condition which severed the ties between Western and Eastern Europe. For a quarter of a century after the West held back from ratifying the Yalta Agreements, a cold war seemed preferable. It kept open the possibility of liberation for the peoples of Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania, and Bulgaria.

Well. The liberation did not come. The decisive moment came when Russian tanks moved into Prague and ended Czechoslovakia's bid for freedom. The West never lifted a finger to try to halt those Russian tanks. Resistance was crushed out among the Czechoslovaks.

So now we have detente, which means ratification of Yalta. And that in turn means that Moscow is now in undisputed control over all that lies behind the old iron curtain.

But what comes later? Is the Kremlin satisfied? Is it enough for their sense of security to know that the West no longer challenges their control over Eastern Europe? Or do they want more?

No one in the foreign offices of the West seriously thinks any more that the Kremlin has military designs on Western Europe, or even wants to obtain control over it through Communist governments. But there is a deep anxiety about another possible development.

If Western Europe remains disunited, and becomes estranged from the United States, and American troops go home, Moscow will be in effect in control of Western Europe without having to move a soldier or ferment a revolution.

The unity of Western Europe and the continued association between that unity and the United States is the crucial thing. Can there be further progress to warm European unity? Will Europe as it grows more united (if it does) retain cordial and co-operative relations with the United States?

These are the great questions troubling Western diplomats and statesmen these days. And the most troubling fact of all is that no one can be entirely sure that the right answers are coming up.

This is just one reason why among Western diplomats there is a hope that Washington will find a way out of Watergate soon so that firm leadership will again be available for tackling the problems of improving the unity of the West.

'An Artistic Ripoff'

By RICHARD JACKSON, Colonist Ottawa Bureau

Ralph Stewart, Liberal MP for the Northern Ontario riding of Cochrane, is no ordinary back bench parliamentarian.

He is chairman of the Commons Committee on Broadcasting, Films and Assistance to the Arts.

He also is a member of the arts community, having been, for many years, a conductor of orchestras and choral groups.

So when he speaks of art, as chairman of the parliamentary committee on the arts, he commands a respectful hearing.

And he is saying that the federal government, in spending a current $4 million on art to ornament its new buildings, is being subjected to what he calls "An artistic ripoff."

Contending that much of the $4 million is being spent on what he describes as "welded junk and metal scrap," he charges that those commissioning and approving it are afraid to condemn or reject it "for fear of being considered 'not with it' artistically."

He focuses his critical attention on two outstanding — in the sense, he notes of size and ugliness — of two of the national capital's more talked-about objects of federal art.

One is, as he describes it, "that huge piece of blue metal," on the steps of the new $30 million External Affairs Building.

By Public Works rule of thumb — 1 per cent of the cost of a new building goes into its ornamentation with art, he says — that big chunk of blue metal was only one of a half dozen pieces costing a total $300,000.

Speaking as chairman of the Commons Committee on the Arts, he says the best thing to do with the "metal monstrosity," as he calls it, is to remove it; and the next best thing, to drape it.

He says nothing of the other works . . . among them a pair of murals, consisting of a series of ceramic shirts and ties costing $18,000 . . . another, resembling a water ski jump, priced at $15,000 . . . a third, a 20-foot tapestry, at $18,000, which, when hung was six inches too long . . . a $12,000 five-piece abstract mural . . . and an $8,000 10-foot high human figure made of stones that already has been overturned twice either by the wind or vandals.

But Ralph Stewart does have plenty to say about "a famous sculpture," as he calls it, in the park near the National Arts Centre.

He describes it, as many others do, as "resembling nothing so much as a huge purple bowel." It "cost a great deal of money," he suspects, and the reason authorities accepted it and still keep the price secret is fear "one, of being considered not sufficiently avant-garde; and two, of public rage at the waste of money."

As chairman, he had his Commons committee probe the process of commissioning these federal works of non-art, as he sees them.

The committee was investigating charges that the system favors a chosen few, while ignoring "other and more talented artists."

It found that a small federal "jury" on art, headed by an executive of Public Works, usually commissions each piece, and usually without competition, almost routinely on the recommendation of the architect of the building.

Public funds are being spent on these works, he notes as Arts Committee chairman, "and so they should, in fact, must, be commissioned to suit the greatest number of the taxpayers.

"A norm in what's art and what isn't must be established so the kook and the oddball can be denied the opportunity of making a fool of the government, wasting the taxpayers' money and infuriating the public.

"The so-called avant-garde artist very often is nothing more than a big put-on who takes advantage of those in official federal positions who do not really know the difference between art and junk.

"Very often those who approve these projects are afraid to express their true opinion in fear of being seen as 'not knowing where it's at.'

"The taxpayers get stuck for this stuff and they should at least have the right to know what it is they are looking at."

To underline this very point, when the late Allan Jarvis was director of the National Gallery, thrown together in glue was a mess of bottle tops, matches, pieces of coal, string and other odds and ends, which, entered as a "masterpiece" in an avant-garde art exhibition, won top honors.

Winter Olympics

Time for Ottawa to Step In

From The Calgary Herald

Vancouver's growing push to stage the 1980 Winter Olympics deserves to be put in some rational perspective before it proceeds much further.

For openers, the federal government should give a plain-spoken declaration that it will have no part in the financing of these games if Vancouver is successful in its bid. Ottawa must at all costs avoid the equivocation that has placed it in such an embarrassing position regarding the 1976 Summer Olympics in Montreal.

At this stage, according to the latest federal government estimates, the Montreal games will run up a deficit of $172 million, a figure that is probably a good deal closer to the truth than Mayor Jean Drapeau's unrealistic insistence that the games will operate on a break-even budget.

It's inconceivable that such an extravagant festival will end without some bills finding their way to the Canadian taxpayers. But the Olympic Organizing Committee has done a clever job of fending off those seeking answers on the financing methods until it's too late to halt the preparations.

The glib claims and uncertainty coming out of Montreal should convince the federal government to take a bold, if unpopular, stand against Vancouver's application; its silence at this time could rebound quite nastily at a later date.

A statement that British Columbia would have to pay entirely for the costs of the 1980 Winter Olympics might produce the same response from the people of that province as did the news that Denver had been awarded the 1976 Winter Olympics. When the voters of Colorado were given their chance they turned down a public referendum to finance the games, which were then awarded to Innsbruck, Austria.

There is also the possibility that the International Olympic Committee will intervene. Many members of the IOC would happily drop the Winter Olympics altogether because of clear violations of amateurism, mostly among Alpine skiers.

Unrelenting opposition to commercialism among Olympic competitors was sustained for years by the former IOC czar, Avery Brundage. His successor as IOC president, Lord Killanin has indicated that the future of the Winter Olympics may hinge on events in 1976 and is expected to submit recommendations for the Games at an Olympic congress this October.

With the event in such jeopardy it seems pointless even for Vancouver to engage in the costly business of publicizing its bid.

Clean Air Act On Centre Stage

By MARGUERITE SULLIVAN from Washington

The controversial 1970 Clean Air Act, whose anti-smog standards could drastically reduce use of the automobile by 1977, is under fire.

But the act, with its resulting restrictions on driving in 36 cities, is not necessarily in trouble.

It is being reviewed by both the House and the Senate. Top in its re-evaluation is a $500,000 study contracted with the National Academy of Sciences by the Senate.

What will result from the study is information on how the act affects the life, lung and pocketbook of America.

But those involved with the evaluation won't say it will necessarily lead to a weakening of the act.

Key to the review is whether Congress put too high a priority on clean air while overlooking social and economic disruptions that might result.

In addition to the study, both the House and Senate expect to hold hearings this fall on the impact of the transportation controls on the country.

The federal Environmental Protection Agency, which promulgated the stringent transportation standards, is also doing its own review for Congress on which strategies it finds "unreasonable" to meet.

Yet as the legislation is being picked apart by scientists and congressmen, EPA is still going ahead with its stringent traffic cutbacks, which go into effect between mid-1975 and mid-1977.

The most far-reaching scrutiny of the act, which will come from the National Academy of Science study, was triggered by fierce commuter complaints to the driving restrictions; challenges by the automobile industry to the air pollution data supporting the act; and a significant turnover in membership of the Senate Public Works Committee, which authorized the act three years ago.

In calling for the study on the Senate floor June 29, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, who steered the act through the Senate three years ago without a dissenting vote, said his subcommittee was "not satisfied with the achievements of that law and the Congress cannot afford to be."

"As new information is developed the Congress has a responsibility to continue to evaluate the assumptions on which the Clean Air Act was based and to consider modifications reflecting changes in those assumptions," he said.

The academy study will open a whole Pandora's box of questions in its review: will people get sick if the air is allowed to get dirtier than the 1970 Clean Air Act allows; if so, how many and how sick would they be? How much will it cost cities, industries and consumers if the clean air rules are not eased?

What would be the dollar savings if the rules were relaxed? What will be the impact of putting parts of cities off limits to private cars to preserve the air? And just how much of the air pollution has been caused by the automobile?

The House subcommittee on Public Health and the Environment will begin two weeks of hearings on Oct. 11 on the standards and EPA's transportation controls.

Muskie's subcommittee also expects to hold hearings both in Washington and in the cities most affected by the legislation early this fall but may wait until Oct. 15 when EPA's transportation plans are finalized and the agency tells Congress which proposals are too drastic.

Deadline for EPA proposals was Aug. 15 but was extended recently until Oct. 15 to allow for public hearings around the nation and time to revise the plans.

Althouth EPA has already said at least 10 of the initial proposals are too severe, it will promulgate final plans before it says which ones are unreasonable. "But we have already said we are going to Congress with the Los Angeles plan," said Marlon Fitzwater, an EPA spokesman.

EPA's preliminary plans, announced during the last two months, range from simple requirements of inspecting engines yearly to restrictions on curb parking, a ban on certain kinds of motorcycles, a daily tax on private parking spaces, gasoline rationing, and limits on new parking lots.

The Clean Air Act came about in 1970 when Congress attacked air pollution by setting limits on the total amounts of six pollutants that could be in the air at any given time and by ordering automobile emissions rolled back to 90 per cent of the levels existing in 1970.

★ ★ ★

Armed with this legislation, EPA made its driving restrictions.

Whatever comes out of the study and hearings, said Don Alexander of the Senate subcommittee majority staff, "there will be a broader knowledge than before."

"The subcommittee felt there were vast implications by the decisions they were making and they felt it necessary to be as up to date as possible about the right decision," he said.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

David Bensusan-Butt made his report to the British government on the success of the RAF bomber command 32 years ago today — 1941. He discovered only one-third of those bombers claiming success bombed within five miles of their target, and one-tenth for heavily-defended targets. For example, Britain claimed two successful raids on Dresden in 1940, but Germany reported not one bomb fell on the city.

This led to improved navigation and training and the foundation of the pathfinder system for marking bomb targets.

1963 — James J. Meredith became the first Negro to graduate from the University of Mississippi.

1947 — A naval torpedo factory blew up at Cadiz, Spain, killing 168 and injuring 4,000.

1939 — Germany seized Slovakia.

1938 — Prime Minister Mackenzie King and President Franklin Roosevelt of the United States opened the Thousand Islands International Bridge.

1893 — Canadian composer-conductor Sir Ernest MacMillan was born.

'Helluva Cute Kid' Veteran Housebreaker

MIAMI (AP) — Police say a seven-year-old boy has admitted breaking into 21 homes and hauling off as much as $1,600 worth of goods.

The three-foot-six child began crying when arrested Thursday and said he sold most of the loot to get money for hot dogs and ice cream, police reported.

"It breaks my heart, man, I tell you," said Detective Phil Cowart. "He's a helluva cute kid. I felt sorry for him."

Cowart said he first suspected a child in the six-week string of break-ins because of the small windows the burglar climbed through and the nature of the loot taken.

Police said the boy at first took just small change, toys and fishing gear but became more sophisticated after older youths told him to look for more expensive items.

The haul for each of the last three or four burglaries amounted to $300 to $400 in watches, jewelry and portable radios, police said. But police said the boy sold the items for just a few dollars.

The boy's name was not released. Police said his parents are separated and apparently live in New York, leaving him to live with his grandmother here.

The neighborhood ice cream vendor said the boy was "a big spender," Cowart said.

Police recommended counselling and have decided not to prosecute the boy.

Andrea Doria Hulk 'a Death Trap'

FAIRHAVEN, Mass. (AP) — Treasure-hunting divers who spent $250,000 searching for treasure on the sunken luxury liner Andre Doria recovered "nothing of real value," a spokesman said Friday.

Two divers who spent eight days under water found the inside of the sunken hull a tangle of rubble after it had lain on the ocean bottom 17 years.

The salvage expedition had hoped to recover up to $4 million in cash and jewels estimated to be aboard the liner.

"It was a death trap," said Shiela Grattan, a spokesman for the mission after the divers' underwater habitat was towed to Fairhaven.

"All they got was four silver plates and a crystal bottle of perfume."

However, she said divers considered the mission to be a success because it proved the feasibility of saturation diving, the method used by the two divers when they lived under water day and night in a pressurized compartment, instead of making time-consuming trips to and from the surface.

The two divers who did most of the underwater work, Chris Delucchi, 22, and Donald Rodocker, 27, remained inside their pressurized compartment when it was towed back to port by the support vessel Narragansett.

A spokesman said they have to remain inside until the habitat is gradually decompressed.

One of the project's investors, Foster Herman, a New Bedford lawyer, said "a quarter million dollars in time, research, development and money," were spent.

"As far as we are concerned, the salvage operation was only part of the mission," he said. "The major part was to prove saturation diving is here to stay. We've certainly proven that."

The Andrea Doria sank July 25, 1956, after being involved in a collision with the Swedish liner Stockholm about 40 miles off Nantucket. Several unsuccessful salvage attempts have been made through the years.

Mao's Health Slips, Party Battle Looms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mao Tse-tung is in deteriorating health as radical supporters and rival moderates manoeuvre for a coming battle over control of the Chinese Communist party, U.S. intelligence reports say.

Intelligence accounts say Mao, 79, the party chairman, has suffered memory blackouts and deeply suspects those around him. He is said to be under the care of seven doctors.

Chiang Ching, his wife, is said to be leading the radicals in the fight for dominance of the new central committee and politburo, which will rule the Chinese Communist party in years ahead.

U.S. intelligence analysts say the 10th congress of the Chinese Communist party will see a battle by Mao's leftist supporters to halt their gradual loss of power to the moderates usually associated with Premier Chou En-lai.

U.S. Warns:

Attack, We'll Be Back

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary James Schlesinger said Friday that President Nixon probably could get congressional and popular support to resume bombing if North Vietnam launched a new all-out military push against the south.

Such a move, Schlesinger said, would be viewed in the United States as a gross violation of the Vietnam peace agreement negotiated last winter. He added: "It would be ill-advised of Hanoi to make a misjudgment in that regard."

A warning to this effect was given North Vietnam by Nixon after the U.S. bombing of Cambodia was ended Wednesday.

Schlesinger told a news conference it appears likely that Hanoi intends to stick by the agreement at least by refraining from a new massive attack against Saigon's forces.

But he said the cutoff of all U.S. bombing was "an erosion" of the U.S. position that could lead the North Vietnamese to think they had a "free ride" for such a move.

"That is an erroneous inference and we want to make it clear that it would be a mistaken inference," Schlesinger said.

Schlesinger said talks are continuing with Thailand toward reduction of U.S. forces still in that country and American military interest is now certain to shift to other areas, notably the NATO commitment.

Experts Couldn't Tell Tapes Were Edited

TORONTO (CP) — Tape-recording experts in Britain, Canada and the United States say alterations in tape are undetectable and any changes to President Nixon's tapes may not be spotted if they are released to the United States Senate Watergate committee.

This consensus was compiled by CBC-Radio staff for broadcast today in a one-hour segment of As It Happens, starting at 7 p.m. local times across Canada.

CBC technicians tested the ability of the experts to detect several dozen changes in copies of a 30-minute tape containing conversations, interviews and a 20-note melody segment prepared in Toronto studios.

In some cases those tested, who included recording engineers, electronics experts and David Cassidy, head of the Columbia School of Broadcasting in New York, imagined they heard edits where none existed, the program shows.

They failed to detect many of the alterations although all were made by simple cuttings with a razor blade and splicing tape or on CBC equipment without the use of sophisticated electronic devices.

And despite the experts' contention that they were listening to content to catch changes in meaning, none recognized an alteration in an interview on a current Ontario legislature inquiry which changed a speaker's reply to a vital question from "no" to "yes."

Most experts tried to detect the alterations by replaying the tapes at normal or reduced speeds. However, at least one used an oscilloscope to trace wave patterns, but with little success.

Max Allen, story editor for the radio show, said opinion on the legal implications of the undetectable alterations is perhaps more interesting than the results of the detective work.

He interviewed Hugh Ford, consultant to London police taped evidence, who said taped evidence submitted in court is "very unreliable."

Ford said edits are detectable by the human ear which are not detectable by other means and the addition of background sounds can successfully mask alterations.

Should Tapes Be Released?

'President Must Decide'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's lawyers argued Friday that he, not the courts or the grand jury, must decide if "access to every possible bit of evidence" in the Watergate case is more important than preserving the confidentiality of his conversations.

"This notion that the extraction of the last ounce of flesh by the criminal process is the highest and most important purpose of government, and that the courts have the power to impose this goal on the chief executive . . . is not the law," the White House brief said.

The 17-page brief was the final written argument and set the stage for the courtroom debate scheduled for Wednesday.

The Nixon brief was a response to the argument filed Monday by Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox in support of his request for a court order directing the president to give the White House tapes to the grand jury.

Cox had argued that it is up to the courts to decide if Nixon had any justification to withhold the tapes. He said the president "like the humblest citizen" has a duty to give the grand jury material evidence in a criminal investigation.

Farm Laborers Mourn Deaths

DELANO, Calif. (Reuter) — More than 7,500 members of Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers union, wearing black arm bands and waving black flags, marched five miles Friday to protest mounting deaths and violence in the grape-industry strike.

They took part in the funeral of a striking union member who died in a scuffle with a police officer outside a tavern near here Tuesday under circumstances which are the subject of dispute.

As strikers were gathering for the funeral march, the first death on the picket lines became known. A United Farm workers member was shot by a non-union work crew as it was leaving a vineyard south of Bakersfield late Thursday.

Police arrested two non-union farm workers.

Chavez was in Washington, where he appealed for an FBI team to be sent to the strike area to investigate the mounting violence.

He said he would suggest to his union that picketing be called off while an investigation is held into "violence by police, the growers and their private guards and scab workers."

Canadians 'Eyed' for Ulster

BARNSTAPLE, England (CP) — Liberal Leader Jeremy Thorpe says Canadian troops, forming part of an international peacekeeping force, may become essential to restore order in Northern Ireland.

"This would be an admission that we in Britain weren't able to put our own house in order," Thorpe said in an interview.

"But I would hope we'd be big enough to accept that."

If present trends in Ulster continue, he said, and the British Army becomes completely alienated from both Protestants and Roman Catholics a United Nations peacekeeping force would likely be the only body which could hope to stabilize the situation.

Thorpe
. . . 'great record'

Thorpe, riding the strongest wave of support for his tiny Liberal party in years, added: "If such a force does become necessary, I believe Canada, because of its great record in this kind of thing, should have a major part."

In Ottawa, external affairs department declined comment on the suggestion.

Opinion polls show that popular support for the Liberals, who have won four byelections in Conservative and Labor strongholds in the last nine months, rose this month to about 36 per cent of the electorate from about 15 per cent in previous years.

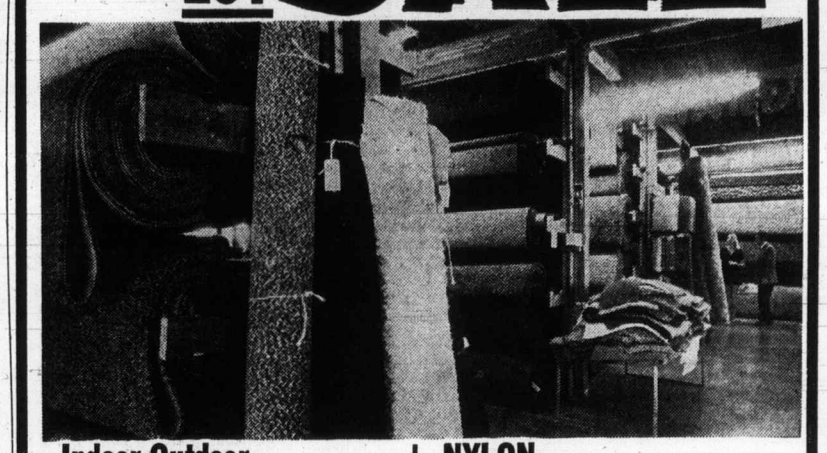

Interviewed at his constituency headquaters in this north Devon market town, Thorpe confidently predicted his party will increase its parliamentary strength significantly in the next general election, expected in 1974.

"I was saying six months ago that we might get 30 or 40 seats, compared with our present 10, but now I honestly believe the sky is the limit — certainly 40 seats is far too low an estimate."

Increasingly, observers here are making similar preditcions. A fairly large number believe the Liberals may hold the balance of power after the general election.

Thorpe was a close friend of Canadian Finance Minister John Turner when they were students at Oxford.

Not Much Movement

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market eked out a gain in moderate trading Friday, but price movements were generally small.

Trading in shares of Canadian Manoir Industries was halted at 11 a.m. for about two hours, pending the disclosure that the company has bought W. H. Olsen Manufacturing Co. Ltd. of Tilbury, Ont., for an undisclosed amount. Canadian Manoir was off 15 cents to $3.75.

Texasgulf was up ⅝ to $25¼. The Canada Development Corp. has again extended its offer of $29 a share for 10 million shares until Aug. 24. The offer was to expire at the close Friday.

Brenda Mines, which reported first-half profit of $4.5 million against a loss of $922,000 a year ago, was up 25 cents to $7.60. Class A shares of Noranda Mines, which has a 50-per-cent interest in Brenda, were unchanged at $51¾.

Rothmans reported higher profit for the year ended June 30 and declared a dividend of 12.5 cents on common shares, the first paid since 1970. Rothman's common shares rose 1¾ to $15, the second preferred shares 1¼ to $18¼ and the warrants 70 cents to $3.85.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Soaring interest rates and inflation continued to dominate market psychology Friday as stock prices drifted in listless trading.

Alan Poole of Laidlaw Coggeshall Inc. said the market appeared to be getting some support as it drifts near the year low.

"We're in a critical testing area," said Poole, who predicted a bottoming out and possibly a short-term rally soon.

TraveLodge International, up 4 to $11½, was the NYSE volume leader after an English firm made an offer for all outstanding shares.

Other leaders included the farm-related issues of Deere Co., up 1⅝ to $53⅜, Newhall Land and Farming, unchanged at $8⅜; International Harvester, up 1⅞ to $33⅞ and Allis Chalmers, up 1⅝ to $11½.

Analysts said investors believe the farm-related companies will do well as the need for more farm production grows in the light of predicted world-wide food shortages.

The NYSE broad-based index of 1,500 common stocks was up .01 at 54.58.

Texasgulf Hearing

Hampson Denies Conspiracy, Fraud

HOUSTON, Tex. (CP) — H. Anthony Hampson, president and executive director of Canada Development Corp. (CDC), took the witness stand Friday afternoon and denied allegations of conspiracy and fraud levelled at his company in a federal suit brought by Texasgulf Inc.

Hampson testified that a tentative agreement between Canada Development and Noranda Mines Ltd. to make a joint tender offer for Texasgulf stock was terminated before the CDC offer was made.

Canada Development made its public tender offer of $29 a share for 10 million shares of Texasgulf stock July 24.

He said the reason for bidding for Texasgulf was that Canada Development is looking for a suitable vehicle to get into the mining industry.

Rather than buy a small company or being on its own, he said, the CDC board felt it would be more productive to invest in a firm with existing holdings, assets and technology.

He said Texasgulf was eventually selected from a list of about 20 mining companies.

Hampson said he not only denied but also resented the allegations made by Texasgulf in its attempt to block the shares purchase.

The hearing, for a preliminary injunction against CDC from completing its offer, will enter its third week Monday.

The injunction is sought by Texasgulf which claims the tender offer did not disclose all that is required by the United States Security and Exchange Commission.

The suit alleges the CDC conspired with Noranda Mines to acquire control of the company and later to spin off its non-Canadian assets.

The case has drawn international attention because it pits a private U.S. corporation against a corporation owned by the Canadian government.

Earlier Friday, Gene Woodfin, the stock dealer who handled the CDC tender offer, maintained under cross-examination that CDC had no behind-the-scenes partner.

"There is no partner and there was no partner," Woodfin told William Harvin, lawyer for Texasgulf.

Woodfin acknowledged his company, Loeb-Rhoades, would earn about $650,000 if the CDC tender is accepted, but that the figure would drop to $75,000 if it failed.

Woodfin maintained that CDC's purchase is an investment rather than an attempt to take control of Texasgulf.

He said he doubted that the 35 per cent of stock CDC would own — if the tender offer is successful — would give it control, especially if it could not work with the existing management.

Woodfin described pending legislation in the U.S. Congress as "nonsense and provincial" if it attempts to control foreign investment in U.S. firms.

Another Week

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada Development Corp. extended Friday its offer to buy control of Texasgulf Corp. from its United States stockholders if it can win its fight in American courts to take over the big natural resources firm.

It was the government-owned CDC's second one-week extension of its offer to buy at least 10 million shares at $29 a share. The latest extension is to 5 p.m. Aug. 24, and CDC indicated it could extend its offer again beyond that time.

Mrs. Munz Holds Most

HOUSTON (UPI) — Time Inc. Friday acquired a huge east Texas lumber and forest products combine in a stock transaction which made an 84-year-old Texas woman the largest shareholder in the communications corporation.

Time vice-president Richard McKeough and Clifford Grum, vice president of Temple Industries of Diboll, Tex., signed the agreement at the Houston offices of the Baker and Botts law firm.

Temple Industries' listing on the New York Stock Exchange was dropped with the close of business Friday.

Stockholders of both companies had approved the transaction during meetings Thursday in Houston and Diboll, Tex., Temple's headquarters. The agreement called for an exchange of a share of Time stock for each two shares of Temple's 6.2 million shares outstanding.

The transaction made Mrs. Georgie Munz, 84, the largest shareholder in Time, with 4.2 per cent or 439,000 shares. The previous largest shareholder, with 2.5 per cent, was Roy Larsen, a long-time co-worker of the late Henry Luce, founder of Time.

The Time stock of Mrs. Munz, company chairman Arthur Temple and several other associates amount to 15 per cent of the company's shares, making them a formidable force in the communications field.

Time Inc. acquired Temple's 400,000 acres of southern pine timberland in east and south Texas. Time already owned 585,000 acres adjacent to the Temple holdings, and the combined holdings are half again as large as the state of Rhode Island.

Crown Ups Price

VANCOUVER (CP) — Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. said Friday it has increased its price for newsprint in British Columbia and Alberta by $10 a ton.

The increase is effective Aug. 20 in the two provinces, which constitute the company's Canadian market area, and also applies to all newsprint shipped to the United States where it is marketed by Crown Zellerbach Corp. of San Francisco.

The new price for standard newsprint rolls will be $174 a ton on Vancouver Island and the B.C. Lower Mainland and $176 a ton in the B.C. Interior and Alberta.

Robert Rogers, president of Crown Zellerbach Canada, said that although the company is enjoying a generally profitable year the newsprint segment of its business is contributing only slightly to the performance.

'Spray' Wins Day

HULL, Que. (CP) — The economic axe has falled on a Canadian business more than 100 years old.

Walters Axe Co. Ltd., the last axe-maker in the country, is no more.

"The reasons for closing were all economic," said former vice-presdient Elliot Levitan. "We couldn't compete with imports (mainly from China, Germany and Sweden)."

During the company's peak year the advertising motto was:

"The tides may ebb and flow, but the lash of competitor's spray will never wash the name away — Walters Black Diamond Axe."

Don't Call

The girl at 385-4437 won't answer her telephone anymore. Richardson Securities has discontinued its quotations answering service which has been active since the busy stock market days of 1969.

Victoria manager Bert Kennedy said Friday that the service was originally started as a stop-gap measure but now it was felt that such calls could be passed on to the customers' men as they were in past.

Richardson's was the only city firm to maintain a separate quotations service.

Good Service

By GEORGE GIBSON
Colonist Business Editor

Investors are being well served in a critical economic period, in the opinion of Latham Burns of Toronto, president of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada.

Burns, who met with managers of city investment firms here Thursday, said in an interview Friday:

"The investment dealer today is making a point of bringing to his client's attention that interest rates are extremely high and that these things run in cycles.

"While interest rates could get moderately higher, many investment dealers are advising their clients that this is a good time to take advantage of the high interest rate cycle so far as investing is concerned.

"And, they could also point to the fact that high-quality stocks are selling at price-earnings ratios that are great bargains compared with just a few years ago," he continued.

Burns said that the fact that there were many senior investors here, interested mainly in good quality stocks and bonds, was a point of discussion when he met with local managers.

"These people rely very heavily on the yields of their investments, either in bonds or in stocks, in order to maintain a good standard of living and, as such, the investments industry here serves the retail customer very well," he said.

"And I know, that in talking to a number of them, that they are pointing out that the various bond issues that are coming along today, for example say 9 per cent or better, will allow a person a considerably greater income puting that money to work today at those rates than was available only a year ago."

Burns is president of a large investment firm in Toronto, Burns Brothers and Denton Ltd., which has a branch in Vancouver. He said that the firm is looking at the idea of opening another office in Victoria.

The IDA president, after stating that most of the major firms had representatives here with 50 or 60 customers men on their staffs, added:

"This is an extremely wealthy area so far as the amount of capital to be invested by individuals on this Island is concerned."

Youth, 12, Takes Tyee Class Lead

A 12-year-old boy from Calgary has taken over the lead in the tyee division of the King Fisherman Contest.

Keith Gingerick, 6706 Larch Court, Calgary, landed a 60-pound tyee from the forestry pool, in front of the Fleetwood Motel near Campbell River.

He was using Les Davis Cut Plug and weighed it into the Tyee Marine Fishing Supplies Ltd. Keith's line had tangled and, after letting out the line, was rewinding when the big tyee hit. After a 45 minute battle, he landed the fish at 7:30 p.m.

Dennis Bowler was guiding.

Seventy-five-year-old Charlie Roth, 3017 Shelbourne, was fishing in Beechey Head waters on Wednesday afternoon and caught a 45-pounder. Roth, fishing by himself, hooked into the largest fish he has ever caught at 1 p.m.. It took him 45 minutes to land. He was using Super Strip and no flasher and weighed it into Becher Bay Marina.

PROVINCIAL COURT

When, on Aug. 4, John Glendon Flett, 22, of 804 Esquimalt Road, appeared in Victoria Provincial Court facing a possible prison sentence on the mainland, he asked for a remand so he could be in Victoria near his wife for the birth of an expected child.

Judge William Ostler approved the request, remanding Flett to Friday for sentence.

Flett had pleaded guilty June 20 to a Victoria charge of armed robbery following a holdup at a service station at 2900 Douglas, and on July 25 to a two-count charge of breach of probation.

Friday morning Flett was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary on the first charge, and to three months each, concurrent, on the other.

Friday afternoon, his wife gave birth in Royal Jubilee Hospital to twin sons.

In the same court, William Arthur Conley, of 27-1121 Vancouver, appeared in the morning in a highly excited state, shouting in the courtroom.

No charge was read, but Conley was remanded to the afternoon session to permit examination by a doctor. At that time he was remanded to Sept. 14, with an order that he be sent to the Lower Mainland Regional Correction Centre for treatment of the mental illness testified to by Dr. E. L. McNiven.

Conley was brought to police headquarters Friday morning after being subdued by police who had been called to a car lot on Yates street where a middle-aged man was wielding an axe.

□

Gary Lloyd Heshedahl, 22, of 1283 Astoria, found guilty July 30 following trial on a Victoria charge of possession of known stolen property worth less than $200, was given a seven-month jail term and put on probation for 15 months.

□

Sentence was suspended, with a probation period of one year, for Mae A. Titian, 702 Esquimalt Road, when she appeared Friday for sentence on a charge of assault causing bodily harm.

Judge Ostler made it a condition of probation that she avoid any place selling liquor for four months.

Pressure Parkers

Pickets parading in front of Legislature asking government to intervene in Sandringham Private Hospital dispute say they'll keep up tactic until government acts. "If we don't put on pressure we'll be at the bottom of the priority list when the house meets in mid-September," spokesman Ann Sherbrook, third from left, said. With her are Cheryl Newbery, Emma Reinitz and Lorraine Leeson. Pickets who spoke briefly to Premier Barrett Wednesday said he promised to meet Labor Minister Bill King to discuss issue. Twenty-eight women employees went on strike at Sandringham almost three years ago in attempt to gain first contract with hospital.

LOVER of historic homes, Ann Cameron, 32, of Thornhill, Ont. was accidentally hit by large limb of tree being felled Thursday by wreckers of historic 150-year-old mansion. Miss Cameron was supporting Elizabeth Smith in her fight to preserve home from wreckers.

Tree Limb Raps Home Protector

THORNHILL, Ont. (CP) — A woman trying to help preserve a 150-year-old mansion was injured Thursday when she was struck by a branch from trees being cut by wreckers.

Ann Cameron, 32, is in hospital with head and back injuries, suffered when a sawn branch struck her as she ran across a barricaded property to assist two women occupying Annswell, one of the oldest homes in York County.

Miss Cameron was among 70 supporters who gathered to protest bulldozing of trees on the property, ordered by owner Stephen Baron who is developing the site for construction of 213 town houses.

The historic building was the home of the 19th century faith healer known as Holy Ann Preston, an Irish housekeeper who claimed the discovery of miraculous water in a well on the property. A vigil was being kept inside by Elizabeth Smith, 26, a history teacher, and Jean, 53, her ailing mother.

The two have resisted recent efforts to remove them from the home and are afraid that if they leave it will be bulldozed immediately.

Miss Smith complained to health officials that Baron forced disconnection of water, sewers, hydro and telephones.

William Burns, director of environmental health for York region, inspected the house Thursday and said he will order water turned on and sewage facilities repaired.

More than 50 trees on the 3.7-acre site were felled and bulldozers flattened an outhouse and garden cookhouse.

But the bulldozing was halted late Thursday by the Ontario minister of labor after a visit by safety inspectors.

Shooting Incident

Visitor Charged

In Victoria only one day from his home at Kingcome Inlet, on the B.C. mainland northeast of Port Hardy, 22-year-old Frank Joseph found himself in Victoria Provincial Court Friday charged with two counts of attempted murder.

Joseph, also known as Frederick Paul Vasquez, was remanded to Aug. 24 to set Sept. 7 as the date for a preliminary hearing. Bail was set at two sureties in the sum of $8,000.

The charges followed a shooting incident at about 11:40 p.m. Thursday outside the Century Inn beer parlor on Government Street.

A police report said Larry Howard Caton, 1312 Government, was shot in the shoulder. He was later treated at Victoria General Hospital and released.

Constable Kevin McLaughlin of Victoria police, patrolling nearby, heard three shots. Running toward the beer parlor he saw a man who turned and fired a revolver, twice, at the officer. Both shots missed.

McLaughlin overpowered the man and held him until reinforcements arrived.

Early Friday morning, police had said the revolver contained blanks and had made no mention of the wounded man.

Ex-Con Given Funds

OTTAWA (CP) — A man who was imprisoned for his part in the 1970 kidnap-killing of then Quebec labor minister Pierre Laporte was released at the end of parole in May as a person who would "contribute a lot to society," a National Parole Board spokesman said Friday.

In March, Claude Lariviere, convicted in 1971 to a two-year sentence as an accessory to the abduction and murder, was awarded a $10,000 Canada Council grant to help in a one-year research project on the history of Montreal's St. Henri district.

Mary Louise Lynch, acting chairman of the parole board, said after the board examined Lariviere's file Friday that the man had actually not been granted parole until three months after he was eligible.

He was sentenced to two years, which included a three-month concurrent term for contempt of court in April, 1971. Since a convict is eligible for parole after serving one-third of his sentence, Lariviere was in a position to be paroled in January, 1972.

But he wasn't given a parole until April of that year.

Miss Lynch said Lariviere's file indicated he had "always kept his nose clean" while on parole. He invested in a Montreal pancake house after asking permission to borrow money, attended university and bought a new car, again asking for permission to borrow money.

A Canada Council spokesman said the council didn't investigate Lariviere's background before making the grant and that it was unaware he had a prison record.

He added that Lariviere's application was supported by three prominent Quebecers, an historian, an archivist and an educationist, all of whom said the project was worth doing and that Lariviere was suited to carry it out.

Senator George McIlraith, federal solicitor-general at the time of the 1970 murder, questioned the council's action.

Council members, as trustees of public and private money, are "under obligation to investigate fully" before making grants, McIlraith said.

Hockey Officials Scoff At Scathing Criticism

Canadian Press

The words were different but the thoughts were all the same Friday when amateur hockey officials heard of an Alberta government report that essentially called them slavemasters.

They did not like it.

Jack Devine, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association which received the most scathing criticism, said the report overstated the case.

The report, prepared by an Edmonton research firm, dealt specifically with the rights of individuals in amateur hockey.

It said while coaches made efforts for young players to expand opportunities and ensure fair play, pre-professional hockey constrains the rights of players to the point of enslavement.

Joe Kryczka, past-president of the CAHA, said the report was ridiculous, erroneous, naive and harmful and appears "to be more of a witch-hunt than any attempt to be objective or helpful."

The report was totally wrong when it suggested the CAHA denies hockey players their rights to natural justice by applying sanctions if individuals appeal decisions to the courts.

"The researchers are obviously very naive in suggesting that the individuals not required to abide by rules and regulations which relate to his choice of a place to play."

Roger Jackson of the research company said 150 players were polled, correspondence exchanged with the CAHA and a panel of experts consulted during the five months the report took to prepare.

Among the experts were Clare Drake and Murray Smih of the University of Alberta physical education department, Bill Wintermute past president of the Edmonton Metropolitan Hockey Association and others in the field.

Devine said a recommendation to eliminate player contracts for those in junior hockey would defeat the purpose of the CAHA which is to supply teams with competition.

If there were no restrictions on player movements between clubs "the team with the most money would hire away the best players" which would destroy the league.

"Then there wouldn't be any need for associations."

One section of the report said the CAHA has attempted to establish itself as the absolute authority on hockey and "remove itself from public accountability and deny the possibility of external arbitration and review mechanisms."

The CAHA vests in "individuals and committees far more discretionary power over other individuals than any free society should tolerate."

Ed Chynoweth, president of the Western Canada Hockey League, and Del Wilson, past-president, scoffed at the idea of slavery and referred to the high wages received by those who went through the system.

They both mentioned Lanny MacDonald of the league's Medicine Hat Tigers who is reported to have signed the largest professional contract, well into six figures, ever offered a junior.

"If this is slavery," said Chynoweth, "I'm sure there are parents of many boys in Western Canada who are hoping their boys will be turned into slaves."

Horst Schmid, minister of culture, youth and recreation, said public seminars will be held in the fall to gather reaction to the report.

Kryczka said he was disappointed the seminars were not held before "the issuance of this obviously biased and less-than-knowledgeable report."

Brian Shaw, coach of the World Hockey Association Edmonton Oilers, said the thinking displayed in the report is fine for a 12-year-old boy playing for his own amusement but this cannot be applied to an older junior in a top league.

"Let's face it, by the time a player gets to major junior, he has only one thing in mind and that is to make the professional ranks as quickly as possible."

Professional players should be a by-product not the reason for the amateur system, Shaw said.

'Slave Market' Report

EDMONTON (CP) — A study of the rights of individuals in amateur hockey in Alberta has severely criticized the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA), saying hockey at the Major Junior A level "is little different from a slave market."

The report, commissioned by the Alberta department of culture, youth and recreation, says "the constraints upon the individual rights of hockey players at the upper, pre-professional levels . . . are so serious as to cry out for immediate and drastic action."

"At this level, the amateur hockey system is little different from a slave market in which the promoters and dealers have taken all power unto themselves and have reduced the status of the individual to the point where he has become a pawn of the system."

The report, prepared by L. W. Downey Research Associates Ltd. of Edmonton, calls for the Alberta government to:

—Establish an amateur sport or hockey ombudsman or commission;

—Prohibit contracts between non-adults and amateur sport teams;

—Declare invalid agreements between a player and a team or association restricting the freedom of the player to play with the team of his choice;

—Prohibit agreements among amateur sports teams and associations that restrict the freedom of a player to choose his team;

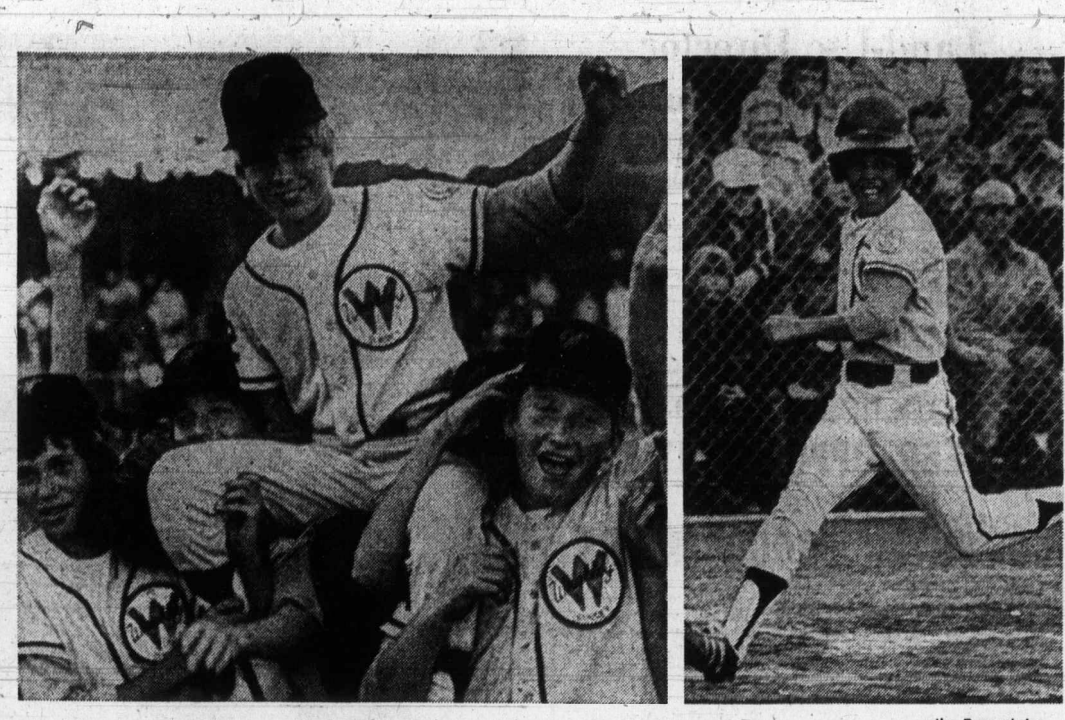

—Declare invalid any sale or trade of a player in any amateur sport without his written consent;

—Prohibit amateur teams or associations from receiving compensation for costs used to develop players' skills in any sport.

An ombudsman would evaluate conditions of amateur sports in Alberta, initiate and enforce legislation and adjudicate disputes between associations, teams and players.

The 63-page report reserves some of its strongest criticism for the CAHA, the governing body of amateur hockey in Canada.

"In declaring itself the final and absolute authority in the establishment of hockey policy and in the control of hockey players, the association has attempted to remove itself from public accountability and to deny the possibility of external arbitration and review mechanisms."

Mates chair John Olson after Van Nus scores only run of final

B.C. Reps Edge Ontario For World Series Spot

BY REG REYNOLDS

Whalley will represent Canada in the Little League World Series that starts Monday in Williamsport, Pa.

The B.C. representatives edged Brockville, the Ontario champions, 1-0, Friday at Lambrick Park to capture the Canadian Little League championship.

John Olson, who pitched the 1-0 victory against Trail in the B.C. final at Nanaimo, threw a two-hitter and got a clutch double from Bart Van Nus to earn the victory.

Olson and Brockville pitcher Mickey Collison were locked in a pitching duel, until Van Nus broke the game open with his sixth-inning leadoff double.

Van Nus, one of the smallest players in the tournament, advanced to third on catcher Terry Scramstad's groundout and scored when first-baseman Glenn Oster was thrown out at first on a bouncer to third base.

The gritty Brockville team fought back in their half of the sixth. With two out, Perry Edward drove a single into right field for Ontario's first hit off Olson. Kevin Brownlee followed with a single up the middle and both players advanced on a pass ball. But Olson came through, striking out Brockville's top batter, Collinson, who had hit three home runs in the tournament.

Olson recorded 10 strikeouts while issuing only one base-on-balls in firing his two-hitter.

Collison, whose brother pitched Brockville to the 1971 Canadian championship, also had a fine game, with 10 strikeouts, no bases-on-balls and finishing with a three-hit-hitter.

Brockville had fought its way through the losers' bracket to reach the final. Opening with a 5-2 loss to Calgary, the Ontario champs bounced back to eliminate Victoria with a 14-5 win, defeat Sherbrooke-Lennoxville, 2-0, and score an 8-2 victory over Calgary.

Whalley, which appeared to have the most depth, used a different pitcher in each of its three victories and did not allow a run in the 22 innings of play.

Oster started the first game, going nine innings before giving way to Scramstad due to a Little League rule which doesn't allow a player to pitch more than nine innings in one day. Whalley came up with four runs in the 10th to give Scramstad the win, 4-0, over Sherbrooke.

Jerry Atamanchuk went the full six innings in the second game, which Whalley won, 8-0, over Calgary and Olson finished the shutout string with Friday's fine performance.

In the three games, Whalley gave up only nine hits and committed only four errors while scoring 13 runs and making 23 hits.

Whalley will leave Sunday for the Little League world series, which also includes teams from the Far East, Europe, Latin America, and four teams from the United States.

Jennifer Misses Glen Gains Final

OTTAWA — Top-ranked Carolyn Kates of Toronto won the girls 12-and-under division of the Canadian closed junior tennis championships Friday.

She defeated second-ranked Jennifer Bland of Victoria, 6-4, 6-2, in the final at the Rideau Lawn Tennis Club.

Glen Bradshaw of Victoria, fourth ranked in the boys 16-and-under division, will meet top-ranked Bill Rennie of Cambridge, Ont., in the semi-finals.

Bradshaw defeated Steve Bogul of Toronto 6-0, 6-1, while Rennie downed Gaston Beaumier of Rouyn, Que., 6-3, 6-1, in Friday quarter-finals.

Washington Driver Wins Series Race

MOUNT VERNON, Wash. — Ross Fontes of Alderwood Manor, Wash., took the main event Friday night at Skagit Speedway in the fourth annual International Drivers Challenge for super-modifieds and caged sprints.

Fontes finished a half-lap in front of Don McLeod of Tacoma, who has two wins in the first four events of the six-race series. McLeod, who was riding a win streak of two main events, edged 1972-champion Bill Deschamps of Lakeport, Calif., for second place.

George Robertson of Lewiston, Idaho, and Roy Smith of Victoria, one-two in the drivers points standings before Friday's program both did not run because their vehicles were not suited to the dirt track.

The series moves to Spanaway Speedway in Tacoma tonight and winds up at Portland Speedway with the championship race Sunday.

Ottawa Sues WHA Club

OTTAWA (CP) — The city is suing Ontario Nationals hockey club and its president Doug Michel for damages arising from cancellation of a contract with the Civic Centre.

The Nationals, a World Hockey Association club, had agreed to play in the arena for the next two seasons but left the city during the playoffs last spring to play in Toronto. They are to be based in Toronto this year as the Toronto Toros.

Reds Get Help from Cubs, Aaron Hits Another Homer

Cincinnati Reds got unexpected help from Chicago Cubs to move within a half-game of leading Los Angeles Dodgers in the Western Division of the National League on Friday.

Cubs snapped a losing streak which reached 11 games by downing the Dodgers, 5-1, and the Reds took full advantage with a come-from-behind 2-1 extra-inning victory over New York Mets.

Billy Williams drove in four Chicago runs with a bases-loaded single in the second inning and his 18th home run. It was only Los Angeles' fourth loss in the last 12 games.

However, the Reds registered their ninth victory in the last 11 games when Hal King led off the 10th inning with a home run.

Left-hander George Stone of the Mets had a two-hit shutout heading into the ninth inning when Dan Driessen, Tony Perez and Johnny Bench hit two-out singles to tie the game. Willie Mays had provided Stone with the lead with his 660th career home run in the fourth inning.

Henry Aaron smacked his 703rd home run of his career —his second in two nights— but Montreal Expos came back with three runs in the ninth to nip Atlanta Braves, 8-7.

Aaron's 400-foot drive into the left-centre field stands marked a couple of records. It tied him with Stan Musial in extra-base hits with 1377 and gave Aaron 30 home runs in a season for the 15th time.

The win moved the Expos into a second-place deadlock with Pittsburgh Pirates in the Eastern Division, three games behind St. Louis Cardinals, who dropped a 13-inning, 4-2 decision to San Diego Padres.

Nate Colbert tripled to drive in Dave Roberts with what was to be the winning run and scored later on an infield out.

Willie McCovey hit two home runs to lead San Francisco Giants to a 5-3 conquest of the Pirates. Ron Bryant, who picked up his 18th victory in 26 decisions, had a perfect game until Dave Cash drew a leadoff base on balls in the seventh inning with the Giants ahead, 5-0.

Al Oliver then stroked a one-out single to snap the no-hitter and the Pirates went on to score three runs in the inning.

Glen Meadows made the biggest jump in the Vancouver Island Seniors Golf League.

The Sidney club scored a 5-1 victory over visiting Uplands and moved into second place, three points behind leading Victoria.

The Oak Bay club took a 4-2 decision over visiting Gorge Vale, dropping the Esquimalt team into third spot in the six-team league.

In the other match, host Royal Colwood defeated Cedar Hill, 4½-1½.

Uplands' Bob Earthy spoiled Glen Meadows' bid for a sweep of the six points by downing Eric Hewitt, 5 and 4. However, Hewitt and Don Sutherland combined to take the four-ball, 1 up, over Earthy and Bill Riddell.

At Oak Bay, Jack Punshon got the only Gorge Vale win, downing Brian Whitlow, 3 and 2. The other Gorge Vale point came when Harvie Anderson halved with Victoria's Norm Bamford and Moke Morgan halved with Bill Thompson of the host club.

Results:

UPLANDS 1 at GLEN MEADOWS 5

Lansdowne Grads Could Make Vic High Hoop Power

By KING LEE

Victoria's reign in B.C. high school girls basketball could extend through a fifth and sixth year.

Claremont, with Lorna McHattie and Laury Atkinson, in starring roles started the Victoria domination with provincial titles in 1970 and 1971. In 1972 and this year, Mt. Douglas, led by Jill Smith and Mairi Anne Longmore, kept the title in the city with victories in the finals against Salmon Arm Jewels.

Next year the two-year cycle could fall on Victoria High. The school is in line to inherit four of the five starters of the city and Vancouver Island junior high champions, Lansdowne.

Coached by Peter Jensen who was also the coach for University of Victoria junior men's team last season, the Lansdowne squad compiled a 30-0 record against junior-high competition and split a pair of exhibition games against Mt. Douglas.

All five starters are eligible to go to high school but one — Shelley Godfrey — has elected to finish Grade 10 at Lansdowne. She is also rated one of the best volleyball players in junior high school.

The four who will be going to Vic High are Leslie Godfrey, Doreen Fitzpatrick, Patti Pesklevits and Mary Jane Mackereth. Miss Godfrey and Miss Fitzpatrick were the starting guards and the other two were forwards for Lansdowne. Shelley Godfrey, at five feet nine inches, was the starting centre.

All but Miss Pesklevits began in the Victoria and District Amateur Basketball Association programs. Miss Godfrey and Miss Fitzpatrick both have had at least five years in the VDABA, starting at the pre-midget level. Miss Mackereth, who played with Metropolitan United of the VDABA last season, and Miss Pesklevits came up through the Richmond Community League program.

Forward Janet Reid, who was an important member of the Lansdowne club last season, has decided to enter Oak Bay High School this year.

Margaret Barber, a guard last season at S. J. Willis Junior High, is also going to Vic High in September and is expected to try out for the team.

In addition, guard Cathy Flynn and forward Fran Tuttle are returning to the school and could make it tough for the Lansdowne quartet to remain intact as a starting unit.

Barrie Hanslip has been coaching at Vic High but there is a possibility that George Andrews, a well-known coach and former basketball great, may take the job.

Veteran Leading Quebec Open Golf

QUEBEC (CP) — Bill Thompson of Toronto, shot a five-under-par 67 Friday to take the first-round lead in the $16,000 Quebec Open golf tournament.

One stroke off the pace was Ken Browbridge of Brampton, Ont.

Three non-Canadians were tied for third place with 69s. With six threesomes remaining on the course, a torrential downpour halted play.

After it stopped raining, it took 45 minutes before the course at Royal Quebec was dry enough for play to resume.

Only five threesomes made it. Darkness left Jack Bissegger of St. Julie, Que., Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., and Eric Reid of Dorion, Que., with one hole to play.

The three golfers will tee off on the 18th hole a 10 a.m. today before starting second-round play.

Tom Nettles of San Diego, a former flanker with Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League and one of the players caught on the course when the rains came, fired a 33-36—69 and was two strokes off the pace. Russell Fisher of Mexico City and Walter Owen of Glen Ellyn, Ill., also shot 69s.

Thompson, a 48-year-old veteran known as "Dad" to the younger tour regulars, destroyed the back nine. He carded birdies on the 11th, 12th and 15th holes and an eagle on the 16th.

He also birdied the eighth and ninth holes after scoring a double bogey on the sixth.

Four players did not show for the first round, including Dale Tallon of Toronto, a National Hockey League player recently traded to Chicago Black Hawks.

Four other pro hockey players did make it to the tournament. They included Jean Guy Gendron and Brian McDonald of the World Hockey Association and NHL stars Bob Rousseau and Pierre Jarry.

Rousseau carded a 74, Gendron 76, McDonald 77 and Jarry 79.

Bob Cox of Vancouver was in the group at 74 while Bill Wakeham of Cowichan finished at 78.

The 54-hole tournament ends Sunday.

After today's second round, the field will be cut to the low 60 scores and ties for Sunday's final round.

First-place money is $3,000.

Still and Mitchell Lead Trevino Records Ace

SUTTON, Mass. — Ken Still and Bobby Mitchell took over the lead Friday at the halfway point of the $200,000 Sutton Open golf tournament.

Both fired five-under-par 67s on the 7212-yard Pleasant Valley Country Club course for 36-hole totals of 137 but had to share the spotlight with Lee Trevino, who scored his career first hole-in-one.

Rik Massengale and Jim Wiechers are one stroke behind the leaders with 138. Massengale had a 70 and Wiechers shot a 67.

The flamboyant Trevino scored his ace on the first hole, a 185-yarder, and closed to a 67 and 139 total.

Trevino used a six-iron.

"The ball hit about 15 feet in front of the flag," said Trevino, who teed off about 8:30 a.m.

"But I didn't see it go in the hole. That early in the morning my eyes aren't open yet."

He was tied with former champion Tom Shaw, Dave Glenz and Steve Melnyk. Shaw had the day's best round, a 66, while Glenz and Melnyk each shot 70.

First-round leader Dick Lotz blew to a 75—142.

Still got his share of the lead by dominating the par-five holes—he birdied all four of them—and the soft-spoken Mitchell spiced his round with an eagle-three on the 11th hole.

The balding Mitchell, a pro since he was 15 and on the tour for the last six years, has been in a slump since winning the Tournament of Champions in 1972, his second tour triumph.

A sparkling 69 moved Winnipeg's Wilf Homenuik into contention. Coupled with a 73 Thursday, it gave him a 142 total, leaving him five strokes behind Still and Mitchell.

Two strokes behind Homenuik was George Knudson of Toronto, who added a 71 to Thursday's 73 for a 144 total.

Ben Kern of Toronto and John Morgan of Victoria both failed to make the cut. Kern had a 75 for a 148 total and Morgan an 80 for a 154 total.

During Friday's play, Jim King was disqualified and suspended after allegedly grabbing a tour official by the throat.

A witness said King missed the green on the 16th hole, angrily threw a rake into a bunker and bent his putter over his knee.

He then saw a PGA official writing in a notebook and backed the official up about five paces before releasing him.

King, a six-foot, 210-pounder started on the tour in 1968, won about $3,500 in 1971 then sat out most of last season when he was suspended six months for misconduct.

Strike Won't Affect Softball Tourney

B.C. Ferries strike notwithstanding, Victoria teams are gunning for softball titles this weekend.

Victoria Bate Construction, Seaboard Construction and Bell's Men's Wear are the local teams in the double-knockout tournament for the senior "A" men's championship at Central and Royal Athletic parks.

Six teams from the lower Mainland — Abbotsford Fraser Valley Merchants, North Vancouver Merchants, New Westminster Labats, New Westminster Burden's Royals, New Westminster Russell Hotel and New Westminster Fraser Arms — are also competing in the two-day tourney. The Mainland teams all made plans to fly before the strike curtailed traffic to and from the Island.

Victoria Stockers North Americans also took to the air Friday night to get to Kamloops, site of the B.C. junior women's softball championship. Stockers have picked up two players for the two-day tourney. Catcher Joanne Mick and third-baseman Donna Blackstock, both of Vicettes, will join Stockers.

Jane Leads Tight Field

ST. PAUL, Minn. (CP-AP) — Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan, Que., and Sandra Post of Oakville, Ont., were two strokes off the pace Friday after the first round of the St. Paul women's open golf tournament.

They were tied with four other players — Judy Rankin, Sandra Spuzich, Carol Mann and Gail Denenberrg — all at two-under-par 71.

Jane Blalock, shot a four-under-69 for a one-stroke lead in the $30,000 tournament.

In at 70 were Laura Baugh, Sandra Palmer, Roberta Albers, Susie McAllister and Marlene Hagge.

Cudby Out To Regain Point Lead

Rick Cudby hopes to make up for some lost fishing time tonight at Western Speedway.

Cudby got his schedule mixed up two weeks ago, took a fishing trip when he was supposed to be driving his stock car and lost the points lead to Tony Johnson.

Johnson has 1510 points going into tonight's stock-car and claimer program, 34 more than Cudby, who has been leading most of the season.

The two drivers are far ahead of Orton Ker, who is in third spot with 670 points.

Top 10 in the point standings:

	Pts.
Tony Johnson	1510
Rick Cudby	1476
Orton Ker	670
Art Reedy	649
Steve Kennedy	619
Neil Moore	579
Roger Walker	484
Steve Morris	479
Tony Oxley	395
Mike Grute	321

Thomas Leads Redskin Win

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Duane Thomas and Washington Redskins romped into Buffalo Bills' new stadium Friday night and crushed the Bills, 37-21, in a National Football League exhibition game.

The controversial running back ripped through Buffalo's defence 16 times for 70 yards in the first half. In addition, Thomas caught three of Billy Kilmer's passes for 42 yards and scored a touchdown on a one-yard run.

Treat Awaiting Cricket Buffs

Area cricket buffs are to get the chance to see the film of the only tie game played in test cricket.

Entitled The Tied Test, the film will be shown at St. Michael's University School next Wednesday starting at 8 p.m. The classic match involved took place in Brisbane in December, 1960, between Australia and the West Indies. Proceeds from the showing, which is priced at 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for youths under 16, will be used to help defray the costs of next month's appearance here of the Kent team.

Meanwhile, two Victoria and District Cricket Association matches will be played this weekend. Oak Bay and Incogs meet at Windsor Park starting at 2 this afternoon while Castaways and Alcos, who had been scheduled to play today, will meet Sunday at Beacon Hill Park at 2 p.m.

Olga More Poised Than Questioners

MOSCOW (AP) — The Russians won four gold medals on the first day of the World University Games and held one major news conference—for Olga Korbut.

She wears the red colors of the Soviet Union, but she belongs to the world.

They almost tore down the sports palace when the gymnastics marvel showed up Thursday night for the finals of the women's team optional exercises on the beams and bars.

They went into hysterics when she pirouetted, leaped and bounded through her final number like a cross between a Bolshoi ballerina and a high jump champion.

When she'd led the Soviet team to another gold medal, as she had done so often at Munich, she and her teammates were taken to the press room for a formal interview.

But the reporters only had questions for Olga—in German, French, English and Russian, especially Russian.

"We cannot accept accolades and congratulations," an interpreter announced frettingly. "We must have only questions."

Nobody wanted to ask Olga questions. They just wanted to look, admire and wonder.

Although perfectly poised and articulate, Olga, 18, appears to be embarrassed by all the attention she gets. She looks as if she'd like to run and hide.

While reporters prepared for the interview, she sat at the big green-covered table—all 4 feet, 11 inches and 80 pounds of her—and sipped lemonade, thumbed through a picture magazine and giggled with her friends.

Her blonde hair was tied in two pigtails with red ribbons. She wore a blue sweatsuit with CCCP emblazoned across the front.

Do her teammates think she is spoiled and perhaps getting self-centred because of all the attention lavished upon her?

"We are all friends—no one is better than the other one."

Ardern Draws Fine

TORONTO (CP) — Commissioner Jake Gaudaur of the Canadian Football League said Friday that defence back Barry Ardern of British Columbia Lions has been fined $50 for fighting in a Western Football Conference game.

Ardern was thrown out late in the fourth quarter during the WFC game in Regina against Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Safety Rules Amended

LONDON (Reuter) — New safety regulations have been approved for future Grand Prix auto races.

The British Royal Automobile Association has announced it was decided to work out multiple problems of track safety after the death July 29 of British driver Roger Williamson in the Dutch Grand Prix.

New measures included a pace vehicle to control cars after an accident, a two-by-two starting grid and stricter control of the pits access road.

Lions Sign Lineman For Trial

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League Friday signed offence-guard John Kennedy to a five-day trial. Kennedy played last season for Ottawa Rough Riders but was released by the eastern team before the regular 1973 season.

The Lions also released place-kicker Bob Macoritti, who joined the team on a five-day trial last week.

Reserve centre Gus Revenberg, who was injured in Tuesday's game here against Edmonton Eskimos, has been placed on the injured reserve list. Revenberg was operated on Wednesday to repair torn knee ligaments.

Canada Earns First Medals In World University Games

MOSCOW (CP-AP) — Glenda Reiser of Ottawa and Dianne Jones of Saskatoon put Canada in the medal list Friday at the World University Games.

While Miss Reiser picked up a silver medal in the 1500-metre run and Miss Jones a bronze in the pentathlon, the men's basketball team won its second straight game.

The men came from behind to defeat Mexico, 71-60, in preliminary round-robin competition, which assured Canada of a berth in the next round. Canada won its first match, 111-71, over Iran.

Paola Cacchi of Italy took the gold medal in the 1500-metre race. Mrs. Cacchi, 28,, from Milan, set the pace throughout the second half of the race for a Games' record time of four minutes, 10.7 seconds.

The 1972 Olympic bronze medalist finished well ahead of Miss Reiser, the girl from whom the Italian star grabbed the world mile record earlier this month.

Miss Reiser, 18, was second in 4:12.5 and Tonka Petrova of Bulgaria third in 4:13.5. Thelma Wright of Vancouver wound up fourth in 4:13.8.

Nadezhda Tkatchenko, a chunky Russian girl, picked up the fifth gold medal for the Soviet Union in Friday's competition and the country's ninth after two days when she won the five-event pentathlon.

She had 4629 points, well ahead of second-place finisher Tatiana Vorokhobko of the Soviet Union, who had 4444 points, and Miss Jones, 23, with 4370.

The final event in the pentathlon, a two-day test, was the 200-metre run, in which Miss Vorokhobka had the best clocking with 24.1 seconds. Miss Tkatchenko was second in 24.8 and Miss Jones third in 25.8.

Miss Jones, who won the high-jump section of the penthathlon Thursday, was fourth in the long jump with a leap of 6.05 metres.

In the men's basketall contest, Canada trailed Mexico, 39-34, after the first half. But led by Phil Tollestrup of Raymond, Alta., and Bill Robinson of Chemainus, Canada pulled even shortly after the start of the second half.

Tollestrup, who scored 21 points Thursday, had 23 against Mexico, while Robinson contributed 18.

Canada meets Poland today.

In the women's 400 metres semi-final Joyce Sadowick of Burnaby, finished third in 53.5 seconds to qualify for the final. Judith Canty of Australia won in 53.3. Nadyezhda Kolesnikov of the Soviet Union was first in the other semi-final with a time of 52.6.

The Canadian men's and women's volleyball teams both took victories in preliminary sub-group action.

The men won, 3-0, over Lebanon and the women defeated Poland, 3-1.

In basketball, however, the women lost, 54-51, to Romania. Canada lost by 63-33 to Bulgaria in a game Thursday.

Canada placed 14th in the men's optional exercises gymnastics with 154.35 points from Gordie Mackie and Ron Hunter, both of Vancouver, Steve Mitruk of Hamilton and Bruce Medd of Ottawa. They had 154.35 points.

The Russians won the gymnastics gold medal with 170.15 points followed by Japan with 167.40 and Romania 163.69.

The Soviet Union has collected 13 medals — including two silver and two bronze. Italy, Yugoslavia, France and Finland each has won one gold medal. The United States only has a silver and bronze.

Court Refuses To Block Move

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Supreme Court denied a request Thursday from the City of San Diego that the transfer of the Padres baseball team to Washington, D.C., be blocked.

In denying the petition for a hearing on the matter, the court made no comment.

Last July 20, the court issued an order that any transfer of the National League club be held up until the court decided whether it would take the case for consideration.

The city had contended that a San Diego Superior Court Judge, Eli H. Levenson, was in error when he ruled that monetary damages were insufficient to compensate for loss of a major-league team.

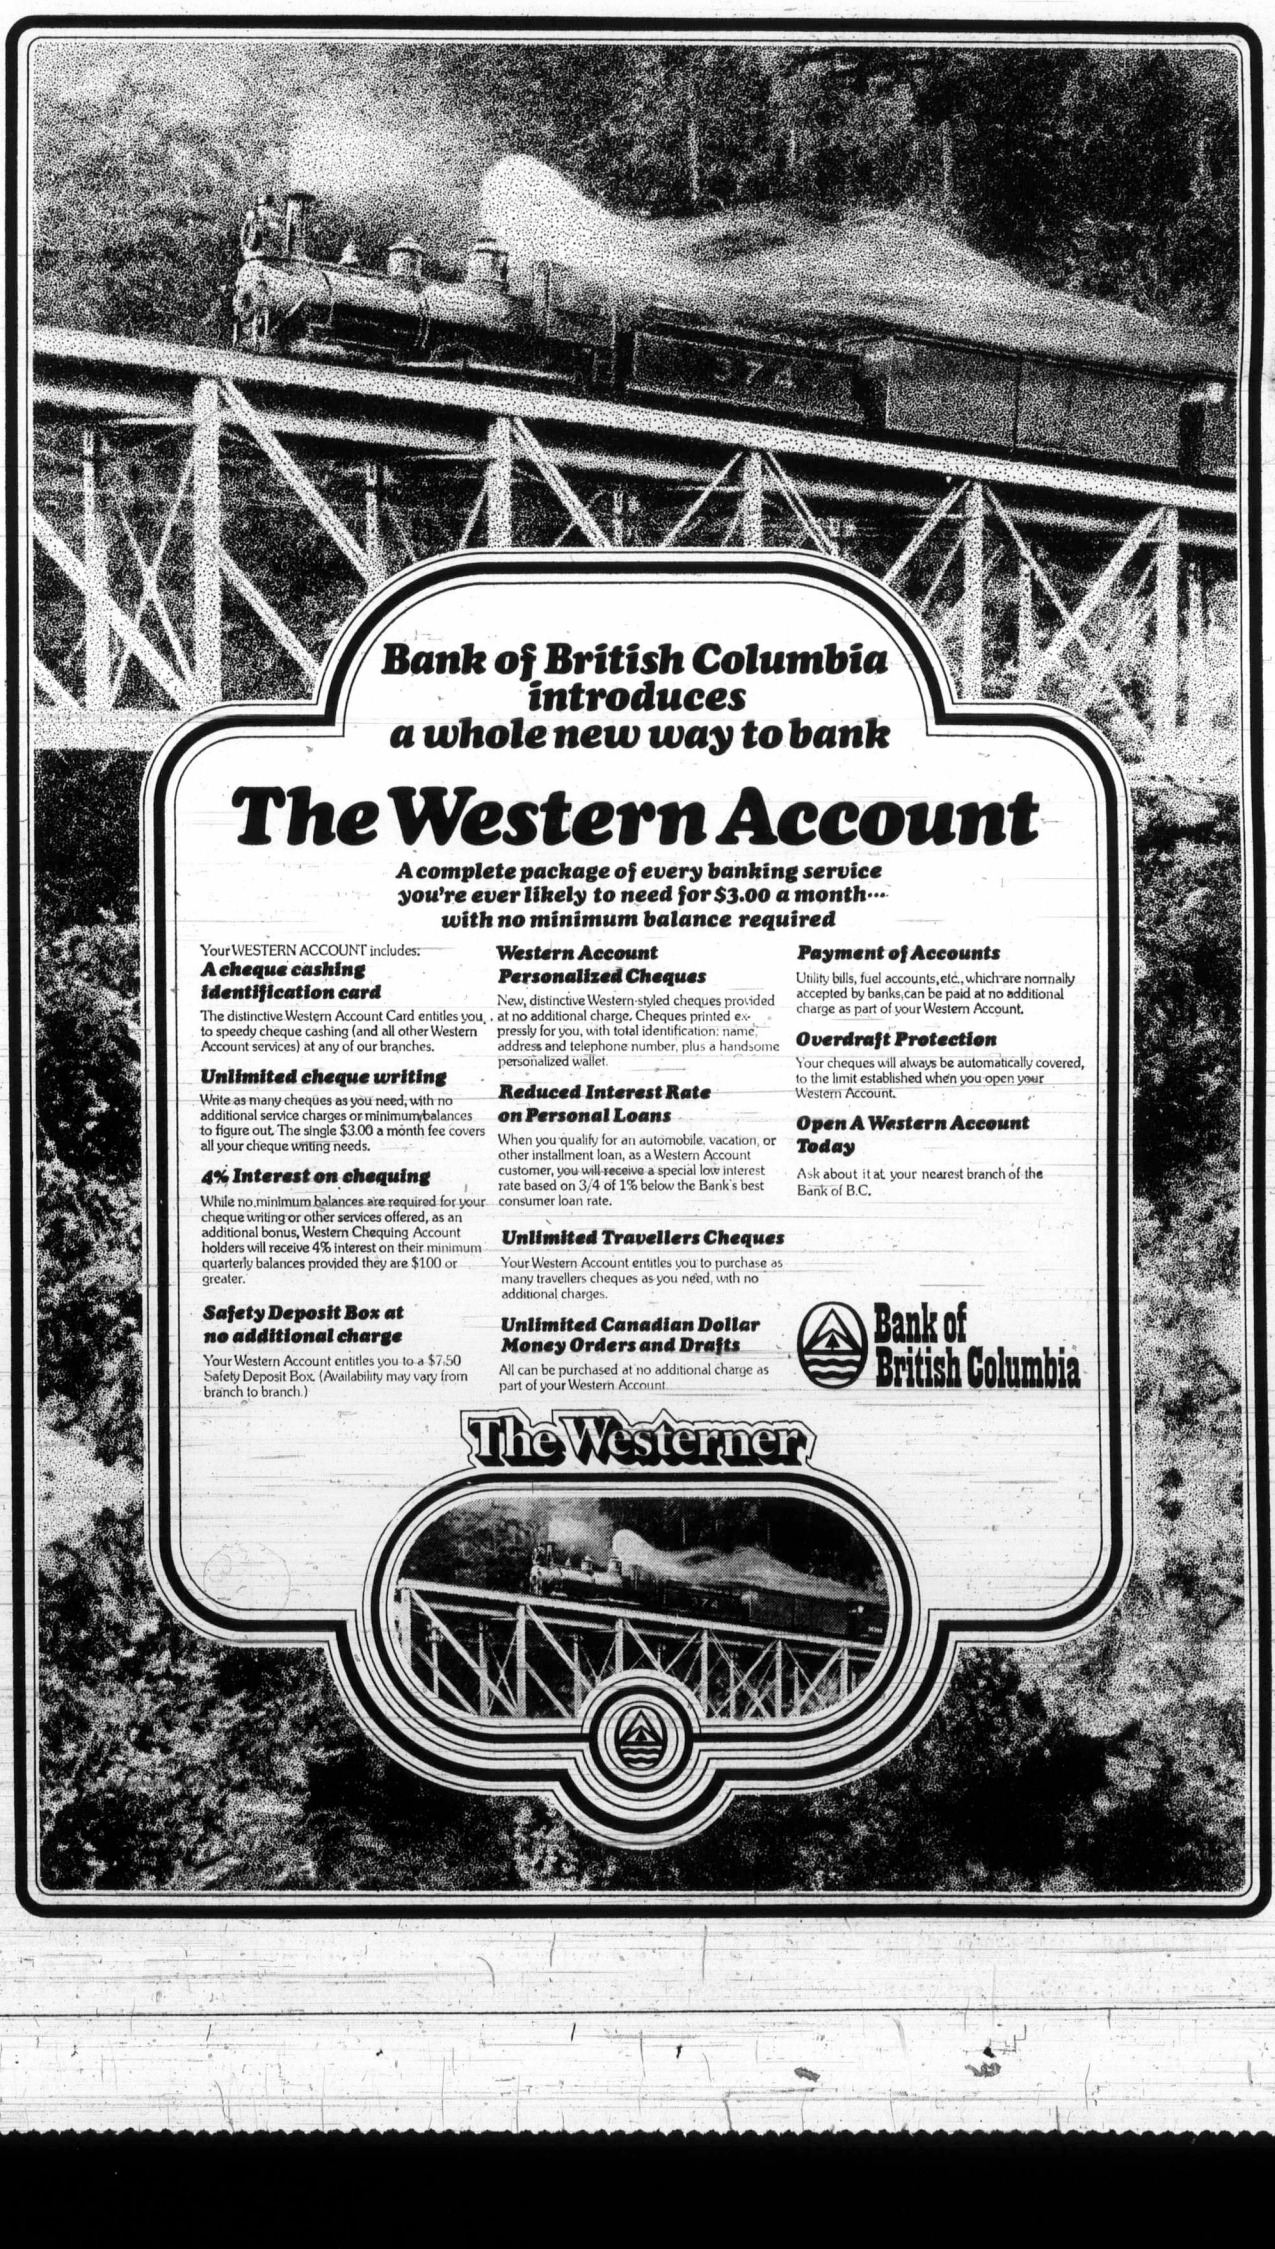

Judge Levenson last month denied an injunction against the move and the city wanted to appeal his ruling.

The city has had an agreement with the Padres for the baseball franchise to remain in San Diego through 1988. But last May 28, Padre president E. J. Bavasi and principal stockholder C. Arnholt Smith indicated they intended to transfer all the team's assets to Joseph Danzansky of Washington.

The 12 National League clubs must give approval for the $12-million deal.

Design Change Possibility For 75 Acres

Saanich planning staff will likely be given another chance to draw up a development plan for 75 acres of prime residential land in Gordon Head just north of the university campus.

It had been anticipated earlier that the land, part of 115-acre area which has been semi-frozen for eight years, would be opened for conventional single family development with an 8,400-square-foot minimum lot size.

Now it looks as if the land, bounded by McKenzie, Arbutus, Finnerty and Gordon Head, will be specially developed with single-family houses of smaller lot sizes, some multiple housing and widespread use of communal open space.

A joint in-camera meeting Thursday of Saanich's advisory planning commission and the municipal planning committee recommended council give planning staff the go-ahead to come up with an imaginative development design.

Planning committee chairman Ald. Frank Waring said the joint meeting recommendation would likely be accepted by council as a majority of aldermen at the Thursday meeting favored that move.

Saanich declared the area, which is within the current sewer enterprise, a development area in 1965 to protect it from crowded multiple housing development. The present half-acre minimum subdivision requirement was then imposed by council.

Since then the Saanich planning staff has suggested several design schemes which have not met with council approval. It was thought likely the subdivision minimum requirement would be reduced to 8,400-square-foot and developers allowed it.

Now the planners could be given a chance to try yet again.

B.C. Teachers Will Seek Right To Strike

The B.C. Teachers Federation Thursday asked Education Minister Eileen Dailly for legislation this fall allowing teachers to strike over learning and working conditions.

In a brief presented to Mrs. Dailly at a two-hour meeting, the federation also asked for changes in the Public Schools Act to restore compulsory membership in the organization and to increase sick leave for teachers and make it portable between B.C. school districts.

The brief said the scope of annual salary bargaining between school boards and local teachers associations should be expanded to include "all conditions of employment and of the learning environment."

These would include bonuses, grievance procedures, promotions, transfers, leaves of absence, class size, teaching time, equipment, and materials, and deployment of teaching and non-teaching personnel.

The BCTF urged keeping compulsory arbitration when negotiations don't produce salary settlements, but giving teachers the right to strike when school boards or the provincial government unilaterally alter conditions of employment or fail to correct "intolerable" ones.

BCTF president Jim MacFarlan said the brief got "a very good hearing" but federation leaders expected no commitments and received none.

Horsemeat? She Loves It

DETROIT (AP) — Horsemeat was offered for sale in an eastside market here at about half the price of beef. Sirloin sold for 89 cents a pound and pot roasts for 59 cents. Business was brisk, but there were a few mixed reactions. "My daughter loves horses," said one shopper as she clutched her purchase. "Please don't say who I am."

Ardmore Drive Home Levelled by Blaze

Fire that broke out about noon Friday completely destroyed the home of Mrs. A. L. du Temple, 814 Ardmore Drive, North Saanich, leaving nothing standing but three walls.

In addition to the material loss, estimated at about $40,000, the family pet, a dog, died in the fire.

Jazz Tab Higher

PNE Away Today

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fifty floats, 23 marching bands, nine clown groups, the Seattle and Vancouver police force motorcycle drill teams and one B.C. premier will be in the big parade today to open the 64th Pacific National Exhibition.

The exhibition will run for 17 days, including Sundays, to finish Sept. 3.

Premier Barrett will officially open the exhibition today at the Coliseum. He will be followed by a jazz show featuring Ella Fitzgerald, Count Basie, Cannonball Adderley, Stan Getz and Oscar Peterson, all part of the annual stage show extravaganza.

The price of the shows, however, have more than doubled from last year—up to $6 from $2.50.

Exhibition general manager John Rennie said Thursday the new price schedule for stage shows was set by the PNE board.

"This is an experiment, and so far it looks as though it's going to pay off," said Rennie.

"We have $150,000 in advance ticket sales already, and if the trend continues, we should take in about $300,000 from entertainment alone."

Prices for food have gone up a nickel. Hot dogs will be 40 cents and hamburgers 60 cents.

India-Pakistan Talks Begin

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Emissaries of India and Pakistan have started talks in a bid to solve humanitarian problems —the legacies of the 1971 war between the two nations. Both sides expressed hopes of success.

CBS Affiliates Refuse To Show Antiwar Play

NEW YORK (UPI) — More than half of the CBS-TV affiliates across the country told the network Friday that they would not telecast the controversial antiwar play Sticks and Bones.

The play, which won Author David Rabe a Tony award for the best Broadway play during the 1971-72 season, was scheduled to be broadcast at 6 p.m. Victoria time Friday.

It was originally scheduled to be shown March 9 but CBS took it off the air because the network said the subject may have been abrasive at a time when American prisoners of war were coming home.

CBS said it normally has 186 affiliates on Friday night but that 94 had told the network they would not carry Sticks and Bones. CBS said that the exact number not broadcasting the play would not be known for several weeks.

Other affiliates plan to televise the play during nonprime time viewing hours, and in several cities where it will not be shown on CBS, other independent stations have asked to broadcast it.

Sticks and Bones deals with the return of a bitter, blind Vietnam veteran and his relations with his parents and his younger brother. The play ends with the veteran committing suicide as a way out of an uncomfortable situation for all involved.

When CBS originally scheduled the show it received a number of complaints that the subject matter was not appropriate for a country just getting over the Vietnam war.

In announcing the network's decision to cancel the March 9 production, CBS-TV president Robert Wood said broadcast of the play "at this time might be unnecessarily abrasive to the feelings of millions of Americans whose lives or attention are at the moment emotionally dominated by the returning PoWs and other veterans who have suffered the ravages of war."

That decision in turn raised more criticism from others, including the show's producer, Joseph Papp, who called it "cowardly."

GM Warns Bus Owners

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — General Motors of Canada has notified owners of 868 buses delivered since 1963 to replace a power steering bracket and clamping bolt that could result in a loss of steering control. No failures have been reported, GM said. A total of 3,915 buses are involved in the United States.

For the Love of Theatre

$1 a Day Pay 'Got Away'

OTTAWA (CP) — The three-year-old student theatre company attached to the National Arts Centre now has advanced far enough to sell its wares for 14 performances at the Central Canada Exhibition here.

A few months ago, the Student Young Company directed by Dennis Hayes was threatened with extinction because of a NAC budget cut. However, the cut of $10,000 in the centre's $8.8-million budget was rescinded, and the student project allowed to go on.

Hayes said in an interview that three student companies will be formed during the coming school year, two working in English and one in French. They will tour Ottawa area high schools.

For the exhibition run, which opened Friday night, Mr. Hayes gathered 11 student players from earlier companies to rehearse them in a wide range of theatre talents.

Eight mime-dancers, a musician and two narrators were chosen to present The Land Before Time, a collection of Eskimo legends on the creation of the world, written originally as a radio play by Charles Cohen. This was part of last spring's successful repetoire.

Hayes said he is looking for one or more new works for the fall and winter season, but he may again stage The Land Before Time.

"A number of other cities are looking at our program and are interested in developing student young companies," he said.

In the school year, the players are supposed to be paid only $1 a day for lunch money. They rehearse part-time for five weeks, then have a week's intensive rehearsal before going on a two-week tour of the schools. This means their school grades have to be specially good in order to miss classes.

"We can't travel widely outside of Ottawa because that would mean the kids would have to become professional players, and we don't want that."

The students get a taste of theatre life, but aren't committed to it. Most of them, Mr. Hayes said, have taken up more mundane lines of work after leaving the theatre companies, but some do go to theatre or dance schools with the thought of becoming professionals.

Most of the school performances take place in well-equipped high school auditoriums. But at the Ottawa exhibition the performances are on a temporary stage in a barn-like building used for a curling rink in the winter months.

Instead of the quiet of a theatre, the students have to get used to the distracting noises and smells of the nearby midway.

And on top of it all, they don't even get $1 a day for lunch. All of the $500 budget went for performance royalties, costumes, and other necessities.

$1.5 Million Windfall

VANCOUVER (CP) — Taxpayers here will begin making twice-a-year payments to city hall in 1975 under a plan approved by the finance and administration committee. Finance director Peter Leckie estimated establishment of the new system would cost $150,000, but it would also mean a $1.5 million windfall under current interest rates.

Mexico Hit By Floods

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Floods that have ravaged eight Mexican states took three lives near Torreon, in the northern state of Coahuila, where the Aguanaval River overflowed and covered three villages. A spokesman for the water resources ministry said floodwaters in other parts of the country have receded.

Heat Strike Hits U.K.

LONDON (CP) — A new kind of strike came to Britain Thursday—the heat wave strike.

As the country sweltered through the hottest August day in 20 years—the mercury reached 95 degrees in Suffolk—deckchair attendants at the Somerset resort of Weston-Supermare walked off the job claiming the demand for chairs was giving them too much work.

The men went back after being offered improved overtime rates, but by that time 60 chairs had floated out to sea on the tide.

Automobile workers in two plants also walked out because of the heat, disrupting production of Rover and British Leyland cars.

The noon temperature in London hit 88 degrees, making the city hotter than Madrid—in fact, hotter than almost any spot listed in the European weather tables, with the exception of Majorca. There was no wind, infuriating Prime Minister Heath who trailed in 51st in the Fastnet ocean yacht race after being becalmed for several hours.

Englishmen, if not mad dogs, have become used to going out in the midday sun after a week of temperatures in the 80s. Londoners have reacted with uncharacteristic abandon to the weather's embrace, with bus passengers wearing swimsuits and strangers swapping anecdotes, as one commentator observed.

M.V. Chesnut's Garden Notes

In these days of "open" landscaping, with properties running into one another without benefit of hedge or fence, one problem coming increasingly to the fore is dog damage in the garden. There is an ever-increasing flow of letters coming across my desk from irate home owners asking what can be done to curb the dog nuisance.

There are two general types of dog damage. There is the injury or disfigurement of small trees and shrubs, particularly the dwarf evergreen specimens, caused by male dogs urinating against the lower branches. Fortunately, there are effective and harmless means of preventing this.

It is when all the neighbourhood pooches take to making a public convenience of your front lawn that trouble really starts; I imagine this must be a very common cause of bad feeling between neighbours. Cleaning up the messes before mowing the lawn is a disgusting chore, and you can hardly blame the lawn-proud home owner for getting a bit hot under the collar.

However, getting mad about it isn't good for your blood pressure, and retaliation of any kind against the dogs and their owners can only lead to worse trouble. For your peace of mind, it is best to look upon dog damage as just another natural visitation, along with bugs and blights, to be prevented by the most effective and least harmful means.

For the shrubs, there are several good dog repellents on the market sold under such names as Dog-Zoff, Ridz and Chaperone; these come in pressurized aerosol cans and it is only the work of a moment to give the evergreens a squirt, along with tree trunks, telephone poles, hydrants and garbage cans. There is also a more long-lasting product called Scent-Off; this is a wax-like "berry" impregnated with a dog-repellent chemical, and fitted with a flexible plastic stem that can be hung or twisted on the branches of the shrub to be protected. The cost is reasonable, around $1 for a dozen of the dark green "berries."

These preparations are non-poisonous and harmless to dogs and plants and are made up mostly from bone oil, oil of sassafrass and moth crystals. They do their work in two ways: first, by giving off an odor repulsive to dogs, and second, by concealing or masking the odor left by the previous doggy visitor.

This last is especially important. You see, dogs are incorrigible conformists; just any old shrub or tree won't do — it has to be one visited previously by another dog. Because of this, it is usually necessary to use the repellent spray or Scent-Off berries long enough to break this vicious circle, and, when the visiting habit is broken, you can put away your repellents until some independent-minded pooch comes along and starts the whole sorry business all over again.

Very much the same thing applies to the lawn problem — the dogs come sniffing around, and where one dog has done his business, others will follow. Here again, the trick is to mask the odor. It isn't practicable to use an expensive aersol spray on a vast expanse of grass, for it would cost too much and it doesn't remain effective long enough on damp grass or soil. There are cheaper alternatives, though.

For instance, you could save your coffee grounds and dump a good big handful on each spot where you clean up a mess. Just as chewing a little ground coffee will help mask the odor of liquor onthe breath, so will coffee grounds help overwhelm the doggy odor on the grass and leave no clue for the would-be imitator.

Another and even more effective deterrent is the same Scent-Off as used on shrubs, but especially formulated in pellet form for scattering on the grass. The cost is around $1 for a package of 200 pellets, dark green in color and a little larger than BB shot. Scattered at the rate of three or four pellets per square foot, the whole lawn can be treated or you can concentrate just on the spots where messes were removed.

I walked up to the Music Centre the other day to see Remember Yang-Na, an exhibit which reminds us that Los Angeles is only 200 years out of the stone age, and in some respects is moving back into it.

Yang-Na was the name of the Indian village that once stood on the ground now covered by the concrete monoliths of the Civic Centre, if anything as humble as Yang-Na could be said to have stood.

The exhibit is set up in the grand hall of the pavilion, to which the visitor ascends by the mirrored staircase. As I emerged into this stately chamber under the glittering crystal chandeliers the first display to catch my eye was a figure representing a young woman of Yang-Na.

She wears nothing but a necklace of shells and a skirt of turkey feathers, or maybe eagle. Except for these meagre trappings, however, she no more looks like an aboriginal Indian girl than Raquel Welch looked like a prehistoric woman in One Million B.C. She has the svelte leggy look of a department store mannikin, and had been borrowed, I suspected, from a window of the nearby Broadway. At this chic young Indian's feet were a mortar and pestle and a stone cooking pot, which must have been very hard on a girl's fingernails.

I don't mean to criticize. It is a harmless piece of theatre, and sets the tone for the exhibit, which calls upon the visitor, as it should, to use his imagination.

Actually, the aborigines lived in brush huts; the women spun not; the men were inept in field and stream. They lived on shellfish and the acorns that fell from the great oaks that covered the plain.

Next door to Ms. Yang-Na is a display of objects from the Spanish colonial period — a crucifix, a cannon, a vice-regal chair, a carved wood figure of Our Lady of the Angels. How few are the objects required to symbolize the culture that Spain's priests and soldiers brought so cataclysmically to Yang-Na from 10,000 years in the future.

The early American period of our city is evoked by such artifacts as cattle brands and women's silks, and photo blowups of a tough town and tough people, some with strongly Indian faces and some with the grim axe-blade faces of the Yankees.

The wave of elegance that came to this crude cowtown in the 90s is reflected by a number of Leo Politi's delightful paintings of old Bunker Hill houses and the exuberant Melrose Hotel, which stood at 2nd and Olive until the 1950s.

The display that brought me abreast of my own memories was called The Downtown Era: 1929-1945. A gaudy jukebox plays old melodies. Two sisters of Ms. Yang-Na wear razzmatazz dresses with beaded bags and beaded headbands.

The furniture runs from art nouveau to what my mother used to call "modern" — spartan chairs and tables made of plastic and chromium pipe to go with angular "modern" houses made of glass and cement blocks.

I strolled quickly through the contemporary era, with its models of the new downtown skyline, and stopped to ponder the final display — The Future: 1973-2001.

Here are two more sisters of Ms. Yang-Na, this time dressed for the year 2001 as foreseen by our mischievous futurist, Rudi Gernreich. The heads of both women are shaved bald, and lightly glazed with a transparent gold paint. One wears a voluminous dress with enormous poka dots and dazzling stripes. The other is dressed for the seashore in a short bathing skirt. Her bare breasts glow with the same gold glaze that annoints her bald head. Male mannikins stand beside each of the females, attired and painted exactly like them.

Thus, it is shown, we will have come full circle, back to that nakedness in which the scandalized padres found Ms. Yang-Na and her heathen sisters, and from which they piously liberated them into the stays, struts and ruffles of the contemporary Spanish gentlewoman.

I stopped before leaving for a last look at Ms. Yang-Na. All things considered, I liked her outfit better than Ms. 2001's. As for our return to nakedness, it occurred to me, the future was already here. And the way meat was vanishing along with fuel, we would soon enough be eating fish and acorns again, and grinding them up in mortars, like Ms. Yang-Na.

James Bacon's Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD — Author Norman Mailer spent a few days here in town at the Bel-Air Hotel, easily accessible, but he never was served in the $6 million libel suit filed by Maurice Zolotow.

Zolotow had accused the Pulitzer Price winner of plagiarizing Zolotow's previous biography on Marilyn Monroe.

"Hell," said Mailer, sunning himself beside the Bel-Air pool, "I mentioned Zolotow 38 times in the book Marilyn. What has made Zolotow mad is what I wrote about his material — that is is 'reamed with over-stressed and hollow anecdotes untrustworthy by the very style of their prose, a feature writer heating up the old dishes of other feature writers.'"

Mailer says he is prepared to document those charges. He also adds that Zolotow's suit sounds more like a breach-of-promise action than libel. "And I can't resist remarking that his $6 million suit is not worth 60 cents."

Zolotow filed the suit in Los Angeles federal court and Mailer fully expected to get served when he visited here.

"Zolotow's case is built on legal foundations no less airy than publicity, but I in turn have a prospective suit which is not."

Mailer says that the suit will be filed unless there is an apology from Zolotow on the plagiarism charge. Norman, who had never met Marilyn, said his book started out to be only a preface to the gallery of photographs of her in the book.

"I just fell in love with my subject and wound up with 100,000 words of prose — honest prose."

Another second-generation show business name made his major nightclub debut Tuesday at the Westside Room of the Century Plaza in the person of Horace Heidt Jr. Young Horace, who was first pulled on stage at age 3 with his father's band, is now 26 years and a handsome guy. He's teamed with a young girl singer who is probably the richest girl in show business. Kal Cronin's family owns a big cattle ranch near Valentine, Neb. She gets all kinds of steaks and may go public with them.

Don't let anyone tell you Hollywood isn't saving money these days. Yul Brynner, starring in Westworld, wears the same western outfit he sported in The Magnificent Seven and Return of the Seven.

Yul considers it his lucky outfit. A lot of good it does him. He gets slaughtered in the end.

Saw Elanore Kilgallen, head of Universal's talent program, and asked about her 85-year-old newsman father James Kilgallen. She said he was covering the Boy Scout Jamboree near Pittsburgh for Hearst Headline Service. Old newspapermen never die. They just fade city editors in crap games.

★ ★ ★

Saw the New Coronet magazine which is the first general interest magazine ever published on the West Coast. It is swinging heavy to entertainment features with stories on Lucille Ball, Shecky Greene and regular columnists like Jim and Henny Backus and the one and only Stan Davis. Learned something new about the movies in a movie nostalgia piece by Michael Druxman — that Jack Haley Sr. was not the first choice to play the Tin Man in Wizard of Oz. Haley's performance, of course, is a screen classic. But Buddy Ebsen was first signed for the role and then found out he was allergic to the tin make-up. That's when Haley was called.

Joey Bishop, now a yachtsman, is moving from Beverly Hills to Newport. But first he had to get rid of some raccons who built a nest in his Beverly Hills home. So traps were set. The traps caught no raccons but they did get Jack Carter's' Mexican gardener. Jack rescued him but not before the gardener did 20 minutes of Jack's act in cursing Spanish.

If Bing Crosby's latest recording Tie a Yellow Ribbon Around the Old Oak Tree, makes it big with the bubblegum set, the credit should go to son Harry, who is 14. "Bing was working on his own version of the song and young Harry was listening," reports Kathryn Crosby. "Harry hold his father the arrangement was — and I quote — 'corny and dull.'" The Old Groaner, taken aback, suggested that maybe Harry could do better. The kid, an accomplished pianist and guitarist, did just that. And it's Harry's arrangement that Bing used. You know something, I think that kid's got it.

Not long ago I was invited to take part in a conference in Portland, Ore., sponsored by the National Education Association, on critical issues in the schools. Let me give you a run-down of the two-day agenda:

"Why legalize grass?" — featuring an interview with a representative of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws, and reports by members of the NEA's task force on drug education.

"What should teacher political power be used for?" — Should it be used just for education or should it also be used for social change? Three leading educator-politicians headlined this session.

"Equality of the sexes" — a panel representing the various segments of education looked at the cultural, social, educational and psychological factors that condition women to underachievement.

"Student rights: will participatory democracy work in the schools?" — how can teachers' associations move to protect substantive and due process rights for students at the same time their own rights are threatened?

"Sex eduction — the V.D. crisis" — two seminars conducted by school physicians and nurses on the rapidly rising V.D. rate in the school population.

"Use of transactional analysis in an OK classroom" — a presentation of transactional analysis techniques as applied to the classroom.

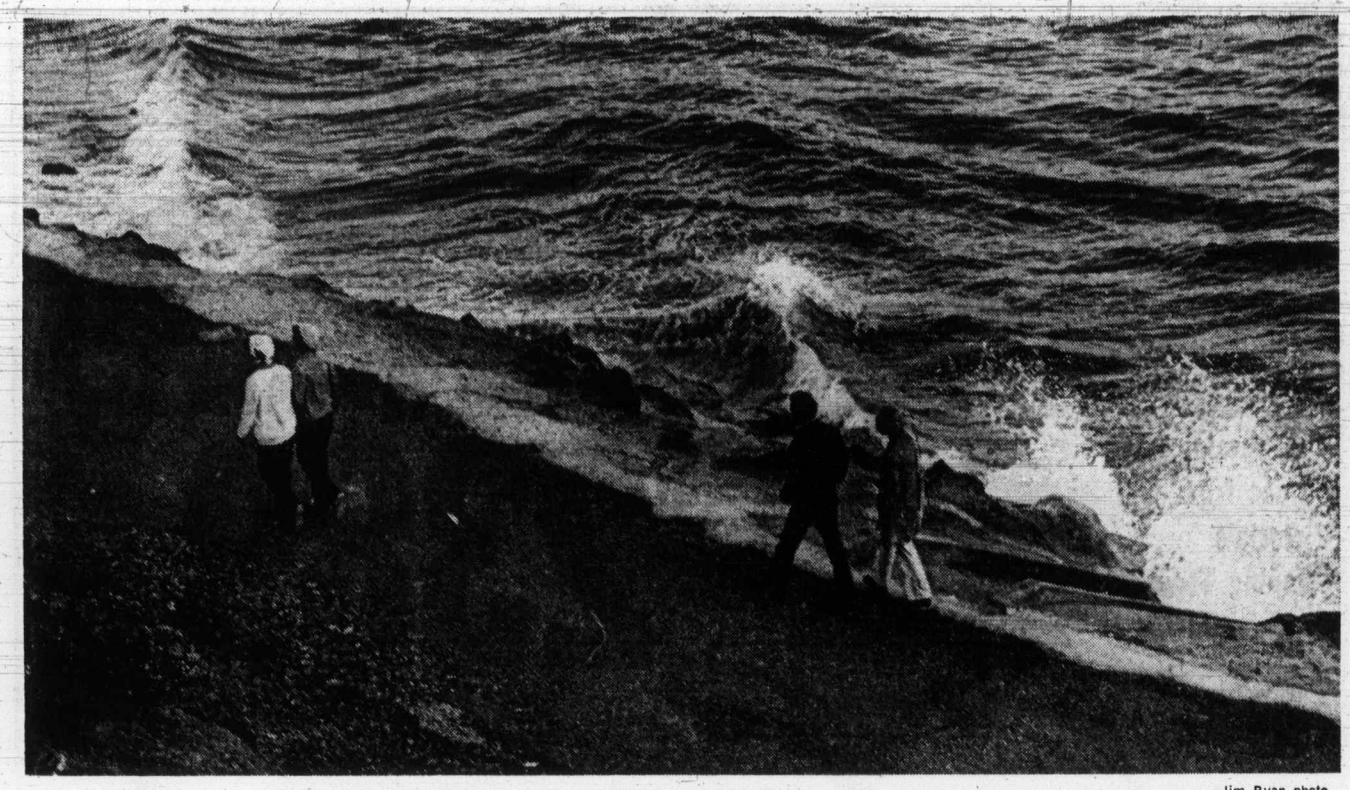

"Violence in the schools" — a panel led by a professor of criminal justice, followed by group discussion on "realistic and yet humane" approaches to preventing or curbing youth violence.

"Pornography: Spillover into the classroom?" — both the social and legal aspects of soft- and hard-core pornography, and what should be allowed n the classroom, led by an attorney familiar with pornography cases.

"Alternative schools: a threat or a promise?" — a workshop showing how to teach in the school of your choice and hire your own director and fellow teachers; also how to challenge school district policies.

Had enough? There's lots more, but I don't have room for it. But consider that a mere dozen years ago, not a single theme listed here would be taking up the time, energy and concern of this professional group whose main job is to teach children how to read, write, and count.

Unless society itself — and quickly — begins taking back some of the responsibility it has abdicated to the schools, the whole eductional system is going to break down under the weight of these problems. Which are only the school's problems because nobody else wants them.

Even with breeze whipping waves into more action than is usual for summer day, Dallas Road waterfront is still popular place for fresh are fiends and hard-core strollers. With brisk breeze coming down Juan de Fuca Strait, Wednesday morning, with sun struggling to come out, favorite location had its share of beachcombers.

Provinces To Pay Sex-Parity Wages

The B.C. government has agreed to spend $5 million this year alone to end pay discrimination against women in hospitals, bringing their wages roughly up to par with male employees doing similar work.

Hailed as a "major breakthrough" by Kathleen Ruff, director of the Human Rights Act, the measure would give most of the 9,000 female workers an increase of $37.50 a month retroactive to Jan. 1.

And if the woman earns more than $632 a month at the present time, her salary will be increased to $669.50—the basic minimum rate for men.

Ms. Ruff said Friday the raise will affect women in all categories: cleaners, laundry women, practical nurses, dietary maids, clerical staff, bookkeepers, and female cooks.

"It really is a tremendous achievement not only for women in hospitals but for the whole economy," she said.

Health Minister Dennis Cocke announced the agreement had been reached after talks between his department and the Hospital Employees Union.

The statement admitted that this latest measure would not assure equal pay for equal work in all areas immediately. A timetable toward this end is to be negotiated between the union and the B.C. Hospital Association before Jan. 1, 1976.

Furthermore, Cocke said, the union has agreed to stop processing alleged cases of sex discrimination through the grievance procedure of their contract with the various hospitals.

The minister thanked the union which he said "sacrificed some short-term gain to accomplish a great deal more important objective for a great many more people."

"The agreement is important for a number of reasons. It signals my determination to make B.C. hospitals a good career for the people working in them and . . . it signals this government's determination to have done with all forms of discrimination."

Fire Hazard Lifts

The British Columbia Forest Service campfire ban in the Vancouver, Prince George and Cariboo forest districts was lifted Friday following cooler temperatures and rain which reduced the fire hazard.

Vancouver Island is in the Vancouver district.

The ban continues in the Kamloops and Nelson forest districts where the fire hazard remains extreme following lightning storms and winds to 50 miles an hour.

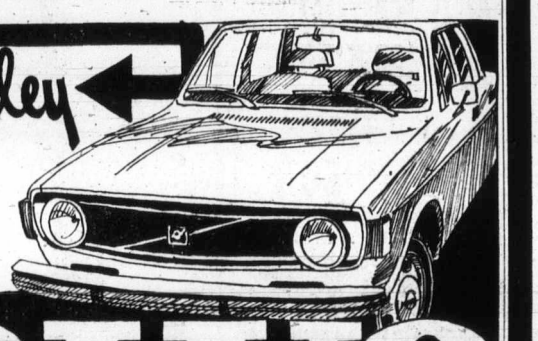

In the Nelson area, two of the 36 new fires reported since Thursday have flared into major proportions.

A 1,000-acre forest fire is burning out of control at Sob Creek south of Elko where it spread from northern Montana. Another uncontrolled blaze caused by lightning is burning over 800 acres near Cranbrook.

Of the new fires, 34 were blamed on lightning and two on human carelessness, the forest service said.

A total of 121 fires are burning in the Nelson district, four of which were still uncontrolled. Nearly 800 men were on the fire lines backed by 61 caterpillars, tractors, several water bombers and 11 helicopters.

White House Sparks Giant Cancer Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House released Friday a long-awaited "strategic plan" to combat cancer under an accelerated $500 million-a-year program against the disease.

Prepared under sponsorship of the government's National Cancer Institute, the plan detailed research and other efforts which Dr. Frank Rauscher, institute director, said hold the greatest promise in fighting the No. 2 fatal disease.

These include achievement of cures for cancers not now curable, retardation of malignancies not cured, and improvements in the prevation and diagnosis of cancer and rehabilitation for cured patients.

The stepped-up research also will involve more intensive exploration of possible anticancer vaccines, based on growing suspicions that some human cancers may be caused by viruses.

It also includes studies to determine whether cancer can be treated or prevented through immunization with cancer-ecell ingredients from victims.

The report on the program, together with Rauscher's letter of transmittal, was dated January, 1973. There was no immediate indication why its public release was delayed.

The research includes stepped-up and co-ordinated efforts to identify viruses or radiation.

It also provides for increased efforts to identify cancer-prone persons and to find new chemical weapons to use against it.

The cancer institute said an "operational plan" for putting the "strategic plan" into effect should be completed late in fiscal 1974, which ends next June 1.

Jordan River Mines

Dumping Charge

Jordan River Mines Ltd. was charged jointly Friday by the provincial and federal governments with dumping mine tailings into the Jordan River on the south coast of Vancouver Island.

The joint charge was laid in Victoria Provincial Court. It alleges violations of the federal fisheries act and the provincial Pollution Control Act.

The company was convicted in March of an identical charge under the Fisheries Act and fined $1,000. The second charge alleges the company repeated the dumping violation June 24 and 25. It is to appear in court Aug. 30 to face the new charge.

Wheat Stock Record Low

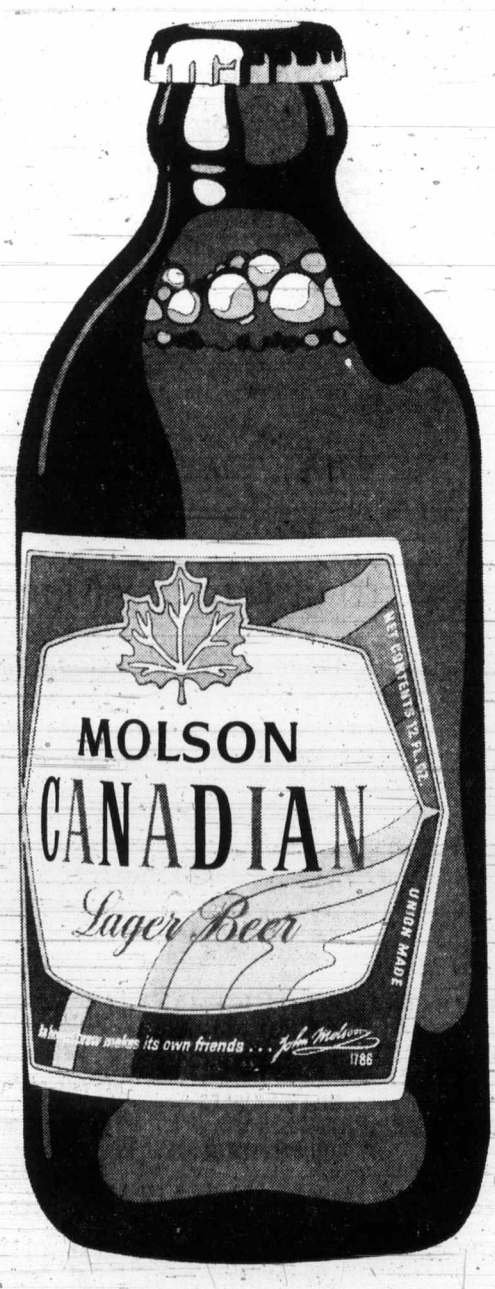

OTTAWA (CP) — The country's wheat stockpile had dropped sharply to its lowest point in more than 20 years at the end of the accounting year for crops July 31, Statistics Canada reported Friday.

Stocks of wheat on farms, elevators, mills and in transit were estimated by the statistics bureau to be 366.1 million bushels, down dramatically from 583.8 million last year and a 10-year average of 630.1 million.

Head of the line Friday for first Black Ball ferry today

Superferry Making Extra Run

Jittery Tourists Jockey For Slim Ferry Spaces

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

Masses of tourists formed huge new lineups trying to flee Vancouver Island Friday after 2,000 unlicensed B.C. Ferries workers walked off their jobs, cutting the most important link with the mainland.

As soon as it became known that B.C. Ferries service was paralysed ,motorists turned to two main ferry links connecting Vancouver Island with points in the U.S.

Lineup Grew

By Friday evening, the lineup at the Black Ball ferry terminal stretched all the way from the Inner Harbor, along Wharf, across Johnson Street Bridge, down Tyee and Songhees Roads.

Cars, trucks and campers lined up, although they were informed they might have to wait up to 36 hours to get on to the Coho to Port Angeles.

In Sidney, motorists scrambled for a place on the ferry to Anacortes, operated by the Washington State Ferries system. The backup there was still more than three miles Friday night and RCMP officers informed drivers they might not even get on the 11 a.m. run today.

Meanwhile, Washington State Ferries officials in Anacortes also reported a massive backup of vehicles trying to get to Vancouver Island, mostly Canadians returning home.

Takes Strain

To relieve some of the pressure, Washington Governor Dan Evans has ordered one additional trip a day by the superferry Walla Walla with a capacity of 206 automobiles and 2,000 passengers.

The Walla Walla was to leave Anacortes at midnight and make a return trip from Sidney at 3 a.m.

Ferry officials at Anacortes said the Walla Walla was already fully loaded by 6 p.m. Friday. The superferry's trip is in addition to the system's two regular runs a day and will continue as long as needed.

Tough Time

Black Ball ferry officials in Port Angeles said they "are having a tough time filling the ships going to Victoria."

They said they warn all motorists not to take their cars, but instead leave them at Port Angeles and go to Victoria as foot passengers.

The Princess Marguerite was making its regular daily runs to Seattle and Port Angeles from the Inner Harbor, but since she takes cars by reservation only, no lineups were developing.

One of the first businesses to feel the crunch of the strike was Pacific Stage Lines operating buses between Victoria and Vancouver via B.C. Ferries.

"Our drivers were sitting around all day with nothing to do," said Walter Watson, manager of operations.

He added that the bus trips will resume at noon Sunday from Victoria to Nanaimo and then on to Vancouver via the CPR's Princess of Vancouver.

Motorists preparing for long waits in the Black Ball and the Sidney-Anacortes lineup were still in high spirits Friday afternoon.

"I love your city," said Bill Ross of Lake Tahoe, Calif, who had been waiting in line since 6 a.m. to get onto the ferry to Port Angeles.

"We've spent two weeks on Vancouver Island, mainly around Long Beach and Qualicum. We didn't know a thing about the strike until we got here last night," he said.

Al Hutton of Albuquerque N.M., had also been waiting in line for more than nine hours said he didn't really care how much longer he had to wait.

"We went out to Butchart Gardens last night. Really enjoyed it," he said.

Some drivers waiting in the lineup in Sidney were equally cheerful.

Good Neighbors

In Nanaimo, as late as noon Friday there were more than a hundred vehicles of all descriptions still parked in the Departure Bay ferry terminal lot.

Meanwhile, Salvation Army and a number of churches continued their emergecy aid service for the travellers — originally set up Thursday night — and many Nanaimo-area residents put up tourists in their homes.

'Neighbors' Ease Ferry Lineup Pains

By DON GAIN
Colonist Reporter

Sidney Lions, Kinsmen, Sanscha Hall Association and the Pacific Commuter bus line got together Friday night to ease the pain for tourists waiting to board Washington State Ferries from Sidney to Anacortes today.

They put on a dance at Sanscha Hall, with music supplied by the Mission Ridge, fed the stranded travellers hot dogs, doughnuts and coffee, arranged billets for women and children and had the men bed down in the hall for the night.

Pacific Commuter ran a shuttle service from the lineups to the hall.

Bill Turner, caretaker of Sanscha Hall, told the Colonist about 10 p.m. that the hall was packed with people "having a great old time."

"It's better than sitting in a ruddy car," he said.

It had been a long day for Turner but the idea of Sidney's hospitality for the stranded tourists seemed to buoy him up, or maybe it was the music that lifted his spirits.

"It's been a busy day," he said. "First thing this morning we had the strikers' meeting here and it's going to be a busy night."

But his voice sounded cheerful.

In Victoria, tourists in cars, campers, station wagons, vans and other vehicles also waited in seemingly endless lines for a chance to board the Black Ball's ferry Coho for Port Angeles today.

Those who had sleeping facilities in their vehicles settled in for the night. Some were trying to get comfortable in their cars but there were many vacant cars indicating the occupants had gone to a movie or had checked into hotels and motels for the night.

The Princess Mary restaurant sent a coffee van up to Tyee Road to dispense free coffee from 5 p.m. on and were to be back again at 7 a.m. today.

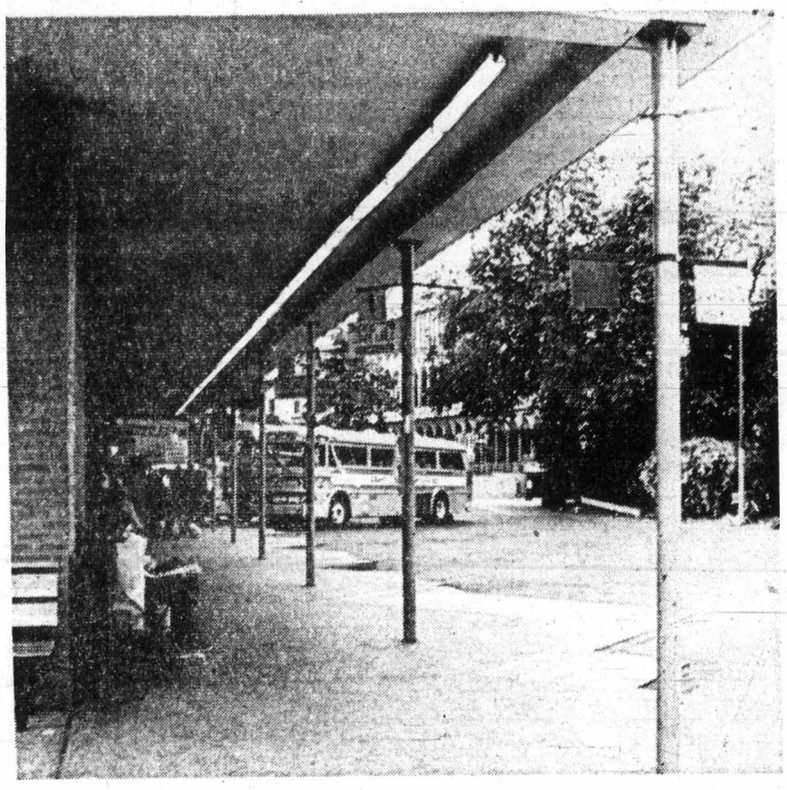

Tempers varied in coping with the situation.

"This is the first time we've come up here and it will be the last," said Mrs. Rosemary Lambert of Los Angeles who was planning on spending the night in her station wagon with sons Philip, 16, and Nolen, 13.

"We've been parked here since 6 p.m. and we don't expect to get on the ferry until 7:30 p.m. tomorrow night," she said.

Dr. and Mrs. Willard Mathiesen of Portland, Ore., who had been up in Strathcona Park with their pickup truck and camping gear, said they had to be home by Monday because the doctor had appointments to perform surgery that day.

They'd been up to the Island before. "And we'll be back again," added Mrs. Mathiesen. "We wouldn't let something like this stop us." They were told they would have to wait 27 hours.

BUS depot in downtown Victoria was all but deserted Friday as combination of B.C. Ferries walkout and rail workers' rotating strike cut water ties between mainland B.C. and Vancouver Island. New lineups, meanwhile, formed at American ferry terminals in Victoria and Sidney as tourists sought to leave Island. Waiting in huge lineup for Coho to Port Angeles, Allan Burton of Beaverton pours coffee for Richard Kowalyk of Cleveland Ohio, meeting for first time.

Foreign Parks Delegates Visiting Island

By JON FERRY
Colonist Reporter

The best caviar in the world comes from the Caspian Sea and it's cheap at $25 a pound.

At least, that's according to Mashallah Karman who works for the parks branch of Iran's ministry of agriculture and natural resources.

Karman is one of 36 parks delegates from 21 countries visiting Victoria this week as part of their six-week tour of parks in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico.

A literal translation of Karman's name perhaps explains his obvious interest in caviar. It means: "If God wishes, the man is satisfied."

The parks system in Iran is relatively young, he says. It was started in 1956, when some 20 million acres were set aside by royal decree — mostly in the form of wildlife preserves. The land includes the 18,300-foot-high Mount Davamand and the caviar-laden Caspian Sea, 92 feet below sea level.

Karman says many of the 38 wildlife parks in Iran have terrain and wildlife not dissimilar to that of the North American Rockies. There are Persian Ibex (rather like the Rocky mountain goat), wild sheep, brown bear, roe deer and red deer (rather like elk).

Hunters can take out licences to shoot the game and pay fees which vary according to the rarity of their kill. The 70-mile-an-hour cheetah, of course is a protected animal.

The delegates were welcomed to Victoria Thursday by B.C. parks director Robert Ahrens, who read them part of specially prepared background paper on the history of the Canadian system.

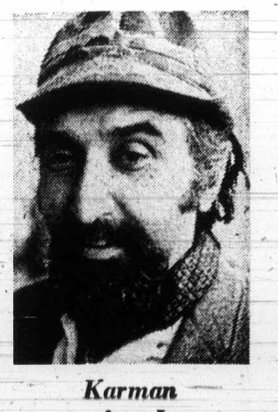

His paper deplored the fact that "many Canadians are still unable to look at a mature forest without calculating its worth in terms of lumber, or to gaze at a jagged mountain range without trying to assess and extract the minerals hidden in the rocks."

Ahrens' report pointed out the "gaps and imbalances" in both provincial and federal parks systems in Canada.

More than 90 per cent of B.C.'s park area is mountainous, he said, and does not include some of the other major representative landscapes.

At the national level, out of a total of 53,205 square miles of parkland, Alberta had 20,717 square miles and Prince Edward Island only seven square miles. About 32 per cent of the total park area is contained in Wood Buffalo Park on the Alberta Northwest Territories border.

Ahrens also enumerated several "major geographical and ecological regions" excluded from the national parks system, such as the Straits of Georgia inland ocean, the Pacific Ocean fjordlands, the Alberta Rocky Mountain foothills, Saskatchewan prairie, Arctic tundra, Hudson Bay lowlands or Labrador fjordlands, shorelines of the large lakes and only "nominal representation" of the St. Lawrence River.

Seasickness Hits Crew

Dogwood Holed Up for Repairs

The Arctic Dogwood, a 53-foot staysail schooner that set off on a voyage through the Northwest Passage from Victoria last month, is lying at Homer, Alaska, with a three-foot hole in her bow and damaged rigging.

The damage occurred Monday when the Dogwood collided with a workboat from the U.S. Coast Guard Ironwood that was helping her dock.

B.C. government spokesman George Baker said Friday the Dogwood's skipper Bob Masters had decided to put into Homer because his wife Audrey and photographer Eric Rankin had been seasick during the passage from Alert Bay.

The schooner dropped sail in Home Harbor to find her engine would not work. Masters asked help from the U.S. Coast Guard who sent the workboat, said Baker.

Nudging the Dogwood towards the wharf, the workboat could not get away from her, said Baker.

"They kept banging together."

By the time she was tied up, the Dogwood had a three-foot hole in her bow above the waterline and damaged spreaders and other rigging, he said.

Baker said he had been talking to Masters by phone Thursday and the Dogwood was now awaiting new spreaders.

The concrete of the hull could be mended by the crew because the wire on which the cement is laid was undamaged.

Baker said the Dogwood should be ready for sea again next week. He said the vessel would not complete the passage this year as had been hoped but Masters hoped to stay at Tuktoyaktuk, N.W.T.

The Dogwood is being sponsored on her voyage by the B.C. trade and commerce department to promote B.C. marine equipment and industry. The project has received $25,000 from the government so far.

Richter

NDP 'Purge' Blasted

Acting opposition leader Frank Richter accused the NDP government Friday of conducting a "purge" of top-level administrators in the civil service with the intention of replacing them with "party hacks, cardholders and free loading consultants."

"No amount of double talk can now disguise the fact that the purge is on as far as the B.C. civil servants are concerned." the Social Credit MLA for Boundary-Similkameen said.

Richter was commenting on government plans to drop a number of present deputy ministers one level in the civil service hierarchy and replace them with new appointments.

He charged that "horizontal promotions" are " a dime a dozen in the building these days" and that civil servants of "great integrity and outstanding ability" are being done away with.

Trade Minister:

Meat Prices Easing

OTTAWA (CP) — Some relief from high meat prices was predicted Thursday by Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie, but he expects it to take "a week or so" to work through the marketing system to the consumer.

He based his prediction on talks with packing industry spokesmen who indicated there will be "an easing of prices in the near future."

"But," he said in an interview, "I think that one has to remember that the meat coming onto the market in the next few days and perhaps for another week was meat which was purchased at higher prices.

"... The price of steers has eased in the last couple of days. It takes a week or so before that works its way through the system."

Gillespie met Thursday with packing industry representatives as well as those from the soybean-crushing industry, which produces high-protein livestock feed supplements. Earlier he met with the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, the Canadian Cattlemen's Association and hog producers.

The talks were aimed at clearing some misunderstanding, on the part of the producers, about livestock export restrictions imposed at midnight Monday. The measures, announced by Prime Minister Trudeau after a special cabinet meeting, were part of a package to control the cost of living.

The trade minister emphasized that the rising prices are a reflection of a world situation.

"There's no way of insulating the Canadian producer from these world-wide price trends."

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: In a column a woman asked, "Am I mistaken, or is it bad manners to use a toothpick at the dinner table?" You replied "The gentleman should have excused himself."

My daughter, age 13, that very same night, proceeded to pick her teeth at the table. I asked where she learned that stunt. Her reply was, "I said 'excuse me.' According to Ann Landers it is all right to pick your teeth at the table if you excuse yourself."

I don't know where you were raised, Ann, but nowhere in this area is it considered proper to use a toothpick at the table. Are you on vacation and is someone else writing your column? Please explain. — Non-Picker.

Dear N.P.: When I go on vacation the work is done before I leave. Every word that appears under my byline is written by me.

And now about that toothpick:

I said, "It is indeed poor manners to use a toothpick at the table. The man should have excused himself."

I did not mean the man should have said "excuse me" and gone ahead and used the toothpick at the table. I meant the man should have said, "Excuse me," and then left the table and taken the toothpick to the men's room. Got it?

Dear Ann Landers: I lost my husband a year ago. He was a wonderful person and although I put up a brave front I still miss him very much and think about him constantly.

Several people have commented on the fact that I am still wearing my wedding ring. I have been told to remove it since I am no longer a married woman. I can't bring myself to do it. It has been a part of me for so many years. What do you say? — Wondering.

Dear W.: If you want to wear it, continue to do so. Some widows switch their wedding bands to the other hand, which seems more sensible than putting it in a drawer.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 24-year-old ex-high school basketball player. The letter from the "cage cat" who urged parents to take time out to go watch their kids engage in sports brought back some memories.

My parents wanted to come to the games to cheer me on but I asked them not to. I thought I wouldn't play as well because they were in the stands. So they never saw me play until my last game. I played a great game (21 points, 12 rebounds) and after it was over I felt very good about it and could see the happiness in their faces.

I realize now that my parents missed seeing a wonderful part of their son's life as he grew to be a man. And I missed a lot of pleasure myself. — A Personal Foul.

Dear P.F.: Thanks for being big enough to admit you were wrong. Perhaps some other cage cat will learn from your mistake.

Reception Tomorrow

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nuttall of 838 Old Esquimalt Road, Esquimalt, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary Sunday with a reception for family and friends from 2 to 5 p.m. Among the expected guests are their daughters Mrs. Evelyn Corbett, Mrs. Mary Mather and Mrs. Inez Ridgeley, eight grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

First It Was Olga, Then Whole Family

Five years ago life couldn't have been more bleak for a family of five in Crete.

They were struggling to make some sort of existence in a dilapidated three-room house without electric light or water.

The youngest, two-year-old Olga and her older sister Paraskevoula were weak and frequently ill—there was no heat during the winters, which can be harsh in Crete. The parents had no money to buy building materials or clothing.

Now things have changed.

The family's standard of living was bounced up since 1968 when Peggy McDonald, 3944 Lauder, Saanich, took on sponsorship of Olga through Save the Children Fund. Miss McDonald, a judge's secretary, later "adopted" the whole family.

The house has been repaired, there's electricity (one light bulb hangs from the ceiling) and water has been piped into the home.

The family is able to get enough fuel to keep a fire burning in the cold weather.

This summer Miss McDonald travelled to Crete to visit the family in the tiny village of Roumeli, amid olive groves.

Olga, she discovered, had grown into a normal youngsteer who had just finished Grade 1.

"She was very shy at first, but soon became quite talkative and helpful," Miss McDonald said.

Since no interpreter was available, they had difficulty communicating, but Miss McDonald got along fairly well with a phrase book during her three-day stay.

Back in Victoria, Miss McDonald said she was impressed with the way sponsorships are managed by the Save the Children Fund.

"The individuals or families picked are the most needy and yet the most likely to make something of themselves with financial help."

The sponsorship scheme has been in operation since 1920 and today more than 11,000 children in 26 countries are helped. Sponsors send money quarterly, usually for food extras, school supplies, fees and transportation.

Sponsorship costs $80 a year per child and $135 a year for a family. Those interested in sponsorship can phone Mrs. W. W. McGill, local representative of Save the Children Fund, at 592-9283.

Cukes aren't only things worth pickling

Fresh Vegetables In a Fine Pickle

By PHYLLIS HANES
Christian Science Monitor

Home gardeners who struggled through the hazards of early planting this year, now are beginning to reap the harvest with everything from beans to zucchini, fresh off the vine.

This means pickling and preserving and utilizing every pint and pound of produce that isn't instantly served up for family means.

One thing to consider while you're in the planning stage of pickling, is that cukes aren't the only things that are used for pickling.

Why not pickle some onions as well as green tomatoes, peppers, green beans, cauliflower or even zucchini? They are all super as pickled products — and most are as easy to do as dills or gherkins.

The home preserver has an ideal chance to be creative in preserving and canning since one of the aims is to have food on hand that will add variety to the winter meals.

You may want to make your own catsup this year, especially if you have a bumper crop of tomatoes. But even sticking to the simple process of pickling can put your efforts into three categories—the vegetable pickles, fruit pickles, and also fish pickles.

So here are some hints for the basic kind of pickling.

Premium pickle products cannot be obtained unless top-quality ingredients are selected, no matter what the product is.

Vegetables should be tender. Fruit should be firm and slightly underripe.

If your products are not home grown, be sure to check to see that they are unwaxed. Pickling brine cannot penetrate a waxed vegetable.

The best salt for preparing a brine is a pure granulated salt. Use if it is available. Non-iodized salt will produce a cloudy brine while iodized salt may cause the pickles to darken.

The best vinegar for pickling is either cider or distilled, but read the label before purchasing. A vinegar for pickling should have an acidity of four to six per cent if a firm pickled product is desired. This is 40 to 60 grain vinegar.

A word of caution — if a crisp, pickled product is desired, do not dilute the vinegar unless stated in the recipe.

Fresh spices are recommended for the best flavored products. Spices deteriorate quickly in heat and humidity. Alum is not needed to make pickles crisp and firm if good quality ingredients and up-to-date procedures are used.

All pickle products should have heat treatment, even for brined pickles and sauerkraut, to destroy organisms that cause spoilage, and to inactiviate ensymes that may affect flavor, color and texture.

PICKLED PEPPERS

4 quarts long red, green, or yellow peppers (Hungarian Banana, or other varieties)
1½ cups salt
4 cups water
2 cloves garlic
2 tablespoons prepared horseradish
10 cups vinegar
2 cups water
¼ cup sugar

Cut two small slits in each pepper. Wear rubber gloves to prevent burning hands Dissolve salt in 4 quarts of water. Pour over peppers and let stand 12 to 18 hours in a cool place. Drain; rinse and drain thoroughly. Combine remaining ingredients; simmer 25 minutes.

Remove garlic. Pack peppers into hot jars, leaving ¼ inch head space. Pour boiling hot pickling liquid over peppers, leaving ¼ inch head space. Adjust caps. Process half-pints and pints 10 minutes in boiling-water bath. Yield: about 8 pints.

ZUCCHINI PICKLE

2 pounds fresh, firm zucchini
2 small or medium onions
¼ cup salt (pickling salt is best)
2 cups white sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon tumeric
2 teaspoons mustard seed
3 cups cider vingegar

Wash zucchini and cut in thin slices. Peel and cut onions in quarters, then slice very thin. Add to zucchini in large bowl. Cover zucchini and onions with an inch of water and add salt. Let stand two hours. Drain throughly.

Bring remaining ingredients to boiling. Pour over zucchini and onions. Let stand two hours. Bring all ingredients to boiling point and heat five minutes.

Pack into pre-heated jars. Leave ⅛ inch head space. Adjust caps and process in water-bath canner at simmering temperature for 15 minutes. Cool. Test for seal. Store.

Toastmistresses Give Workshops

Maureen Butt of Victoria, assistant supervisor of Pacific northwest region of International Toastmistress clubs, will be going to Penticton next week to conduct workshops for executive members in regional councils.

There are 12 councils in the region which covers Alaska, the Yukon, British Columbia and parts of Washington state.

Toastmistresses who are council officers will attend the seminar, conducted annually.

Also presenting workshops are two other Victoria members, Luxy Wiart, regional treasurer, and Sylvia Ludlow.

Mrs. Butt leaves for Penticton Friday.

Ruff's Role Limited But She Will Go . . .

'Up to and Beyond Letter of the Law'

By HELEN HOSSIE
Colonist Reporter

Colonist columnist Gorde Hunter recently charged Kathleen Ruff, director of the Human Rights Act and Ernie Hall, Provincial Secretary, with being "derelict in their duties" for allowing discrimination against non-union employees.

He mentioned two specific cases where non-union shops were not invited to bid for government contracts.

He concluded from this that there is a "definite" omission in the Human Rights Act and he wanted to know what Ruff and Hall planned to do about it.

"I've hammered this omission before. I've wondered out loud what Human Rights Commission head Kathleen Ruff intended doing about it, but Mrs. Ruff has been mute. She has not stood up for all human rights.

"Nor has Ernie Hall," Hunter wrote.

Actually, there's not much Ms. Ruff could do about it even if she wanted to, the director maintains.

As director of the act, Ms. Ruff's job is "not to stand up for all human rights but to guarantee the specific rights contained in the act."

The purpose of the Human Rights Act is to eliminate discriminatory practices relating to race, religion, sex, color, nationality, ancestry, place of origin and age, if between the ages of 45 and 65 years, under the specific circumstances of employment, public services, accommodation and public signs.

The act mentions nothing about discrimination against non-union employees, or indeed about a hundred other practices that might be considered discriminatory by some people.

To say there is an omission in the Human Rights Act is one thing but to say the director of the act is derelict in her duties for failing to do something about it is quite another, Ms. Ruff says.

It's a mistake made by a lot of people, according to the director.

"The title of the act is misleading because it's so general," she says.

"Most people don't realize the act deals with specific areas of human rights — that it's not supposed to be a guarantee of total justice.

"I have my own personal views but as the dirrector, I can't prostitute the act to further anyone's pet cause, whether I believe in it or not.

"I am at times urged to take up a whole host of causes totally outside the province of the Human Rights Act on the grounds that they involve some kind of 'discrimination,'" she says.

"Discrimination outside the terms of the Human Rights Act is, if one thinks about it for a moment, widespread.

"There is 'discrimination' in giving preference to veterans under VLA; in allowing only Canadian citizens to vote in elections; in giving the Canada Pension Plan only to those over the age of 65; in not allowing people to go about in public naked; in setting a minimum wage of $1.65 for those under 18 and $2 for those over.

"The list is endless. These are all matters that are outside the terms of the Human Rights Act and whether they are acceptable or unacceptable must be determined fairly and squarely on their own merits, not by distorting the Human Rights Act as a camouflage.

"I can't cast aside the terms of reference of the Human Rights Act and set myself up as the voice of conscience, ruling on all matters of justice," she said.

"This would be unwarranted arrogance on my part which would cause the Human Rights Act itself to be brought into confusion and disrepute.

"Hunter and others want to make use of human rights legislation to forward their own pet causes," she said.

"I get pressure from all sorts of people—anti-abortion groups who think I should protect the rights of the unborn, pressure from people who want the provincial government to license acupuncture.

"Some of those who are most shrill and vociferous about their own pet causes are the quickest to deny rights to other minority groups that don't please them," she added.

"It's worth noting that in the past month or so, Hunter has written two columns revealing his insensitivity to the rights of homosexuals and French-Canadians."

Although her frame of reference is limited by the act, Ms. Ruff says she does not interpret the act in a narrow or legalistic way.

"To achieve the objectives of the Human Rights Act, I am willing to do all I possibly can up to and beyond the letter of the law."

'Human Rights Act isn't a guarantee of total justice'

"I think it is not sufficient simply to investigate signed complaints of acts of discrimination.

"In my view, it is necessary to take the initiative, to encourage affirmative programs, to question practices and attitudes that impede equality of opportunity, to develop close relationships with minority groups in order to better serve their needs, to actively promote compliance with the principles of the Human Rights Act.

"My role is not to be objective but to be a catalyst—an advocate for minority groups who don't enjoy equal rights in socie y.

"My job is not to be objective, but to be committed to the people I serve."

One of the weaknesses of the human rights department, Ms. Ruff says, has been its isolation from the people it's trying to serve.

"We've had little feed-back from minority groups."

Communication was strengthened this summer, however, with the employment of four people under the summer employment program, to stimulate interest in human rights at the community level.

The four workers, three of whom are native Indians, are working in different parts of the province, helping to set up human rights groups and organize local human rights conferences to be held later in the year.

Ms. Ruff feels the employment of three Indians is significant because "nothing will change until members of minority groups are in positions of power at all levels of society.

"There are people who say, you musn't practice a reverse discrimination—you musn't hire an Indian or a woman just because he or she is a member of a minority group.

"Well, I think that's hogwash. You do have to have minority groups in positions of power beeause the issues they're concerned with are never given as high a priority by people not directly involved.

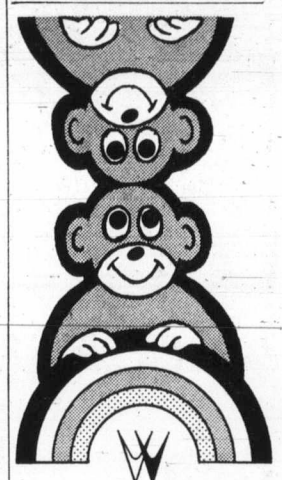

"People not directly involved just don't have the same determination," she said.

At the same time, she said, "human rights legislation must not patronize members of minority groups."

"We're not going to do things for Indians or women; we're going to enable them to do things for themselves."

Manx Witches' Relics Move to 'Freaky' Berth

SAN FRANCISCO (Reuter) — The "treasure" of the Witches Mill on the Isle of Man was wasted in Britain, says Derek Copperthwaite who bought the 10,000 magical relics for $300,000 and shipped them to the U.S.

"San Francisco is a hotbed of the occult and freaky ideas," he said, "and here is where the collection belongs. There's tremendous interest in it."

Copperthwaite is director of research and design for the Museum of Witchcraft and Magic, which opened its mirrored doors in the Fisherman's Wharf area on—what else—Friday the 13th.

A British-born consultant to the museum, John Steele, a 50-year-old high school teacher in Victoria and an authority on black magic and the occult, thinks the collection is "fabulous."

The $1-million museum is operated by Toronto-headquartered Ripley International, which also owns a number of "Believe It or Not" and wax museums. It is claimed to be the biggest authentic museum of the occult in the world.

The collection was sold in January after several months of hush-hush negotiations by Monique Wilson—better known as "Lady Olwen," high priestess of British magic.

She inherited the relics from Gerald Gardner, who died in 1964. He was known as the "King of the Witches" and the heir of the celebrated occultist Aleister Crowley (1865-1947).

Copperthwaite, 39, British-born resident of Canada, said Lady Olwen was reluctant to part with the collection. "But she was obviously very sick—she coughed a lot — and needed the money to go off to the sun in Spain," he said.

"Apparently, her magic couldn't cure her cough," he added.

Lady Olwen and her husband, Scotty Wilson, had the collection on view to the public at the 17th century Witches Mill near Castletown on the Isle of Man.

"We tried to keep the sale secret because we thought there might be a furor about a national treasure leaving Britain," said Copperthwaite.

"But when the news finally leaked out, there was a mixed reaction locally. Many people had been complaining about it for years, and said 'good riddance,' but there were others who thought the Witches Mill had brought the island a lot of publicity."

"There's so many pieces it's going to take us two or three years to look through them all. That's not including the two or three thousand books on the occult that Crowley and Gardner either wrote or collected.

"So far we've only included a portion of the collection in the museum, some of the best items such as a silver chalice, an ivory wand and Dr. Gardner's original altar table."

VOICE OF ONE

Great Failures Lead To Great Successes

By REV. DR. FRANK MORLEY

Great men not only survive failure but are educated by failure.

George Washington at the beginning of the American revolution was a bumbling military leader of whom a historian inaccurately said he lost every battle except the last one.

As the war went on, he increased in competence, while his character commanded the people's loyalty and admiration. Few nobler men have graced American public life.

Following her crushing defeats at Ulmand Austerlitz, Austria grew in strength until her intervention against Napoleon would prove decisive. After her ignominous defeat at Jena, Prussia was roused to prodigious feats of national determination. The world looks with awe on the revival of West Germany and Japan.

What is true of nations is true of men. Darwin in The Origin of Species said, "Thus from the war of nature, from famine and from death, the most exalted object directly follows."

Albert Einstein was expelled from a Munich school when 15 years old. He failed his entrance examinations at Zurich Polytechnic. He was refused a situation as a mathematical assistant.

He was later dismissed from his position as a tutor in a boarding school. When he came to Princeton he was asked what salary he expected and his opinion of himself after so many failures was so low that he asked only $3,000 annually.

Considering himself a failure in writing poetry, Sir Walter Scott turned to writing novels with brilliant success.

A dismal failure as a school teacher, Phillips Brooks became America's greatest preacher.

Henry Fawcett was blinded by a gunshot at the age of 25, but at 32 he became a member of parliament and subsequently postmaster-general.

Bertrand Russell tells of a man who, when young, lost the use of both legs, but became an expert on rose blight and wrote five volumes on the subject.

A man who failed often wrote that God had made his life a constant pageant of victory. All great men have at one time, been great failures.

Projects To Reap Benefits

The Ecumenical Church of St. Peter and St. Paul in Gold River, Mount St. Mary hospital chaplaincy services and the Anglican diocesan audio-visual educational division will be represented at a garden party at the residence of Maj.-Gen. and Mrs George Pearkes from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. Sept. 15.

The three are special projects for 1973 for the congregation of St. Peter's Anglican Church, Lake Hill, which will hold the event at the Pearke's home at 1268 Tattersall Drive.

The Mount St. Mary hospital bus will take wheelcharir patients to the party and Fred Holliday, director of audio-visual education for the diocese, will give demonstrations of his work.

Concept Clinic Coming

Synchronizaation of the personality leads to total fulfillment and so greater happiness, peace and ultimate prosperity, says Jack Blackwell of Chilliwack who will be in Victoria next week for a two-day seminar.

Blackwell is calling his workshop an Adventure in Self Discovery. It will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday in the Sherwood Park Motor Hotel, 123 Gorge Road. Fee for the two days is $15.

Blackwell, a native of Winnipeg, attended United College and University of Manitoba. He is an accredited teacher of Concept Therapy Institute of San Antonio, Tex. One of the tenets of concept therapy is that there is no conflict between science and theology, that both are saying the same thing in a different way.

Double Duty Program

Churches Combine During Building

Parkdale Evangelical Free Church is moving from the corner of Irma and Harriet to the University Chapel building at 1095 Tolmie.

The two congregations will share the church while the new home of University Chapel is being built in Gordon Head.

The Parkdale church will hold its first service on Tolmie at 7:30 p.m. Sunday with Rev. Carl Fosmark of White Rock giving an illustrated talk on his trip to the Holy Land.

On subsequent Sundays, its services will be held at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. while the University Chapel congregation will worship at 9:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m.

The building on Harriet is being taken over by a fraternal organization.

Services have been held there since 1939 when the church was built, mostly by volunteer workers. The church came into being as an independent Sunday school in the 1920s under the leadership of Tom Sawyer and Herbert Bracken. Meetings then were held in St. Mark's Anglican Church on Boleskine.

Sunday school and young people's work were carried on in the new building until 1950 when the work was expanded to include adults. This was the start of the present congregation.

Rev. James Story was appointed the first pastor and the group became affiliated with the Evangelical Free Church of America. Two pastors followed Story—Rev. Eric McMurray and Rev. Lloyd Mackie. The present pastor, Rev. Carl Klassen, was called in 1967.

The church sends support to the Children's Evangel Home in Hong Kong and to many other missions and missionaries.

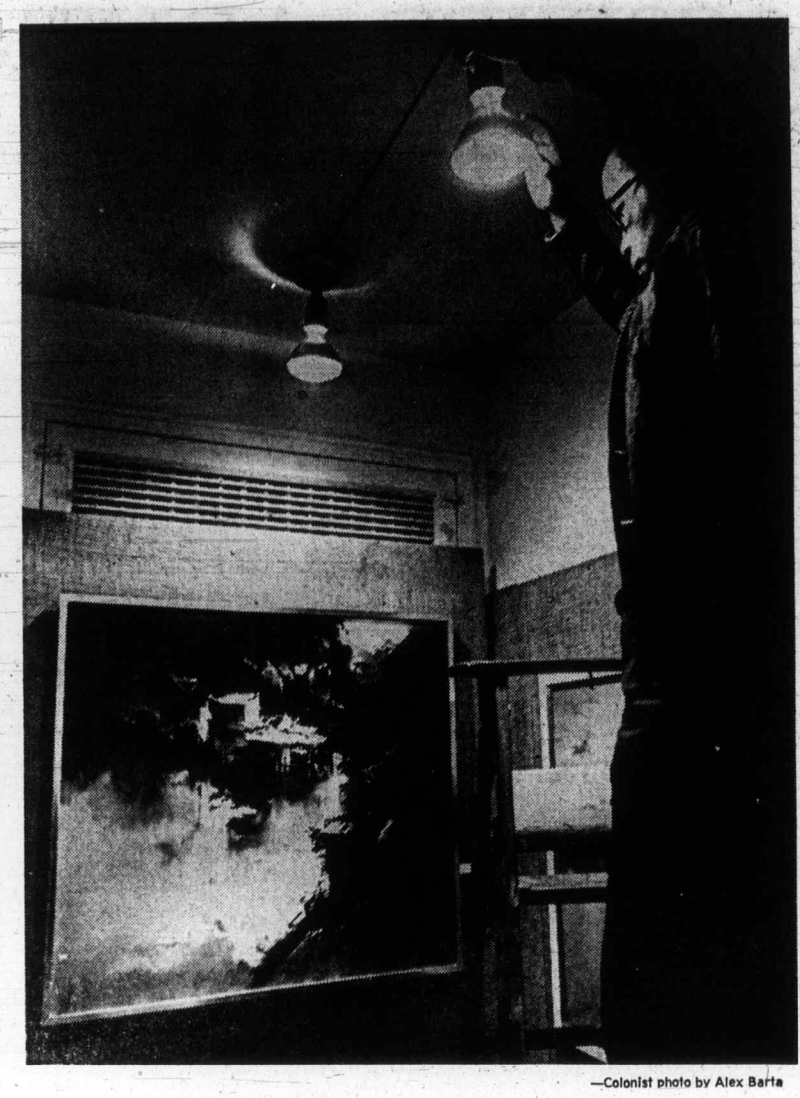

From the church, various members have gone forth to become ministers and missionaries.

The Vance Browns are in Haiti, Verna Aspary in Laos, Louise Sawyer, granddaughter of Tom Sawyer, is in the Philippines. Peter Hanks and his family are in Pakistan.

Eve Fowler and her family have been living in Billings, Mont., since her missionary husband, Ernest, was killed by brigands in Colombia, South America, several years ago.

Rick Reynolds is attending Regent College, Vancouver, and is interim pastor of Burnaby Evangelical Free Church. Rev. Tim Klassen, son of Parkdale's present pastor, is assistant at the Langley church.

The church is a member of the newly-established Evangelical Free Church of Canada which is affiliated with the American church.

Leung adjusts light over painting of small village

Talent: 'Gift from God'

Artist Likes Quiet And Simple People

By DON GAIN
Colonist Church Editor

Hong Leung lives in a world of contrasts. The Chinese artist has his studio in overcrowded Hong Kong but he likes to escape to the small fishing villages nearby.

This is where he gets most of his subjects for his paintings.

"I like to go to the quiet places where the people lead simple lives," he said this week in an interview.

With Victoria artist Stephen Lowe acting as interpreter he talked of the style and philosophy of his work.

"My talent I consider a gift from God," said the 40-year-old artist. "And I feel obliged to pass it along to my four sons. I am giving them lessons in art."

He attempts to catch in his paintings, he said, the feeling of peace and loneliness he feels when he is in a forest or on a mountain.

He likes to catch the light of dawn or the after-sunset glow and he tries to evoke in his work the life of the fishermen.

"The fishermen work very hard. Their life is very simple. They have very few wordly goods. But I believe they are happy people. I try to get this feeling into my paintings," the artist said.

He describes his style as semi-abstract. His oil colors are strong but, paradoxically, they give the effect in many cases of watercolors.

He finds the warmth and friendliness of Victoria a decided change from the crowded, pushing atmosphere of Hong Kong.

"Everything here is so clean," he sid., "The air, the streets. And the flowers are very beautiful."

Lowe, his host, said he even admired the dandelions and was sorry to hear they were continually being suppressed.

The artist was born in the Canton region of China and has been in the crown colony since 1949.

He is largely self-taught but has for years met with other artists to compare techniques. he worked for Konn's Fine Arts Gallery from 1961 but later opened his own gallery in the Mirama Hotel in Hong Kong.

His paintings are on exhibition in the Stephen Lowe Art Gallery in the Empress Hotel at least until the end of the month.

Chorus Offers 'Soul Music'

The Hallelujah Chorus from Biola College in Los Angeles, Cal., will give a concert in Emmanuel Baptist Church at 8 p.m. today. The eight-member group, now on a tour of the West Coast, will sing soul music directed by John Hess, composer and musician.

Gospel Series In Beacon Hill

The tenth in the series of gospel services in Beacon Hill Park will be held at 7 p.m. Sunday at the Cameron bandshell. The outdoor services end the following Sunday for this summer.

Church Reopens After Century

TODI, Italy (AP) — St. Mary of the Consolation, often described as "the ideal church of the Italian Renaissance," has been reopened after being closed almost a century for repairs. The hill where the church stands in central Italy was sliding down, threatening to collapse the building. The walls and domes cracked and tilted.

Counselling Set For Fall, Winter

The fall and winter programs of the Greater Victoria Citizens Counselling Centre have been announced. Registration will be held at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 17, in Metropolitan United Church.

Groups are being formed to bring about enrichment of marriage and family, personal growth and development of potential. There will also be groups exploring personal growth for single people and for those retired, or getting ready for retirement.

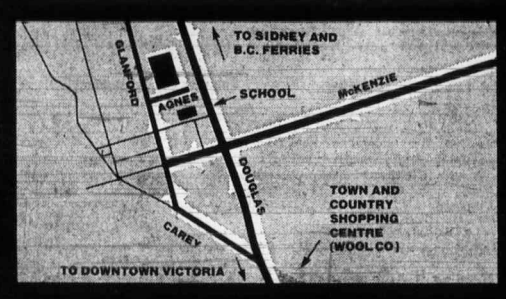

The fall session will run until Dec. 10 and the 12-week winter session starts Jan. 7. Fee for the fall program is $7 single and $11 for couples.

Application forms are available from co-ordinator Mona Hundleby, 1520 McRae. 592-1566.

25 MALE or FEMALE HELP WANTED

"The Department of Human Resources, Prince Rupert, British Columbia, will accept applications for the position of House Parents to staff a Group Home for teenaged girls.
QUALIFICATIONS:
Applicants must be a congenial, married couple in good health, who are vigorous and who both have the ability to accept a young person for what she is and not for what she possibly should be, as well as give love, without reservations.
To qualify, the couple must also have a very thorough knowledge and understanding of human behaviour generally, and teenage behaviour specifically.
Consideration can be given to a couple with one child.
A couple with teaching experience would be a definite asset.
DUTIES:
To provide continuous care to up to eight teenage girls who are in the care of the Department.
To learn to work as part of the Social Welfare team and to take instruction or courses relevant to the job as provided by the Department.
SALARY:
An attractive subsidy is available, including free housing, car allowance and other considerations.
Provisions can be made for relief staff for time off, annual holidays, or to assist the house mother with routine household tasks.
This is a full time job for both house parents.
Applicants write to the Department of Human Resources, 222-5th Street, Prince Rupert, British Columbia, giving age, interests and previous work experience."

BUREAU OF USELESS INFORMATION: Friday's answer — The famous 1847-1931 American portrayed in a 1939 Mickey Rooney movie and a 1940 Spencer Tracy film was Thomas Alva Edison and the films were, in order, Young Tom Edison and Edison the Man.

Today's question — Katharine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy were married lawyers in the fine comic film Adams' Rib, soon to be a TV series. Which was prosecutor and which defender? In addition, who played the defendant and what actor played the husband she shot? The answers Tuesday.

Saturday Highlights

C 10:00 a.m. — Two hours of Vancouver's annual PNE parade. An hour of highlights is due at 11 p.m.—2.

C 7:00 p.m. — PBS Special of the Week may repeat the Germaine Greer-William Buckley debate on women's lib, followed by a T. S. Eliot profile—9.

● C 11:00 — The much-discussed new U.S. drama Sticks and Bones, about a tragic returned veteran from Vietnam, with Anne Jackson and Tom Alderage. CBS refused to show it in March and KIRO has snubbed it today—12.

Saturday Sport

NOTE: Channel 5 will have specials from the world university student games in Moscow at 2 p.m. and 4:30 p.m.

C 11:00 a.m. — Baseball, Dodgers at Chicago—5.

1:00 p.m. — Soccer, Moscow vs. Montreal—2.

C 2:00— The U.S. Industries golf event—7, 12.

C 4:30 — Wide World of Sports likely will have Olga Korbut and other Soviet lady gymnasts. Also on Channel 4 at 5 p.m.—8.

C 5:00 — Baseball, Hank Aaron at Montreal—2, 6.

C 6:00 — NFL football exhibition, Minnesota vs. Kansas City. The first game this year from real football—5.

Saturday Movies

10:00 a.m. — The Milkman (curdled 1951 Donald O'Conner plus Durante). The Marquis de Sade drank only whipped cream, y'know—13.

C 11:45 — Song of Scheherazade (offkey 1947 Yvonne de Carlo stinker.) A blot of Rimsky-Korsakov's escutcheon—13.

12:00 noon — Sea of Lost Ships (1954 nothing,) John Derek, Walter Brennan. The only word I can think of is frigate—11.

1:00 p.m. — See Here, Private Hargrove (1944 wartime comedy, dated but occasionally funny), Robert Walker and the lamented Robert Benchley—4.

C 3:00 — Star in the Dust (so-so 1956 psychological western), Richard Boone. From the days when westerns had to think—7.

C 4:00 — Pillars of the Sky (1956 western), Jeff Chandler, Lee Marvin. Same year but no thought, just action—13.

8:00 — Air Force (1943 wartime rah-rah no-no). John Garfield in the wild blue yawnder—13.

C 9:00 — North to Alaska (woeful 1960 John Wayne)—5.

C 9:00 — Carry on Camping (1968 Sid James and Co.)—8.

● 9:00 — To Joy (1949 Ingmar Bergman, one of his best), Stig Olin, Maj-Britt Nilsson. Call it Bergman meets Beethoven—9.

C 9:00 — How To Be Very, Very Popular (unpopular 1955 Betty Grable). The secret is simple: don't write a TV column—11.

C 11:00 — Midnight Lace (1960 Doris Day). Sure it has Rex Harrison and Louis Jourdan but it's still a day dog—7.

C 11:15 — Shock Corridor (only fair 1963 mental-hospital suspense), Peter Breck, Constance Towers—5.

C 11:15 — Carry On Camping (see 9:00)—6.

C 11:30 — The Blue Max (1968 Great War air heroics, long but not bad), George Peppard, James Mason, Ursula Andress. On again Sunday, twice—8.

C 11:30 — Revenge of Frankenstein (1958 Peter Cushing jollity)—13.

C 11:40 — Li'l Abner (1958 musical, not too good), Peter Palmer and Leslie Parrish are the leads but Stubby Kaye and Julie Newmar are the best—2.

C 11:45 — Beloved Infidel (terrible 1959 Scott Fitzgerald loves Sheilah Graham), Gregory Peck, Deborah Kerr. NO—4.

1:15 a.m. — 20 Million Miles to Earth (1957 William Hopper sci-fi foofaw). Of course, de Sade also drank spiked orange juice—13.

Saturday Radio

1:00 p.m. — Showcase with Blood Sweat and Tears—CBU-FM (105.7).

1:30 — Hot Air: Stan Kenton from 1941 to 1951 — CBU (690).

5:00 — Showcase: Canadian jazz all-stars — CBU.

8:00 — The Entertainers talk to 1940s reviver Bette Midler—CBU-FM.

Sunday Highlights

NOTE: Last time today for Cousin Bette at 9 p.m. on Channel 9 and the Lester Pearson-Of All People tandem at 10 p.m. on Channels 2 and 6. Channel 5 starts reruns of Jack Webb's Escape series at 10 p.m.

C 9:30 a.m. — Gardner Ed Hume visits Butchart Gardens—5.

C 12:00 noon — The NBC religious series scans U.S. poverty—5.

C 6:00 p.m. — CBS News Retrospective reaches back to the well-done series of Black America—7, 12.

C 8:00 — Opera greats Robert Merill and Richard Tucker with the Boston Pops. Rerun at 7 p.m. Monday and 8 p.m. Tuesday—9.

C 9:00 — Sunday at Nine's rerun is a small-girl drama—2, 6.

C 10:00 — CTV News does a special on alcoholism—8.

Sunday Sport

C 11:00 a.m. — CBS Sports Spectacular starts early once only—7, 12.

C 1:00 p.m. — U.S. Industries golf ends—7, 12.

C 3:00 — More world university games in Moscow—5.

Sunday Movies

C 10:00 a.m. — The Highwayman (awful 1951 costumer), Philip Friend, other losers, A robbery of your time—13.

12:00 noon — Good Sam (fairish 1948 Samaratin comedy), Gary Cooper, Ann Sheridan. Brucie's law: Good deed doers generally get done—13.

C 1:00 p.m. — Arrow in the Dust (sub-par 1954 Sterling Hayden western). How about the Polish Indian who shot an arrow in the air and missed—5.

C 2:00 — Villa (fair 1958 Mexican rebels,), Cesar Romero, Brian Keith—4.

C 2:30 — The Last Child (Fairly good 1971 furturistic chiller), Van Heflin, Michael Cole, Janet Margolin—6, 8.

2:30 — Cry Danger (1951 Rhonda Fleming breather). Plus Dick Powell—13.

3:00 — The Man Who Finally Died (missable 1962 English missing-man suspense), Stanley Baker, Mai Zetterling—12.

C 4:00 — Six Black Horses (1962 Audie Murphy)—7.

4:00 — Beat the Devil (1954 John Huston takeoff of John Huston), Bogart, Jennifer Jones, Gina Lollobrigida, fine support. Not the spoof Huston wanted but often amusing—13.

4:30 — Showdown at Boot Hill (all-right 1958 western), Charles Bronson, John Carradine. Muscle-flexing and eye-popping, but fun—11.

6:00 — A Majority of One (likeable 1962 inter-racial romance). Alec Guinness is Japanese, Rosalind Russel is Jewish and you is enjoying—11.

C 9:00 — The Blue Max (long, entertaining 1968 First War air epic), George Peppard, trillions more. Great flying scenes—4.

9:00 — The Americanization of Emily (moderately good 1964 war romance, with light touches), James Garner, Julie Andrews— 12.

C 11:15 — The Blue Max (see 9:00)—6.

C 11:30 — Something Evil (1971 nasty-house chiller, okay at best), Sandy Dennis, Darren McGavin, Ralph Bellamy—7, 12.

11:40 — Hands Across the Table (1935 Carole Lombard antique)—2.

● 12:45 a.m. — Roaring 20s (1939 gangsters classic), Cagney, Bogart, Priscilla Lane. Recommended not as a great movie but as one that has greatly influenced modern film makers—4.

Sunday Radio

12:00 noon — A BBC program of G&S music—CBU-FM (105.7).

7:00 p.m. — The Entertainers and 1940s singer Bette Midler—CBU (690).

7:00 Opera Theatre: La Mascotte by Audran — CBU-FM.

●—Recommended; C—Color.

THE ACES® ON BRIDGE

by IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

World Champions

When the same contract is played from different sides of the table an unusual result is likely to take place. Often the different opening lead settles the issue immediately. At other times the defence can recover but the position is not always clear.

Today's hand was played in the final round of the 1973 World Championship. At one table the issue was decided on opening lead; at the other table a more imaginative defence was required after a less-fortunate opening lead.

Vulnerable: North-South
Dealer: South

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of spades.

When Aces Bob Goldman and Mike Lawrence bid the North-South cards they had a normal auction to reach the good contract of three no trump. The only problem was that South (Goldman) was the declarer instead of North.

West led his fourth-best spade, and the king held the trick in dummy. Goldman then made the normal play of the diamond king, which East won with the ace. Spades were continued, and the defence had three spades and a diamond before declarer drew a breath. When the diamond 10 failed to drop, and no miracle holding was found in clubs, declarer was forced to concede another trick for down one.

Had Goldman been able to see through the backs of the cards, he could have made the hand. At trick two a heart to the ace and a diamond to the nine would have turned the trick. Unfortunately, Goldman does not own a pair of special eyeglasses.

In the replay the Italians used an opening bid of two diamonds to show various distributional hands with a singleton or void in diamonds. The Italian South, therefore, opened two diamonds. After a series of relay bids, North became the declarer at three no trump, and East led from his longest suit — hearts. North won in dummy and led a diamond to his king and East's ace. The defenders (Aces Bob Wolff and Bob Hamman) now had a chance to recover from the unfortunate opening lead.

To do so, East had to switch to spades and West had to resist playing the jack to finesse against South's queen. The winning defence would be a spade to West's ace dropping North's king, and another spade to clear the suit. East-West could then wait patiently for their five tricks to defeat the hand.

In actual play East played another heart (this could have been the winning defence against a different layout) and declarer had time to establish the club suit and a spade trick for his nine tricks.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY
This is the way it's done. You buy an old revenue bearing house for close to the value of the lot. Your money earns anywhere from 10% to 13%. As the house depreciates the land appreciates. When the land value equals more than your total investment you sell. The man to handle this for you is Don Bacon, Byron Price and Associates Ltd. You find him at 804 Broughton St., or by dialing 385-2458. And you laugh all the way to the bank.

1.4 ACRES WATERFRONT
GORDON HEAD
So very secluded this could be "your own world." So beautiful and tranquil.
The wild birds wouldn't consider leaving. A few words about the residence. Built for the present owner in the 1940s, it has a 20x15 living room. Completely separate dining room. Two fine bedrooms. The den with its open fireplace is a specialty area. Part basement. Drive bys are meaningless for this home cannot be seen from the street nor from the neighbors. Mariners view, an emphatic YES. The price is $72,500 and considering the value this could well sell before this ad is terminated three days hence. Call MARGARET JOHNSTON or DAR GARSIDE. ROYAL TRUST 384-8001.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc, for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—WANT ADS THAT FAIL TO bring the desired results do so usually, not through a lack of readership, but because they are poorly worded or contain inadequate information.

8—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient ad-visor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Saturday call.

Smiles for Lone Tubber

Nanaimo Mayor Frank Ney, left, and Nanaimo businessman Fred Maguire were all smiles Friday just before Maguire boarded a bathtub and went for a 180-mile from Hub City to Seattle. With ferry services severely curtailed by strike, Maguire just may be picking up passengers along the way, although he plans this as non-stop trip.

Cobble Hill's Fair Opens Gates Today

By KLAUS MUENTER
Colonist Duncan Bureau

COBBLE HILL — One of the last fall fairs on Vancouver Island that still has the family touch and is free of commercialism — the Cobble Hill Fair — will open for the 64th year today.

Because of those enviable attributes, the fair here, open from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. is patronized not only by local residents but by visitors from many Island and some mainland points.

Preparations for the annual one-day event are in high gear and the 30 awards, presented for last year's finest exhibits, are being collected and polished, according to Jane Leister, the fair committee's publicity chairman.

Last year the fair drew 2,000 visitors, a healthy increase over the previous years, and 324 area residents entered in the different categories.

"Homemade wine makes up a new division of this year's fair, with a trophy being donated by the wine arts shop of Victoria, and the judges of this division will have to face a tough morning of tasting and chewing dry bread," said Mrs. Leister.

As another new feature this year there will be classes for a newly-formed 4-H goat club, enhanced by a particularly large goat show.

Besides a variety of livestock classes and displays, hall exhibits once more will feature a wide range of categories including field and garden produce, flowers, hobbies, handicrafts, arts and photography.

Outdoor activities will include a variety of contests and a horse show. Mrs. Leister said catalogues for this year' event have been "home-made" by members of the Farmer's Institute and may be obtained from Mrs. Kitty Bronee, Box 263, Shawnigan Lake.

Leader Honored

—Gordon Hamilton

Tom Starkey of Cobble Hill is only 10 years old but he could put many an adult to shame with collection of trophies. He's won them for competitions in accordion, which he's studied for 2½ years.

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Organizer of the Shawnigan Lake Summer School of the Arts, J. J. Johannesen, received honorary membership in the Eugene Ysaye Foundation this week at a presentation made during a concert of Ysaye's music.

Johannesen also received a medal from the foundation along with cellist Tsuyoshi Tsutsumi, who played at Wednesday night's concert.

Belgian Trade Commissioner Raymond Horry, who represented the Belgian-based foundation, travelled from Vancouver to make the presentation of the medals. The Ysaye Foundation is devoted to excellence in the fields of music and art.

Johannesen, the first western Canadian to become an honorary member of the foundation, joins such notables as Yehudi Menuhin, Pablo Pascal and the late Dr. Albert Schweitzer, as foundation members.

Eugene Ysaye, who lived from 1858 to 1931, was described to the evening's audience as "one of the greatest violin players of all time" by violinist and fellow member of the foundation, Ruggiero Ricci.

Ricci, who said his own teacher was a pupil of Ysaye, played Ysaye violin solos and joined cellist Tsutsumi for other Ysaye compositions.

During the awards presentation, there was a surprise for Johannesen—a telegram from Lawrie Wallace, chairman of the advisory committee of the B.C. Cultural Fund, was read out, congratulating Johannesen on his admittance to the foundation.

Johannesen was honored by the foundation for work he has done organizing the Shawnigan Lake Summer School of the Arts and for his years of work building Juenesse Musicale, now called The Festival Concert Society.

Bamfield Station Right on Beam

A $77,000 National Research Council grant has been awarded to the Bamfield marine biological station on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

The grant is part of $1.5 million given to universities and announced in Ottawa Thursday.

The grant would be spent in three ways, according to officials:

- Operating costs, including salaries of technicians.
- General Bamfield station facilities.

Dr. Norman Wilimovsky, chairman of the station's facilities committee, said Thursday the bulk of the money for facilities would be spent on improving the station's sea water system.

"No marine biological station can function without an adequate sea water system," said Wilimovsky, a faculty member at University of B.C. "With just a single sea water system, any failure could mean that long-term experiments would be ruined.

"The money will be used on such items as an electric generator, a sea water pump, compressors, piping and other equipment."

In order to upgrade the station's research capability, "cold rooms and more specialized gear" will also be installed, he added.

The largest grant announced by the research council was for $500,000 over five years to University of Sherbrooke, Que.

UBC is to get $364,000 over three years while Laval University, Montreal, has been granted up to $306,000 for its research.

Five universities take part in the Bamfield station's operation: University of Victoria, UBC, Burnaby's Simon Fraser University, University of Alberta (Calgary campus) and University of Alberta (Edmonton campus).

West Germans Top Ocean Yacht Race

PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — West Germany won the 1973 Admiral's Cup, world championship in ocean yachting; race officials announced Thursday night following the release of provisional figures.

German yachts totalled 831 points in the four races which make up the Admiral's Cup competition.

Australia was second with 779 points, Britain third with 752 and the United States fourth with 738.

Provisional figures are still subject to official confirmation after all 48 yachts competing in the Admiral's Cup cross the finish line, any one of them may lodge protests which could alter the final standings.

By late Thursday night, several yachts had still not finished the Fastnet race, the last event in the series.

Swimming Director

OTTAWA (CP) — South African Cecil Colwin, who has coached swimmers to world records and Olympic medals, has been named technical director of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Associatiion.

Colwin, author of a book and magazine columns on swimming, will take charge of developing coaches and programs reaching beyond the 1976 Montreal Olympic, the assocation said.

Yonge Sparks Polo Victory

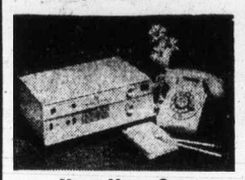

PERTH, Scotland — A Canadian team, led by captain Tony Yonge of Victoria, downed a Scottish team, 5-2, Sunday in an exhibition polo match.

Yonge scored three goals while Charles Hetherington of Calgary and Patrick Oswald of Vancouver completed the Canadian scoring.

The tour, which began Aug. 3, will continue until Sept. 5.

Soviet MIRVs Threaten Arms Accord—U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary James Schlesinger said the Russians have successfully tested missiles with multiple warheads that can be aimed at separate targets.

He told a news conference this development shows the Russians have narrowed a technological gap which favored the United States and means that prospects for U.S.-Soviet agreement to control warheads have "deteriorated sadly."

"In recent weeks, the Soviets have successfully demonstrated in inflight tests the MIRV capability of two of their missiles," Schlesinger said.

He said there is less certain evidence that the MIRV capability has been achieved with two other land-based inter-continental ballistic missiles.

He identified the two Russian missiles on which he said there is "Hard evidence" of MIRV capability as the SSX 17, which is somewhat similar to the U.S. land-based Minute Man, and the SSX 18, which is described as a large missile intended presumably to replace Russia's biggest missile, the SS9.

The big missile is the one that concerns the U.S. Schlesinger said it can be developed into a major threat to knock out U.S. land-based missiles.

Schlesinger estimated it will take about two years for the Russians to deploy their first combat-ready MIRV missiles and that the Russians probably will be able to pull even with the United States by 1979 in the number of multiple warheads on land-based missiles.

By early or mid-1980s, he said, Russia "will have a formidable force" of MIRVs on land-based missiles.

He said there is no evidence so far that the Russians have achieved multiple warheads for their missile-firing submarines, although he indicated he expects the Russians to catch up with the United States there as well in time.

Armchair Astronaut Takes Off

CAPE KENNEDY (Reuter) "We're off and flying" said commander Allan Bean Friday as he circled the Skylab space station in his one-man flying machine.

Bean was evaluating the manoeuverability of the unit, described as "a flying armchair," as part of a full day of scientific studies scheduled for the Skylab astronauts.

"If you have the umbilical out very far, it has its own idea of where it wants to go," he said, referring to the umbilical tube which provides oxygen and cooling to the space suit from the space station.

It takes "one whale of a lot of gas" to counteract the motion of the umbilical, he added. The unit has 14 thrusters powered by pressurized nitrogen.

Sweden Calls On U.S.

NEW YORK — Swedish Prime Minister Olaf Palme urged that Sweden and the United States resume normal diplomatic relations. They had been strained almost to the breaking point because of the Indochina war.

"I do not find it sensible that two counttries with long tradition of friendship should not have normal diplomatic relations," Palme said. "The United States has very normal relations with countries which have much more fundamental disagreements with it."

Palme made his bid in a television interview for the NBC program taped in Stockholm.

Tourist Losses Scored

Stinging criticism of the government's handling of the ferry situation came Friday from spokesmen for Greater Victoria's business community and opposition politicians. They warned of severe economic losses unless the strike is settled quickly.

Meanwhile, lineups of motorists trying to get off the Island lengthened to unprecendented proportions at the Coho dock at the Inner Harbor and at the Sidney-Anacortes terminal in Sidney.

All three opposition parties clamored for government action, the Liberals calling for Transport Minister Robert Strachan's scalp, while former premier W. A. C. Bennett urged the resignation of Premier Barrett.

Equal parts hostility and desperation was the mood of members of Victoria's Highway 1A Motel Association who say they are losing one-third of $1 million a day because of the strike.

This is the way the members, representing 45 motels, most of them on Gorge Road, felt after trying unsuccessfully to talk to Barrett and Strachan about the strike.

"They flatly refused to see us," said Charles Danbrook of the Westwind International Motor Inn.

"Is it legal to cut off a part of a public highway?" asked Mrs. Evelyn Matteo of the Charles Dickens Motor Inn, at a press conference following a membership meeting of the association.

Sunday Meeting Slated

Hopes for a quick settlement to the B.C. Ferries strike brightened Friday evening, as union officials for 2,400 workers agreed to sit down for weekend bargaining talks with Transport Minister Robert Strachan.

The meeting is set for Sunday morning, but nobody is saying where.

Strachan told reporters outside his office Friday that the main stumbling block to a settlement — a division between the crews' union and the officers' union — had been cleared away.

"They're back together again," he said. "It's a real gain and will be of great benefit to reaching an agreement."

Reading from a prepared statement, the minister said there had been agreement "in principle" to guidelines under which negotiations could start again.

He appeared much more optimistic than the day before when contessed that the split between the two union groups placed him in "an impossible situation."

The officers group, represented by Peter Marshall, were apparently far behind the crews union, led by business agent Norm Thornber, in the progress of contract talks, and Strachan predicted at least a week's delay before they could sit down together.

But Friday, the stalemate broke when Marshall and Thornber agreed to immediate joint talks.

Neither Marshall nor Thornber would take to reporters after the 1½-hour meeting in Strachan's office.

However Marshall told the Colonist later that he is happy to be going back to the bargaining table.

"This thing can only be resolved in negotiations," he said, "So the sooner we get back to the table the better.

Food Men Pledge Help, Watchdog Raps Ministers

OTTAWA (CP) — An angry Beryl Plumptre, the $40,000 a year chairman of the food prices review board, said Friday she had been given "absolutely no help whatsoever" in rounding up staff for the board's work until the cabinet met early this week.

She was speaking at a news conference following an all-day closed meeting with the heads of with nine food chain executives at which:

● The food store executives promised to protect consumers against the ill effects of double or triple-pricing of shelved articles. Where more than one price is marked on an item, the customer will be asked to pay the lowest.

● The nine chains — Dominion Stores, Safeway, Food City, Woodwards, International Grocers' Association, Loblaws, Steinberg's, Provigo and A and P — agreed to supply requested financial information to the board on a confidential basis.

● The chains agreed to include more consumer information in their advertising.

● They pledged to try to reduce the number of different package sizes available in an effort to cut product costs.

Railmen Giving No Warning

Tieup Nearly National

MONTREAL (CP) — Non-operating railway unions hit Canada's railways with a barrage of new strike calls Friday, warning at the same time they do not intend to give advance warning of future strikes.

The effect of a rapid-fire succession of strike orders late in the day, together with orders issued earlier, brings the railway shutdowns close to the national strike the unions said at the outset they wanted to avoid.

The only area of the country where no strike was in effect or known to be planned by Friday night was the Atlantic provinces.

In Quebec, 18,000 non-ops were ordered off the job no later than midnight, and by the supper hour they had deserted Canadian National's Central Station here. They were to strike for 48 hours. They had just ended a 48-hour strike at 6 a.m. the same day.

In Ontario, a strike due to end at midnight was extended to 6 a.m. today and a 66-hour strike was called for 6 a.m. local times today in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and that part of northwestern Ontario not already out.

Birth Defect Link: Sprays Suspected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two manufacturing corporations suspended Friday all production and marketing of three spray adhesives which, the U.S. Consumer Products Safety Commission said, may be linked to birth defects.

Commission chairman Richard Simpson said the sprays generally were sold for arts and crafts purposes. He identified them as Foil Art Spray Adhesive and Scotch Brand SprayMent, manufactured by the 3M Co. of St. Paul, Minn., and Krylon Spray Adhesive, manufactured by the Borden Co. of Columbus, Ohio.

Within a few hours after Simpson called for a halt in the sale of the products, spokesmen for both manufacturers said they were initiating voluntary recall programs and halting production.

Two of the three spray adhesives are being marketed in Canada, consumer affairs officials said Friday.

Jim Black, chief of the hazardous products division of the consumers affairs department, said Scotch Brand Spray-Ment, manufactured by the 3M Co. and Krylon Spray Adhesive, produced by the Borden Co. are both available in Canada.

LANDLADY CHARGED

Aged Man Kept on Leash

MIAMI (UPI) — A 55-year-old landlady was held on false imprisonment charges Friday for keeping an aged man in a shed behind her home, collecting his social security checks and feeding him so poorly he had to forage in garbage cans.

The case came to light Thursday when the 85-year-old man, Victor Hartman, fell into one of the garbage cans along a street and was too weak to get out.

He had a leash-type rope looped around his neck.

Police identified the landlady as Mrs. Bonnie Blanchard. They said Hartman had been boarding with her "for possible as long as 25 years."

The quarters provided to Hartman for his $186-a-month social security cheque consisted of a 14-by-5-foot pool pumphouse. The Blanchard property is fenced but the elderly man managed to get out from time to time to go in search of food.

Police said they had received reports from neighbors over the past six months complaining about an indecently dressed old man wandering around eating out of garbage cans, but each time they went to look for him, he was gone.

They finally caught up with him Thursday when they received another complaint. They said they found Hartman "lying inside a garbage can in the street, into which he had evidently fallen while attempting to get food and was unable to get out."

Could Affect All B.C.

Powell River Eyes Big School Changes

POWELL RIVER (CP) — Residents of this pulp mill town immediately across from Comox Valley on the mainland side of Georgia Strait are preparing to experiment with the school system in a pilot project that could set the pattern for all of B.C.

Changes in the school term, the curriculum, teaching methods and daily attendance were all proposed at a meeting this week attended by about 50 parents, teachers and students.

Five weeks ago John Bremer, provincial education commissioner, said the school district would be allowed to initiate any change it desires, except lowering the school-leaving age.

The meeting heard residents call for greater emphasis on teaching basics, more vocational training and the institution of a semester system.

Student representatives criticized present aspects of the school system such as compulsory attendance and counselling services.

Mrs. Jeannie Albin, a spokesman for local Indians, called for new history books which would present more realistic accounts of the Indian in Canadian history.

Bob Chenoweth, education director of the B.C. Association of Non-Status Indians, called for pre-school training for Indians.

But not everyone wants to change the whole system.

Don Bergey, a contractor who sits on the project's steering committee, said: "I assume some teachers are against change and they will end up teaching students or parents who are also against change."

Another public meeting on education is scheduled here at the end of the month, and Bremer is expected to attend.

Nanaimo Building

$1 Million Deal With Penthouse

NANAIMO — A new $1 million financial and commercial building in downtown Nanaimo was announced Thursday by Bill Ney, senior executive director of Great National Land and Investment Corp.

Ney said the building will be four storeys in height with a penthouse on top and will be situated on Front Street across from the post office on the site which formerly housed the Nanaimo bus terminal.

He said that Robinson Construction of Nanaimo was awarded the contract to erect the building after it was shown that the company submitted the lowest of five bids received.

Demolition of the existing structure on the site, which has housed the bus depot, a tire shop and more recently a parking garage, is already underway.

It is expected to be completed in about one year.

Ney said the firm of Barley and Weismeuller of Nanaimo has been named the architect for the project, and consulting engineers are Turnkey Projects Ltd.

The building will feature a breezeway through the centre of it and a central courtyard. It will have "lots of greenery" around in and parking will be provided for tenants and their employees.

There has been no word on what companies will occupy the building when completed.

Quick Turnabout Their Only Hope

People were still desperately hoping for sudden turnabout in B.C. Ferries strike which went into effect early Friday morning, marooning hundreds of visitors in Greater Nanaimo area. But at around noon Friday, there were still more than 100 vehicles of all descriptions in Departure Bay ferry terminal parking lot, with Salvation Army and a number of churches supplying emergency aid and Greater Nanaimo residents also pitching in with accommodation for the tourists.

Port Hardy Wharf Situation Making Waves

By JEAN SORENSEN
Colonist Correspondent

PORT HARDY — Hazardous conditions prevail at the government-owned fishermen's wharf here that has gone a year without the care of a wharfinger.

Neglect of the wharf, which acts as the main mooring station for more than 100 fishermen and pleasure craft owners, consists of burnt and abandoned derelicts, motorists parking in restricted areas and discarded boat oil.

Commercial fisherman Doug Crafton of Port Hardy complained of two derelicts moored to a float near the wharf.

"They're a hazard. There isn't even hatch covers on them. Anyone could fall into them," Crafton said.

Crafton also maintaned the abandoned fishing boats are taking up valuable space at the cramped floats surrounding wharf.

Crafton maintains the owners of the abandoned vessels should be made to pull them up on the beach.

"The boats have been cluttering up the dock for a good year. They've never been moved," he said.

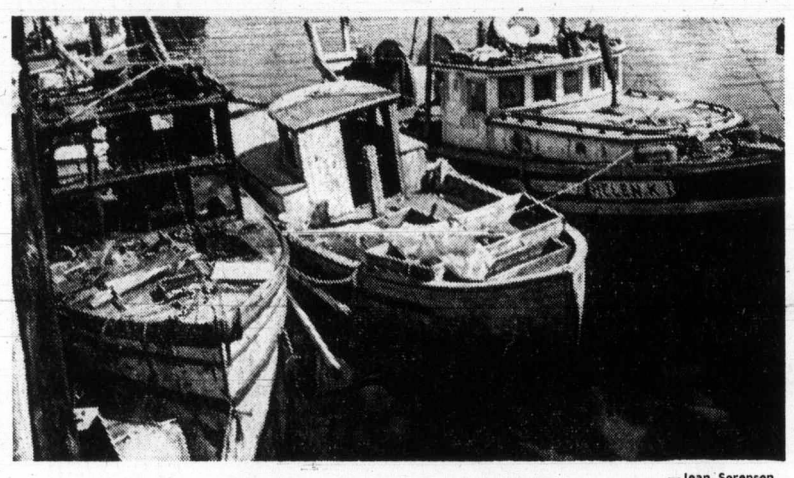

Firemen recently called to the wharf to extinguish a fire aboard a vessel have issued a warning to motorists that they will charge any person parking their vehicle on the dock.

At the recent fire, firemen lost valuable time clearing cars from the restricted wharf in order to get the firetruck within range of the blaze.

Unfortunately, motorists are still obstructing the wharf by parking vehicles on the entrance which is is only wide enough for two cars to pass.

Municipal employee Bruce Lindesay says local garbage crews and trucks have repeated problems gaining access past parked cars to remove waste left by fishermen and pleasure craft boaters on the wharf.

Lindesay said that since the municipality terminated its lease with the transport department in September of 1972 and stopped wharfinger services, garbage pickup is the only service the municipality provides.

—Jean Sorensen

Typical situation at Port Hardy wharf

RCMP Sgt. Roy Pickell said this week the RCMP will be taking the responsibility of clearing unauthorized vehicles from the wharf.

Pickell said police will be handing out warnings to motorists starting this week and if the problem persists, parking violation tickets will be issued.

The situation of vehiclesc parking along the wharf was described by Pickell as a potential "danger" since a boat could come in with an injured person and emergency vehicles would be obstructed.

Tickets were handed out last weekend to motorists who parked along the roadside when parking facilities became overcrowded.

The cars were ticketed because they made it difficult for motorists coming from the parking lot to see oncoming traffic, Pickell said.,

Pickell said he will attempt to meet with council and urge a larger parking lot be built to accommodate the summer overflow.

Fisheries officer Gordon Zealand warned last week he will be taking steps to charge boaters who leave oil on the wharf. The containers of oil fill with rain water and spill into waters surrounding the wharf, Zealand said. (Although the municipality picks up garbage it does not pick up discarded boat oil.)

Zealand said he will be looking into the wharf situation this week. The wharf, previously under the auspices of the ministry of transport, was transferred to the department of fisheries and marine services this month.

"Something has got to be done at the wharf," Zealand said. Zealand said the influx of tourists and fishermen this summer has brought the situation to a head.

Municipal efforts were 'in vain'

Lindesay said the municipality picked up a three-year lease which was dropped in 1972, to administer the wharf. He said the wharfinger could not collect fees from the boats and municipal taxes were being used to maintain the facility and the wharfinger.

Lindesay said there were only two people who paid moorage fees.

"The fishermen were the worst offenders," Lindesay said.

The reluctance of boat owners using the facility to pay for them has forced the present difficulties at the wharf, Lindesay maintains.

"I won't even put the grater on the parking lot now," Lindesay said.

Hardy Bay Marina owner Les Jenkins, whose business is located at the foot of the wharf, said Monday he was aware of the problems in the area.

Jenkins said he had offered to take on the position as wharfinger although he was not keen on it." He said he had filled out the forms and sent them to the wharves and harbors administration at the B.C. public works department.

The application was sent in October of 1972 but no response has come to the application, Jenkins said.

Comox-Strathcona Board Wants More Land Freeze Information

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Colonist Correspondent

CAMPBELL RIVER — Based on an earlier appeal by the manager of the Kelsey Bay division of MacMillan-Bloedel Ltd., the Comox-Strathcona Regional Board has written to the provincial minister of lands requesting details on the present status of the Tsitika-Schoen land freeze.

Robert Cropper told the board June 23 that the freeze could hurt the company's over-all production in that area by 35 per cent.

But he said the worst part of the problem was the government's indecision on when it would start the study.

A two-year freeze on that area was declared by the provincial government in January so it could make an in-depth environmental study there.

But by the end of June, the study still had not been started, Cropper said.

He wondered when the study did finally get underway, if it would take two full years from that date to complete.

The regional board was later informed that the study commenced sometime in July, but those involved still want more information.

The board decided that the provincial department should advise the regional district of the present status of the freeze area, and the schedule date for completion of the study.

Cropper had said that the company couldn't make any long-range plans until it knew the final status of the land.

Leader in Arts Honored

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — Organizer of the Shawnigan Lake Summer School of the Arts, J. J. Johannesen, received honorary membership in the Eugene Ysaye Foundation this week at a presentation made during a concert of Ysaye's music.

Johannesen also received a medal from the foundation along with cellist Tsuyoshi Tsutsumi, who played at Wednesday night's concert.

Belgian Trade Commissioner Raymond Horry, who represented the Belgian-based foundation, travelled from Vancouver to make the presentation of the medals. The Ysaye Foundation is devoted to excellence in the fields of music and art.

Johannesen, the first western Canadian to become an honorary member of the foundation, joins such notables as Yehudi Menuhin, Pablo Pascal and the late Dr. Albert Schweitzer, as foundation members.

Eugene Ysaye, who lived from 1858 to 1931, was described to the evening's audience as "one of the greatest violin players of all time" by violinist and fellow member of the foundation, Ruggiero Ricci.

—Gordon Hamilton

Tom Starkey of Cobble Hill is only 10 years of age but he could put many an adult to shame with collection of trophies. He's won them for competition in accordion, which he's studied for 2½ years.

Ricci, who said his own teacher was a pupil of Ysaye, played Ysaye violin solos and joined cellist Tsutsumi for other Ysaye compositions.

During the awards presentation, there was a surprise for Johannesen—a telegram from Lawrie Wallace, chairman of the advisory committee of the B.C. Cultural Fund, was read out, congratulating Johannesen on his admittance to the foundation.

Johannesen was honored by the foundation for work he has done organizing the Shawnigan Lake Summer School of the Arts and for his years of work building Juenesse Musicale, now called The Festival Concert Society.

Cobble Hill's Fair Opens Gates Today

By KLAUS MUENTER
Colonist Duncan Bureau

COBBLE HILL — One of the last fall fairs on Vancouver Island that still has the family touch and is free of commercialism — the Cobble Hill Fair — will open for the 64th year today.

Because of those enviable attributes the fair here, open from 9 a.m. until 9 p.m. is patronized not only by local residents but by visitors from many Island and some mainland points.

Preparations for the annual one-day event are in high gear and the 30 awards, presented for last year's finest exhibits, are being collected and polished, according to Jane Leister, the fair committee's publicity chairman.

Last year the fair drew 2,000 visitors, a healthy increase over the previous years, and 324 area residents entered in the different categories.

"Homemade wine makes up a new division of this year's fair, with a trophy being donated by the wine arts shop of Victoria and the judges of this division will have to face a tough morning of tasting and chewing dry bread," said Mrs. Leister.

As another new feature this year there will be classes for a newly-formed 4-H goat club, enhanced by a particularly large goat show.

Besides a variety of livestock classes and displays, hall exhibits once more will feature a wide range of categories including field and garden produce, flowers, hobbies, handicrats, arts and photography.

Outdoor activities will include a variety of contests and a horse show. Mrs. Leister said catalogues for this year' event have been "home-made" by members of the Farmer's Institute and may by obtained from Mrs. Kitty Bronee, Box 263, Shawnigan Lake.

Bamfield Station Right on Beam

A $77,000 National Research Council grant has been awarded to the Bamfield marine biological station on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

The grant is part of $1.5 million given to universities and announced in Ottawa Thursday.

The grant would be spent in three ways, according to officials:

- Operating costs, including salaries of technicians.
- General Bamfield station facilities.
- Charters of boats.

Dr. Norman Wilimovsky, chairman of the station's facilities committee, said Thursday the bulk of the money for facilities would be spent on improving the station's sea water system.

"No marine biological station can function without an adequate sea water system," said Wilimovsky, a faculty member at University of B.C. "With just a single sea water system, any failure could mean that long-term experiments would be ruined.

"The money will be used on such items as an electric generator, a sea water pump, compressors, piping and other equipment."

In order to upgrade the station's research capability, "cold rooms and more specialized gear" will also be installed, he added.

The largest grant announced by the research council was for $500,000 over five years to University of Sherbrooke, Que.

UBC is to get $364,000 over three years while Laval University, Montreal, has been granted up to $306,000 for its research.

Five universities take part in the Bamfield station's operation: University of Victoria, UBC, Burnaby's Simon Fraser University, University of Alberta (Calgary campus) and University of Alberta (Edmonton campus).

Course Flow Smooth

NANAIMO — The president of Malaspina College, Dr. Carl Opgaard has announced the appointment of Emile Richard Casavant as instructor in the college's new water and waste water treatment course.

The president said the new instructor brings a wealth of knowledge and experience to the college. Casavant has served in the Canadian Armed Forces for several years in several capacities in the field including supervisor of water purification and treatment systems, waste water treatment and operation of testing laboratories.

First It Was Olga, Then Whole Family

Five years ago life couldn't have been more bleak for a family of five in Crete.

They were struggling to make some sort of existence in a dilapidated three-room house without electric light or water.

The youngest, two-year-old Olga and her older sister Paraskevoula were weak and frequently ill—there was no heat during the winters, which can be harsh in Crete. The parents had no money to buy building materials or clothing.

Now things have changed.

The family's standard of living was bounced up since 1968 when Peggy McDonald, 3944 Lauder, Saanich, took on sponsorship of Olga through Save the Children Fund. Miss McDonald, a judge's secretary, later "adopted" the whole family.

The house has been repaired, there's electricity (one light bulb hangs from the ceiling) and water has been piped into the home.

The family is able to get enough fuel to keep a fire burning in the cold weather.

This summer Miss McDonald travelled to Crete to visit the family in the tiny village of Roumeli, amid olive groves.

Olga, she discovered, had grown into a normal youngsteer who had just finished Grade 1.

"She was very shy at first, but soon became quite talkative and helpful," Miss McDonald said.

Since no interpreter was available, they had difficulty communicating, but Miss McDonald got along fairly well with a phrase book during her three-day stay.

Back in Victoria, Miss McDonald said she was impressed with the way sponsorships are managed by the Save the Children Fund.

"The individuals or families picked are the most needy and yet the most likely to make something of themselves with financial help."

The sponsorship scheme has been in operation since 1920 and today more than 11,000 children in 26 countries are helped. Sponsors send money quarterly, usually for food extras, school supplies, fees and transportation.

Sponsorship costs $80 a year per child and $135 a year for a family. Those interested in sponsorship can phone Mrs. W. W. McGill, local representative of Save the Children Fund, at 592-9283.

Cukes aren't only things worth pickling

Fresh Vegetables In a Fine Pickle

By PHYLLIS HANES
Christian Science Monitor

Home gardeners who struggled through the hazards of early planting this year, now are beginning to reap the harvest with everything from beans to zucchini, fresh off the vine.

This means pickling and preserving and utilizing every pint and pound of produce that isn't instantly served up for family means.

One thing to consider while you're in the planning stage of pickling, is that cukes aren't the only things that are used for pickling.

Why not pickle some onions as well as green tomatoes, peppers, green beans, cauliflower or even zucchini? They are all super as pickled products — and most are as easy to do as dills or gherkins.

The home preserver has an ideal chance to be creative in preserving and canning since one of the aims is to have food on hand that will add variety to the winter meals.

You may want to make your own catsup this year, especially if you have a bumper crop of tomatoes. But even sticking to the simple process of pickling can put your efforts into three categories—the vegetable pickles, fruit pickles, and also fish pickles.

So here are some hints for the basic kind of pickling.

Premium pickle products cannot be obtained unless top-quality ingredients are selected, no matter what the product is.

Vegetables should be tender. Fruit should be firm and slightly underripe.

If your products are not home grown, be sure to check to see that they are unwaxed. Pickling brine cannot penetrate a waxed vegetable.

The best salt for preparing a brine is a pure granulated salt. Use if it is available. Non-iodized salt will produce a cloudy brine while iodized salt may cause the pickles to darken.

The best vinegar for pickling is either cider or distilled, but read the label before purchasing. A vinegar for pickling should have an acidity of four to six per cent if a firm pickled product is desired. This is 40 to 60 grain vinegar.

A word of caution — if a crisp, pickled product is desired, do not dilute the vinegar unless stated in the recipe.

Fresh spices are recommended for the best flavored products. Spices deteriorate quickly in heat and humidity. Alum is not needed to make pickles crisp and firm if good quality ingredients and up-to-date procedures are used.

All pickle products should have heat treatment, even for brined pickles and sauerkraut, to destroy organisms that cause spoilage, and to inactiviate ensymes that may affect flavor, color and texture.

PICKLED PEPPERS

4 quarts long red, green or yellow peppers (Hungarian Banana, or other varieties)
1½ cups salt
4 cups water
2 cloves garlic
2 tablespoons prepared horseradish
10 cups vinegar
2 cups water
¼ cup sugar

Cut two small slits in each pepper. Wear rubber gloves to prevent burning hands Dissolve salt in 4 quarts of water. Pour over peppers and let stand 12 to 18 hours in a cool place. Drain; rinse and drain thoroughly. Combine remaining ingredients; simmer 25 minutes.

Remove garlic. Pack peppers into hot jars, leaving ¼ inch head space. Pour boiling hot pickling liquid over peppers, leaving ¼ inch head space. Adjust caps. Process half-pints and pints 10 minutes in boiling-water bath. Yield: about 8 pints.

ZUCCHINI PICKLE

2 pounds fresh, firm zucchini
2 small or medium onions
¼ cup salt (pickling salt is best)
2 cups white sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon tumeric
2 teaspoons mustard seed
3 cups cider vingegar

Wash zucchini and cut in thin slices. Peel and cut onions in quarters, then slice very thin. Add to zucchini in large bowl. Cover zucchini and onions with an inch of water and add salt. Let stand two hours. Drain throughly.

Bring remaining ingredients to boiling. Pour over zucchini and onions. Let stand two hours. Bring all ingredients to boiling point and heat five minutes.

Pack into pre-heated jars. Leave ⅛ inch head space. Adjust caps and process in water-bath canner at simmering temperature for 15 minutes. Cool. Test for seal. Store.

Toastmistresses Give Workshops

Maureen Butt of Victoria, assistant supervisor of Pacific northwest region of International Toastmistress clubs, will be going to Penticton next week to conduct workshops for executive members in regional councils.

There are 12 councils in the region which covers Alaska, the Yukon, British Columbia and parts of Washington state.

Toastmistresses who are council officers will attend the seminar, conducted annually.

Also presenting workshops are two other Victoria members, Luxy Wiart, regional treasurer, and Sylvia Ludlow.

Mrs. Butt leaves for Penticton Friday.

Ruff's Role Limited But She Will Go . . .

'Up to and Beyond Letter of the Law'

By HELEN HOSSIE
Colonist Reporter

Colonist columnist Gorde Hunter recently charged Kathleen Ruff, director of the Human Rights Act and Ernie Hall, Provincial Secretary, with being "derelict in their duties" for allowing discrimination against non-union employees.

He mentioned two specific cases where non-union shops were not invited to bid for government contracts.

He concluded from this that there is a "definite" omission in the Human Rights Act and he wanted to know what Ruff and Hall planned to do about it.

"I've hammered this omission before. I've wondered out loud what Human Rights Commission head Kathleen Ruff intended doing about it, but Mrs. Ruff has been mute. She has not stood up for all human rights.

"Nor has Ernie Hall," Hunter wrote.

Actually, there's not much Ms. Ruff could do about it even if she wanted to, the director maintains.

As director of the act, Ms. Ruff's job is "not to stand up for all human rights but to guarantee the specific rights contained in the act."

The purpose of the Human Rights Act is to eliminate discriminatory practices relating to race, religion, sex, color, nationality, ancestry, place of origin and age, if between the ages of 45 and 65 years, under the specific circumstances of employment, public services, accommodation and public signs.

The act mentions nothing about discrimination against non-union employees, or indeed about a hundred other practices that might be considered discriminatory by some people.

To say there is an omission in the Human Rights Act is one thing but to say the director of the act is derelict in her duties for failing to do something about it is quite another, Ms. Ruff says.

It's a mistake made by a lot of people, according to the director.

"The title of the act is misleading because it's so general," she says.

"Most people don't realize the act deals with specific areas of human rights — that it's not supposed to be a guarantee of total justice.

"I have my own personal views but as the dirrector, I can't prostitute the act to further anyone's pet cause, whether I believe in it or not.

"I am at times urged to take up a whole host of causes totally outside the province of the Human Rights Act on the grounds that they involve some kind of 'discrimination,' " she says.

"Discrimination outside the terms of the Human Rights Act is, if one thinks about it for a moment, widespread.

"There is 'discrimination' in giving preference to veterans under VLA; in allowing only Canadian citizens to vote in elections; in giving the Canada Pension Plan only to those over the age of 65; in not allowing people to go about in public naked; in setting a minimum wage of $1.65 for those under 18 and $2 for those over.

"The list is endless. These are all matters that are outside the terms of the Human Rights Act and whether they are acceptable or unacceptable must be determined fairly and squarely on their own merits, not by distorting the Human Rights Act as a camouflage.

"I can't cast aside the terms of reference of the Human Rights Act and set myself up as the voice of conscience, ruling on all matters of justice," she said.

"This would be unwarranted arrogance on my part which would cause the Human Rights Act itself to be brought into confusion and disrepute.

"Hunter and others want to make use of human rights legislation to forward their own pet causes," she said.

"I get pressure from all sorts of people—anti-abortion groups who think I should protect the rights of the unborn, pressure from people who want the provincial government to license acupuncture.

"Some of those who are most shrill and vociferous about their own pet causes are the quickest to deny rights to other minority groups that don't please them," she added.

"It's worth noting that in the past month or so, Hunter has written two columns revealing his insensitivity to the rights of homosexuals and French-Canadians."

Although her frame of reference is limited by the act, Ms. Ruff says she does not interpret the act in a narrow or legalistic way.

"To achieve the objectives of the Human Rights Act, I am willing to do all I possibly can up to and beyond the letter of the law."

'Human Rights Act of total justice' isn't a guarantee

"I think it is not sufficient simply to investigate signed complaints of acts of discrimination.

"In my view, it is necessary to take the initiative, to encourage affirmative programs, to question practices and attitudes that impede equality of opportunity, to develop close relationships with minority groups in order to better serve their needs, to actively promote compliance with the principles of the Human Rights Act.

"My role is not to be objective but to be a catalyst—an advocate for minority groups who don't enjoy equal rights in sociey.

"My job is not to be objective, but to be committed to the people I serve."

One of the weaknesses of the human rights department, Ms. Ruff says, has been its isolation from the people it's trying to serve.

"We've had little feed-back from minority groups."

Communication was strengthened this summer, however, with the employment of four people under the summer employment program, to stimulate interest in human rights at the community level.

The four workers, three of whom are native Indians, are working in different parts of the province, helping to set up human rights groups and organize local human rights conferences to be held later in the year.

Ms. Ruff feels the employment of three Indians is significant because "nothing will change until members of minority groups are in positions of power at all levels of society.

"There are people who say, you musn't practice a reverse discrimination—you musn't hire an Indian or a woman just because he or she is a member of a minority group.

"Well, I think that's hogwash. You do have to have minority groups in positions of power because the issues they're concerned with are never given as high a priority by people not directly involved.

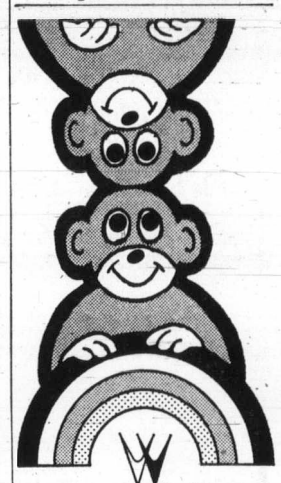

"People not directly involved just don't have the same determination," she said.

At the same time, she said, "human rights legislation must not patronize members of minority groups."

"We're not going to do things for Indians or women; we're going to enable them to do things for themselves."

West Germans Top Ocean Yacht Race

PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — West Germany won the 1973 Admiral's Cup, world championship in ocean yachting, race officials announced Thursday night following the release of provisional figures.

German yachts totalled 831 points in the four races which make up the Admiral's Cup competition.

Australia was second with 779 points, Britain third with 752 and the United States fourth with 738.

Provisional figures are still subject to official confirmation after all 48 yachts competing in the Admiral's Cup cross the finish line, any one of them may lodge protests which could alter the final standings.

By late Thursday night, several yachts had still not finished the Fastnet race, the last event in the series.

Swimming Director

OTTAWA (CP) — South African Cecil Colwin, who has coached swimmers to world records and Olympic medals, has been named technical director of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Associatiion.

Colwin, author of a book and magazine columns on swimming, will take charge of developing coaches and programs reaching beyond the 1976 Montreal Olympic, the assocation said.

Yonge Sparks Polo Victory

PERTH, Scotland — A Canadian team, led by captain Tony Yonge of Victoria, downed a Scottish team, 5-2, Sunday in an exhibition polo match.

Yonge scored three goals while Charles Hetherington of Calgary and Patrick Oswald of Vancouver completed the Canadian scoring.

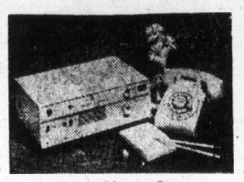

The tour, which began Aug. 3, will continue until Sept. 5.

Tourist Losses Scored

Stinging criticism of the government's handling of the ferry situation came Friday from spokesmen for Greater Victoria's business community and opposition politicians. They warned of severe economic losses unless the strike is settled quickly.

Meanwhile, lineups of motorists trying to get off the Island lengthened to unprecendented proportions at the Coho dock at the Inner Harbor and at the Sidney-Anacortes terminal in Sidney.

All three opposition parties clamored for government action, the Liberals calling for Transport Minister Robert Strachan's scalp, while former premier W. A. C. Bennett urged the resignation of Premier Barrett.

Equal parts hostility and desperation was the mood of members of Victoria's Highway 1A Motel Association who say they are losing one-third of $1 million a day because of the strike.

This is the way the members, representing 45 motels, most of them on Gorge Road, felt after trying unsuccessfully to talk to Barrett and Strachan about the strike.

"They flatly refused to see us," said Charles Danbrook of the Westwind International Motor Inn.

"Is it legal to cut off a part of a public highway?" asked Mrs. Evelyn Matteo of the Charles Dickens Motor Inn, at a press conference following a membership meeting of the association.

ALL DRESSED up in uniform with no place to go are these six Pacific Stage Lines drivers who showed up for work at Victoria bus terminal Friday but found none of their buses to Vancouver running because of B.C. Ferries strike. Service is will resume Sunday via Nanaimo and CP ferry.

Sunday Meeting Slated

Hopes for a quick settlement to the B.C. Ferries strike brightened Friday evening, as union officials for 2,400 workers agreed to sit down for weekend bargaining talks with Transport Minister Robert Strachan.

The meeting is set for Sunday morning, but nobody is saying where.

Strachan told reporters outside his office Friday that the main stumbling block to a settlement — a division between the crews' union and the officers' union — had been cleared away.

"They're back together again," he said. "It's a real gain and will be of great benefit to reaching an agreement."

Reading from a prepared statement, the minister said there had been agreement "in principle" to guidelines under which negotiations could start again.

He appeared much more optimistic than the day before when he confessed that the split between the two union groups placed him in "an impossible situation."

The officers' group, represented by Peter Marshall, was apparently far behind the crews' union, led by business agent Norm Thornber, in the progress of contract talks, and Strachan predicted at least a week's delay before they could sit down together.

But Friday, the stalemate broke when Marshall and Thornber agreed to immediate joint talks.

Neither Marshall nor Thornber would talk to reporters after the 1½-hour meeting in Strachan's office.

However, Marshall told the Colonist later that he is happy to be going back to the bargaining table.

"This thing can only be resolved in negotiations," he said. "So the sooner we get back to the table the better.

While the unlicensed personnel were away from work, the officers, who are represent-

Food Men Pledge Help, Watchdog Raps Ministers

OTTAWA (CP) — An angry Beryl Plumptre, the $40,000 a year chairman of the food prices review board, said Friday she had been given "absolutely no help whatsoever" in rounding up staff for the board's work until the cabinet met early this week.

She was speaking at a news conference following an all-day closed meeting with the heads of with nine food chain executives at which:

- The food chain executives promised to protect consumers against the ill effects of double or triple-pricing of shelved articles. Where more than one price is marked on an item, the customer will be asked to pay the lowest.
- The nine chains — Dominion Stores, Safeway, Food City, Woodwards, International Grocers' Association, Loblaws, Steinberg's, Provigo and A and P — agreed to supply requested financial information to the board on a confidential basis.
- The chains agreed to include more consumer information in their advertising.
- They pledged to try to reduce the number of different package sizes available in an effort to cut product costs.

Railmen Giving No Warning

Tieup Nearly National

MONTREAL (CP) — Non-operating railway unions hit Canada's railways with a barrage of new strike calls Friday, warning at the same time they do not intend to give advance warning of future strikes.

The effect of a rapid-fire succession of strike orders late in the day, together with orders issued earlier, brings the railway shutdowns close to the national strike the unions said at the outset they wanted to avoid.

The only area of the country where no strike was in effect or known to be planned by Friday night was the Atlantic provinces.

In Quebec, 18,000 non-ops were ordered off the job no later than midnight, and by the supper hour they had deserted Canadian National's Central Station here. They were to strike for 48 hours. They had just ended a 48-hour strike at 6 a.m. the same day.

In Ontario, a strike due to end at midnight was extended to 6 a.m. today and a 66-hour strike was called for 6 a.m. local times today in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and that part of northwestern Ontario not already out.

Previously, the Associated Non-Operating Railway Unions, representing the 56,000 workers involved, had said they would attempt to give 12 hours notice of strike action and, generally,

Birth Defect Link: Sprays Suspected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two manufacturing corporations suspended Friday all production and marketing of three spray adhesives which, the U.S. Consumer Products Safety Commission said, may be linked to birth defects.

Commission chairman Richard Simpson said the sprays generally were sold for arts and crafts purposes. He identified them as Foil Art Spray Adhesive and Scotch Brand SprayMent, manufactured by the 3M Co. of St. Paul, Minn., and Krylon Spray Adhesive, manufactured by the Borden Co. of Columbus, Ohio.

Within a few hours after Simpson called for a halt in the sale of the products, spokesmen for both manufacturers said they were initiating voluntary recall programs and halting production.

Two of the three spray adhesives are being marketed in Canada, consumer affairs officials said Friday.

Jim Black, chief of the hazardous products division of the consumers affairs department, said Scotch Brand Spray-Ment and Krylon Spray Adhesive are both available in Canada.

LANDLADY CHARGED

Aged Man Kept on Leash

MIAMI (UPI) — A 55-year-old landlady was held on false imprisonment charges Friday for keeping an aged man in a shed behind her home, collecting his social security cheques and feeding him so poorly he had to forage in garbage cans.

The case came to light Thursday when the 85-year-old man, Victor Hartman, fell into one of the garbage cans along a street and was too weak to get out.

He had a leash-type rope looped around his neck.

Police identified the landlady as Mrs. Bonnie Blanchard. They said Hartman had been boarding with her "for possibly as long as 25 years."

The quarters provided to Hartman for his $186-a-month social security cheque consisted of a 14-by-5-foot pool pumphouse. The Blanchard property is fenced but the elderly man managed to get out from time to time to go in search of food.

Police said they had received reports from neighbors over the past six months complaining about an indecently dressed old man wandering around eating out of garbage cans, but each time they went to look for him, he was gone.

They finally caught up with him Thursday when they received another complaint. They said they found Hartman "lying inside a garbage can in the street, into which he had evidently fallen while attempting to get food and was unable to get out."

Superferry Making Extra Run

By HUBERT BEYER
Colonist Reporter

Masses of tourists formed huge new lineups trying to flee Vancouver Island Friday after 2,000 unlicensed B.C. Ferries workers walked off their jobs, cutting the most important link with the mainland.

As soon as it became known that B.C. Ferries service was paralysed ,motorists turned to two main ferry links connecting Vancouver Island with points in the U.S.

Lineup Grew

By Friday evening, the lineup at the Black Ball ferry terminal stretched all the way from the Inner Harbor, along Wharf, across Johnson Street Bridge, down Tyee and Songhees Roads.

Cars, trucks and campers lined up, although they were informed they might have to wait up to 36 hours to get on to the Coho to Port Angeles.

In Sidney, motorists scrambled for a place on the ferry to Anacortes, operated by the Washington State Ferries system. The backup there was still more than three miles Friday night and RCMP officers informed drivers they might not even get on the 11 a.m. run today.

Meanwhile, Washington State Ferries officials in Anacortes also reported a massive backup of vehicles trying to get to Vancouver Island, mostly Canadians returning home.

Takes Strain

To relieve some of the pressure, Washington Governor Dan Evans has ordered one additional trip a day by the superferry Walla Walla with a capacity of 206 automobiles and 2,000 passengers.

The Walla Walla was to leave Anacortes at midnight and make a return trip from Sidney at 3 a.m.

Ferry officials at Anacortes said the Walla Walla was already fully loaded by 6 p.m. Friday. The superferry's trip is in addition to the system's two regular runs a day and will continue as long as needed.

Tough Time

Black Ball ferry officials in Port Angeles said they "are having a tough time filling the ships going to Victoria."

They said they warn all motorists not to take their cars, but instead leave them at Port Angeles and go to Victoria as foot passengers.

The Princess Marguerite was making its regular daily runs to Seattle and Port Angeles from the Inner Harbor, but since she takes cars by reservation only, no lineups were developing.

One of the first businesses to feel the crunch of the strike was Pacific Stage Lines operating buses between Victoria and Vancouver via B.C. Ferries.

"Our drivers were sitting around all day with nothing to do," said Walter Watson, manager of operations.

He added that the bus trips will resume at noon Sunday from Victoria to Nanaimo and then on to Vancouver via the CPR's Princess of Vancouver.

Motorists preparing for long waits in the Black Ball and the Sidney-Anacortes lineup were still in high spirits Friday afternoon.

"I love your city," said Bill Ross of Lake Tahoe, Calif, who had been waiting in line since 6 a.m. to get onto the ferry to Port Angeles.

"We've spent two weeks on Vancouver Island, mainly around Long Beach and Qualicum. We didn't know a thing about the strike until we got here last night," he said.

Al Hutton of Albuquerque N.M., had also been waiting in line for more than nine hours said he didn't really care how much longer he had to wait.

"We went out to Butchart Gardens last night. Really enjoyed it," he said.

Some drivers waiting in the lineup in Sidney were equally cheerful.

Good Neighbors

In Nanaimo, as late as noon Friday there were more than a hundred vehicles of all descriptions still parked in the Departure Bay ferry terminal lot.

Meanwhile, Salvation Army and a number of churches continued their emergecy aid service for the travellers — originally set up Thursday night — and many Nanaimo-area residents put up tourists in their homes.

'Neighbors' Ease Ferry Lineup Pains

Sidney Lions, Kinsmen, Sanscha Hall Association and the Pacific Commuter bus line got together Friday night to ease the pain for tourists waiting to board Washington State Ferries from Sidney to Anacortes today.

They put on a dance at Sanscha Hall, with music supplied by the Mission Ridge, fed the stranded travellers hot dogs, doughnuts and coffee, arranged billets for women and children and had the men bed down in the hall for the night.

Pacific Commuter ran a shuttle service from the lineups to the hall.

Bill Turner, caretaker of Sanscha Hall, told the Colonist about 10 p.m. that the hall was packed with people "having a great old time."

"It's better than sitting in a ruddy car," he said.

It had been a long day for Turner but the idea of Sidney's hospitality for the stranded tourists seemed to buoy him up, or maybe it was the music that lifted his spirits.

"It's been a busy day," he said. "First thing this morning we had the strikers' meeting here and it's going to be a busy night."

But his voice sounded cheerful.

In Victoria, tourists in cars, campers, station wagons, vans and other vehicles also waited in seemingly endless lines for a chance to board the Black Ball's ferry Coho for Port Angeles today.

Those who had sleeping facilities in their vehicles settled in for the night. Some were trying to get comfortable in their cars but there were many vacant cars indicating the occupants had gone to a movie or had checked into hotels and motels for the night.

The Princess Mary restaurant sent a coffee van up to Tyee Road to dispense free coffee from 5 p.m. on and were to be back again at 7 a.m. today.

Tempers varied in coping with the situation.

"This is the first time we've come up here and it will be the last," said Mrs. Rosemary Lambert of Los Angeles who was planning on spending the night in her station wagon with sons Philip, 16, and Nolen, 13.

"We've been parked here since 6 p.m. and we don't expect to get on the ferry until 7:30 p.m. tomorrow night," she said.

Dr. and Mrs. Willard Mathiesen of Portland, Ore., who had been up in Strathcona Park with their pickup truck and camping gear, said they had to be home by Monday because the doctor had appointments to perform surgery that day.

They'd been up to the Island before. "And we'll be back again," added Mrs. Mathiesen. "We wouldn't let something like this stop us." They were told they would have to wait 27 hours.

BUS depot in downtown Victoria was all but deserted Friday as combination of B.C. Ferries walkout and rail workers' rotating strike cut water ties between mainland B.C. and Vancouver Island. New lineups, meanwhile, formed at American ferry terminals in Victoria and Sidney as tourists sought to leave Island. Waiting in huge lineup for Coho to Port Angeles, Allan Burton of Beaverton pours coffee for Richard Kowalyk of Cleveland Ohio, meeting for first time.

Foreign Parks Delegates Visiting Island

The best caviar in the world comes from the Caspian Sea and it's cheap at $25 a pound.

At least, that's according to Mashallah Karman who works for the parks branch of Iran's ministry of agriculture and natural resources.

Karman is one of 36 parks delegates from 21 countries visiting Victoria this week as part of their six-week tour of parks in Canada, the U.S. and Mexico.

A literal translation of Karman's name perhaps explains his obvious interest in caviar. It means: "If God wishes, the man is satisfied."

The parks system in Iran is relatively young, he says. It was started in 1956, when some 20 million acres were set aside by royal decree — mostly in the form of wildlife preserves. The land includes the 18,300-foot-high Mount Davamand and the caviar-laden Caspian Sea, 92 feet below sea level.

Karman says many of the 38 wildlife parks in Iran have terrain and wildlife not dissimilar to that of the North American Rockies. There are Persian Ibex (rather like the Rocky mountain goat), wild sheep, brown bear, roe deer and red deer (rather like elk).

Hunters can take out licences to shoot the game and pay fees which vary according to the rarity of their kill. The 70-mile-an-hour cheetah, of course is a protected animal.

The delegates were welcomed to Victoria Thursday by B.C. parks director Robert Ahrens, who read them part of specially prepared background paper on the history of the Canadian system.

His paper deplored the fact that "many Canadians are still unable to look at a mature forest without calculating its worth in terms of lumber, or to gaze at a jagged mountain range without trying to assess and extract the minerals hidden in the rocks."

Ahrens' report pointed out the "gaps and imbalances" in both provincial and federal parks systems in Canada.

More than 90 per cent of B.C.'s park area is mountainous, he said, and does not include some of the other major representative landscapes.

At the national level, out of a total of 53,205 square miles of parkland, Alberta had 20,717 square miles and Prince Edward Island only seven square miles. About 32 per cent of the total park area is contained in Wood Buffalo Park on the Alberta Northwest Territories border.

Ahrens also enumerated several "major geographical and ecological regions" excluded from the national parks system, such as the Straits of Georgia inland ocean, the Pacific Ocean fjordlands, the Alberta Rocky Mountain foothills, Saskatchewan prairie, Arctic tundra, Hudson Bay lowlands or Labrador fjordlands, shorelines of the large lakes and only "nominal representation" of the St. Lawrence River.

Seasickness Hits Crew

Dogwood Holed Up for Repairs

The Arctic Dogwood, a 53-foot staysail schooner that set off on a voyage through the Northwest Passage from Victoria last month, is lying at Homer, Alaska, with a three-foot hole in her bow and damaged rigging.

The damage occurred Monday when the Dogwood collided with a workboat from the U.S. Coast Guard Ironwood that was helping her dock.

B.C. government spokesman George Baker said Friday the Dogwood's skipper Bob Masters had decided to put into Homer because his wife Audrey and photographer Eric Rankin had been seasick during the passage from Alert Bay.

The schooner dropped sail in Home Harbor to find her engine would not work. Masters asked help from the U.S. Coast Guard who sent the workboat, said Baker.

Nudging the Dogwood towards the wharf, the workboat could not get away from her, said Baker.

"They kept banging together."

By the time she was tied up, the Dogwood had a three-foot hole in her bow above the waterline and damaged spreaders and other rigging, he said.

Baker said he had been talking to Masters by phone Thursday and the Dogwood was now awaiting new spreaders.

The concrete of the hull could be mended by the crew because the wire on which the cement is laid was undamaged.

Baker said the Dogwood should be ready for sea again next week. He said the vessel would not complete the passage this year as had been hoped but Masters hoped to stay at Tuktoyaktuk, N.W.T.

The Dogwood is being sponsored on her voyage by the B.C. trade and commerce department to promote B.C. marine equipment and industry. The project has received $25,000 from the government so far.

NDP 'Purge' Blasted

Acting opposition leader Frank Richter accused the NDP government Friday of conducting a "purge" of top-level administrators in the civil service with the intention of replacing them with "party hacks, cardholders and free loading consultants."

"No amount of double talk can now disguise the fact that the purge is on as far as the B.C. civil servants are concerned." the Social Credit MLA for Boundary-Similkameen said.

Richter was commenting on government plans to drop a number of present deputy ministers one level in the civil service hierarchy and replace them with new appointments.

He charged that "horizontal promotions" are " a dime a dozen in the building these days" and that civil servants of "great integrity and outstanding ability" are being done away with.
